DEATH HOVERS NEAR FOUR SMALL VICTIMS

Drivers Speed On, Leaving Mangled Bodies Lying Helpless in Busy Downtown Streets.

Their bodies crushed and death hovering near the cots of each, three babies lay at Grady hospital Thursday night as an epidemic of automobile accidents, flaring anew Wednesday and Thursday, horrified thousands of Atlantans and startled the police department into reinauguration of the rigid traffic rules enforced several weeks ago, immediately following the tragic death of former Postmaster Hugh L. McKee.

The latest victim was Claudie Stewart, six years old, of Bellwood avenue, who, according to unofficial reports, was crushed by a speeding car late Thursday afternoon. Police reports say that the child was crossing the street near her home when run down by the car, the driver of which did not stop to render assistance.

Hurried to Grady hospital, it was found that the little girl had received a fractured skull and apparently was suffering from internal injuries. She is hovering near death at the hospital, doctors saying that little hope is held for her recovery.

No official reports of the accident were available either at Grady hospital or police headquarters. When notified of the happening, Acting Chief of Police Connally assigned two detectives to the case.

Three Others Hurt.

The three other small children hurt in the past 24 hours were: Sarah Cochran, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Cochran, of 396-B Luckie street; Charles Tyler, seven-year-old boy, of Inman Park, who was left to die by a racing motorist, and Selma Chalpin, 2, of 169 West Fair street, the latter a victim of a wild rum-car.

The Cochran child was injured late Wednesday afternoon, while the Tyler and Chalpin children were hurt late Thursday afternoon.

Selma Chalpin was hurtled into the air when the car, whose driver had deserted the wheel in a spectacular leap to escape pursuing police, crashed into a car parked at the curbing at East Fair and Chapel streets, in which the child was seated.

Policemen "flushed" the liquor car at the corner of Mangum and Davis streets, and dashed after the machine, which drove out Peters street at high speed. Seeing that he was about to be overhauled, the driver, Joe Wray, 42, of College Park, jumped out while his automobile was running at a speed of more than 30 miles an hour, police say.

The driverless car zig-zagged down

OPPORTUNITY'S KNOCK

Belief

Belief is the mainstay of accomplishment. Faith is a stimulant. The man who wins is the one who has believed in victory all along.

Doubt says: "Stay where you are—or you may be even worse off." Fear says: "Disaster is probably waiting around the corner." But belief says: "You can go anywhere that you think you can."

It's not hard to pick out the men who believe in their work, in other men, and in themselves. They're setting the pace in honest achievement. They're following the right visions of development. They've turned toward success.

Iowa Republicans Reserve Decision As to Brookhart

Senator Expected To Fire Another Bomb at G. O. P. in Speech Today.

Des Moines, Iowa, October 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—Members of the republican state central committee held a four-hour session here this afternoon and adjourned until tomorrow morning without taking any action upon the alleged affront by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, republican of this state, who in a letter to National Chairman Butler, asked that Charles G. Dawes be requested to withdraw as the party's vice presidential candidate.

"What action the committee will take on the Brookhart matter at tomorrow's meeting cannot be predicted at this time," declared State Chairman B. B. Burnquist following today's conference.

Senator Brookhart is scheduled to deliver the opening speech of his campaign for reelection at Emmettsburg, Iowa, tomorrow. This speech has been heralded as the one in which the junior senator from Iowa will make public his views on the national ticket.

Shortly before adjournment of the central committee's meeting this afternoon, the state headquarters issued a statement announcing six speaking engagements in Iowa for Charles G. Dawes, the republican candidate for vice president, who was the target for Brookhart's attack on Tuesday night. General Dawes delivered several speeches from the rear platform of his special train today en route from Chicago to Kansas City. He did not mention Senator Brookhart by name in any of today's speeches, but he said that he had "fired into a flock of political pee-wits out here and some of the wounded birds are fluttering. Perhaps you can identify them."

BRYAN-LAFOLLETTE DICKERS CLAIMED BY G.O.P. MANAGER

Statement Also Charges Democratic-Independent Coalition To Throw Election Into Congress.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, October 2.—Two remarkable statements were made here by William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, upon his arrival after a month out in the country:

1. Evidence has come into his hands indicating a coalition between democrats and progressives for the purpose of combining to throw the election into congress.

2. Statements have reached him to the effect that some republicans favor joining with democrats to elect Davis if the contest goes to the house, in order to prevent throwing the election into the senate where Bryan probably would be chosen.

These two statements bring out into daylight the subject of many rumors of deals, trading and double-crossing which have been floating around among politicians for weeks. Recently Bryan was summoned to Chicago headquarters and it was said there was complaint that he was flirting too much with La Follette.

Expects Coolidge to Win.

Butler reiterated that he is confident Coolidge and Dawes will be elected outright.

"If the election goes to congress there will be chaos and disaster to business," Butler said. "I don't think any combinations against us will be successful. I have not changed my opinion that he will win by a straight out election."

Upon being questioned, Butler said he had discovered some evidence indicating that there is a coalition of democrats and La Follette independents in Iowa, and in some other states which he did not care to name.

Silent on Brookhart Letter.

"Such arrangements have been talked about, according to my information," he said. "The apparent purpose is not to have an election. The logical outcome of such a situation would be to throw the election into the senate. But I don't think the combination will be successful.

"I have heard it suggested that republicans would be willing to join the democrats in electing Davis if the contest goes to the house. But I believe we will have a decisive decision by the election of Coolidge at the polls."

Butler said he has not received the original of the letter from Senator

BIG GEORGIA VOTE URGED BY BAKER

An appeal to Georgians for not only the "old and traditional democratic majority in the November election, but for a democratic vote that will demonstrate to the nation that this state wishes to take up the task where Woodrow Wilson left off, and wishes to help the nation do what he would have done if he had lived" was made by Newton D. Baker, secretary of war during Wilson's administration, in an address Thursday noon to 300 members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Young Men's Democratic league.

In discussing the present presidential campaign, the distinguished visitor expressed supreme confidence in a democratic victory in November. He discussed attributes and qualifications of the three candidates, calling John W. Davis, democratic standard bearer, "a legislative and administrative giant—a diplomat of international renown and domestic experience, who inherits the spirit of a party that

Bootlegging 100 Per Cent "American Institution"

:: PFAFF SAYS FOREIGN INTERVENTION RESENTED ::

Brest, France, October 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—Bootlegging and rum-running are essentially American institutions into which the New York "rum ring" will permit no foreigner to intrude, Max Jerome Phaff told traveling companions on a Southampton-London train last August, according to affidavits filed with Commandant Fournier, of the French naval corps, which is investigating the Mulhouse piracy. Phaff is charged with complicity in this piracy in which the French steamer was looted of 36,000 cases of whisky off the Canadian coast last July.

"I am one of the kings of the American bootleggers," Phaff is quoted in the affidavits as informing his fellow travelers. "We don't want any foreigners norning into this business. We just wanted to give these Frenchmen a good lesson."

"The lesson," according to the affidavits, which the rum runners wished to teach the French, was administered in the piracy of the Mulhouse.

Termed Bravado.

Commandant Fournier, after reading the affidavits containing the alleged remarks of Phaff, said he was inclined to believe that the defendant was somewhat boastful on that occasion and that instead of being a "king of the bootleggers" was merely "a very small cog in the huge machinery of American rum running."

The magistrate said that, from the information held in his court, a man by the name of Adelmann, of New York city, is the man "higher up" who furnished funds in unlimited amounts for the smuggling of liquor into the United States on a big scale. Phaff has refused to discuss Adelmann and the latter's identity is somewhat hazy.

Magistrate Fournier says that, according to information he has received, the purpose of Phaff's recent trip to Europe, which was concluded by his arrest, was the purchase of 75,000 pounds worth of whisky in England. The magistrate said his information was to the effect that the liquor bought by Phaff in England was either bound for America o had just been landed in United States territory during the last day or two. Phaff was hurrying home on the Leviathan when he was arrested September 16 on the piracy charge. The magistrate said:

Fears for Profits.

"According to the information which we have obtained, Phaff was anxious to arrive in America in time to take delivery of the liquor cargo which had been purchased in England. Now Adelman or his agents will receive the shipment and the defendant fears his share of the profits in the enterprise will be lost. Phaff told me 'my share of this profit amounts to $35,000'."

The magistrate said he replied to Phaff: "Just cable Adelmann to deposit that amount with the French consul general in New York and I will let you out on bail immediately."

The sworn statement of one Captain Walters that Phaff offered him $10,000 to "pull off" the Mulhouse piracy is, besides Phaff's alleged confession, the only additional evidence connecting the defendant with the charge of being an instigator of the piracy. Walters' statement declares he refused Phaff's offer because he had a wife and child and considered the undertaking too dangerous. Walters now is said to be a co-defendant with a Captain Ford before the Montreal courts on the charge of piracy in connection with the looting of the ship Lutzen which belonged to Phaff and Adelmann.

Phaff has told the French court that his arrest and detention here were for the purpose of preventing him appearing as a witness in Montreal.

WORLD OF CHAOS SEEN AS RESULT OF LEAGUE'S FALL

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, October 2.—The old order has always been a breeder of chaos, Thomas Branch McAdams, of Richmond, Va., former president of the American Bankers' association, told the association at the close of its 50th annual convention here today.

"From a cold business standpoint," Mr. McAdams continued, "we find ourselves a nation with $10,000,000,000 of past due and unfunded accounts receivable. What chance have we to collect this principal or interest unless we assist in the rebuilding of the business of our debtors, that they may be restored both in spirit and financial strength to such an extent as will enable them to make a satisfactory settlement?

"The energy spent by the Dawes committee will have been wasted unless there can be created a reasonable confidence in the stability of European affairs through the elimination of the possibility of war.

Fall of League Means Chaos.

"Yet it is not a far cry from Dawes to dawn. The Dawes plan may become in reality the dawn of a new era, if America will but take her place at the side of other nations in carrying forward the work of the world in the day now breaking.

"If the League of Nations fails in its infancy, we have no alternative but to return to the old order. One of the greatest of English bankers told me recently in London, that while England had not been particularly enthusiastic about the league when it was originally suggested, he now felt that if the league should fail, world chaos would be inevitable.

"World chaos includes the United States, no matter how isolated we conceive ourselves to be."

Strikes Confidence Note.

A note of confidence in the business future of the next few years, with a word of caution about the part the bankers must pay in the prosperity, was sounded by George Woodruff, of Chicago, in an address before the clearing house section.

"Now that we are a creditor nation," said Mr. Woodruff, "the purchase o fforeign investments is essential, in order that our tariff may continue to operate to our advantage.

"After practically all the great wars of modern times we have found that the countries that suffered the most in the war became more prosperous within a decade than the countries that suffered the least. This has been due, of course, to the fact that the countries that suffered the most came out of the war with their costs reduced and their labor wages at a low point, while the countries that

TRADE CONGRESS SPEAKERS PLEAD FOR PAVED NATION

Consular and Diplomatic Representatives Present Special Plans at Second Day's Meeting.

The trinity of transportation—waterways, railways and highways—and all problems connected with them, were analyzed and discussed in detail at Thursday's meetings of the Pan-American Commercial congress in session at the Ansley hotel.

Noted international authorities spoke before each of the three sections of the transportation division, pointing out the relationship of railways, highways and inland waterways to the commercial progress of any nation. Improved roads to open ports and railroad centers of all sections for greater exports and imports, it was shown, is the nation's first and greatest need in furtherance of greater commercial development lies in "a paved America."

Georgians took an active part in the waterways division, and Fred Warde, of the Brunswick board of trade, and J. B. McCrary, of Atlanta, chairman of the Georgia canal commission, were among speakers who urged more intensive development of both inland and seaboard shipping facilities for this state. Mr. McCrary pointed out the great advantages to be derived from the proposed St. Mary's-St. Mark's canal, which would connect the South Atlantic ocean with the Gulf of Mexico.

Road Officials Speak.

Colonel Benehan Cameron, president of the Bankhead National Highway association, and J. A. Rountree, of Birmingham, director general of the United States Good Roads association, were principal speakers at Thursday night's meeting, which was devoted largely to the highway division. J. David Woodside, New York cotton merchant and member of the federal foreign trade council, who was unable to reach Atlanta in time to participate in the banking program on Wednesday, also spoke Thursday night.

With Thursday morning's program given over entirely to discussion of waterways, and with highways occupying the night meeting, practically the complete afternoon was devoted to railway problems. The program was participated in by a dozen general freight and passenger traffic officials representing practically every important railroad of the south.

The following communication received by Dr. Clarence J. Owens, who is presiding at all sessions of the congress, was received Thursday from President Coolidge, and was read at the afternoon meeting:

"Please communicate my greetings and assurances of profound interest to the delegates who are assembled for the Pan-American Commercial congress. I sincerely hope its delib-

LEAGUE PROTOCOL TO ABOLISH WARS URGED ON NATIONS

CHINESE DELEGATES WALK OUT OF MEET

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Geneva, October 2.—The fifth assembly of the league of nations ended its labors today by unanimously adopting a resolution recommending that all states accept the protocol of arbitration and security.

Apart from the elaboration of the protocol for the peaceful settlement of international disputes, the outstanding feature of the sessions was the insistence of the delegates that economic problems, popularly regarded as belonging exclusively to the domestic jurisdiction of states, must be solved on an international basis, if all causes of war would really be removed. This insistence was voiced by several speakers, especially those representing France; it is implied in the protocol itself, and for a time dominated the discussions of the European jurists as they strove to fashion a pact which would not unduly alarm all nations which jealously guard the doctrine of states' rights.

Idea of Pact Explained.

The idea behind the movement, as explained to The Associated Press' correspondent by the jurists tonight, is that the league of nations, having decided to outlaw all war, must logically turn its attention to all possible causes of conflict and endeavor to eradicate them. Fed by the growing spirit of internationalism, as a complement to nationalism and state sovereignty, the jurists contend that world opinion now demands that certain vital problems affecting the world as a whole, such as immigration and equitable distribution of raw materials, can no longer be left to the exclusive control of any state or states, but must be examined with a view to their equitable settlement in the best interests of all, so that economic causes of war may be eliminated.

Admit Delicacy of Problem.

All the jurists admitted the delicacy of the problem involved and emphasized that it must be attacked with the greatest caution and after scientific study. They were of the opinion that it would probably furnish one of the great features of the proposed codification of international law under the auspices of the league of nations, which the assembly has decided to authorize.

Kind words for America and Americans marked the memorable clos-

MASS 20,000 MEN TO HIT SHANGHAI

Attacking Generals To Direct Smash at Trenches Defended by Only 6,500 Soldiers.

Shanghai, October 3.—(By the Associated Press.)—Twenty thousand men under command of the Kiangsu province generals attacking Shanghai are being massed on the Shanghai-Hangchow railway line south of Sungkiang, 28 miles southwest of Shanghai, in preparation for a major engagement there.

This information was contained in apparently authentic reports from Sungkiang, normally a city of 50,000, received in Shanghai this morning. The Chekiang defense forces south of Sungkiang entrenched and waiting for the Kiangsu attack, were said to number about 6,500.

Interest centered today on the expected outbreak in the Sungkiang sector, the other fronts near the city and to the west and northwest, remaining comparatively quiet, as they did yesterday. Only sporadic machine gun and rifle fire showed that the rival armies were unceasingly vigilant.

Bacon Jailer Foils 2nd Try At Jail Delivery

Alma, Ga., October 2.—(Special.) The second attempt of Carlton Johnson and Olin Wages, escaped Coffee county convicts, to flee Bacon county jail in less than a month, was frustrated here tonight and the men are under heavy guard awaiting the arrival of Judge J. I. Summerall, who will open a special term of court to try them tomorrow.

Johnson and Wages escaped from Bacon jail on the night of September 21, on the eve of their trial for an alleged assault on Wash Nelson, Bacon citizen, said to have been made while they were sought as escaped convicts from the Coffee county gang. Tomorrow charges of shooting Lee Taylor, guard, who foiled the delivery tonight, resisting arrest and the Nelson attack will be considered by the grand jury. Wages faces charges of wounding Sheriff J. W. Goode and Deputy J. H. Thomas when he was recaptured on the night of September 26.

Taylor was ordered to put his hands up, and when he hesitated, was shot through the foot, as two pistols were leveled at him by the prisoners, according to his version of the escape attempt. He said that he was forced to give up the keys of the cell, but that he managed to free himself when they tried to tie him up. He jumped on the top of the cage and covered the men, forcing them to throw their guns out of the window.

Officers believe that the firearms were furnished the men by outsiders, and an investigation is being made.

SMITH AND DAVIS APPEAR TOGETHER ON GOTHAM STAGE

Governor and Nominee for President Open Campaign in New York as Real Stumpmates.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

New York, October 2.—John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, speaking in historic Madison Square Garden, where he was nominated last summer, tonight was given a rousing demonstration when he promised to take off "his coat, vest, tie and whatever else was serviceable to help elect Al Smith governor of New York state." Mr. Davis made the statement after thanking Governor Smith for the promise the latter made at the national convention that he would take off his coat and vest and work for the election of the nominee.

Mr. Davis and the governor, entering the hall together, were greeted by a flag-waving crowd that filled every seat. It was the opening gun of the democratic campaign in this city.

Praises Al Smith.

"Men make records in this world sometimes by speed, sometimes by delay," Mr. Davis said in his address, "but I can claim the proud distinction that it took longer to nominate me than any man ever named for the presidency. As I think of that convention scene, my friends, I cannot help thinking of some of its closing moments, when a great man and a great democrat, the favorite son of the great state of New York . . . like a great gentleman and a great sportsman, stood on this platform and pledged his allegiance to the nominee of that convention and promised to take off both his coat and vest in his behalf.

"And I have come to you tonight with the promise on my part to take off my coat and my vest and my collar and my tie and as much more as will be serviceable to help reelect Al Smith."

Mr. Davis said he brought a message of "democratic unity and harmany of democratic attainment and purpose that stretches from New York to the Rocky mountains and beyond."

Leaves Roosevelt to Smith.

"The democracy of this country," he declared, "knows it can win this battle this year if it has—and I am sure it has—the will to win it."

Referring to the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt, republican candidate for governor, Mr. Davis said:

"I propose to leave him to be dealt

WOMEN LEAD ATTACK ON SUPERINTENDENT

Sensational Evidence Brought Out at Hearing Will Be Refuted, Defense Attorneys Declare.

Sordid pictures of conditions surrounding aged Confederate veterans, some feeble and sick, others dying unattended, while negro orderlies slept, were painted by witnesses Thursday at the opening of an investigation of the Old Soldiers' home before a special legislative committee appointed by a resolution passed by the last general assembly.

It is probable that the probe will not be concluded until some time Saturday, it was stated Thursday by Dr. W. K. Smith, of Bryan county, chairman of the committee, at the end of the first day's session at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Together with charges of inhuman neglect of inmates were added sensational charges of graft, hurled at Captain W. E. McAllister, superintendent of the home, by the Atlanta and Fulton county chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, who are responsible for the legislative investigation.

Charges Are Outlined.

When the committee opened the hearing at 11:30 o'clock Thursday morning, Frank A. Hooper, Jr., attorney for the United Daughters of the Confederacy, in response to a demand from the defense, carefully outlined his case and told what he expected to prove. When the day session was concluded witnesses for the prosecution were on the stand. It is expected that defense witnesses will offer testimony at today's session which begins at 9:30 o'clock in the house of representatives chamber.

Mrs. E. B. Williams, of 56 East Georgia avenue, past president of the Fulton chapter, U. D. C., told of how she accompanied Mrs. McMaster, of Waynesboro, to the home to see a veteran named Lewis, who was critically ill.

Found Man Dying.

"On the afternoon of October 15, 1923, we called and found him in a dying condition on the bed, the pillow and covers soaked in blood and the back of his skull crushed in from a fall from his bed. He managed to tell us that he had been alone all day. Later he was taken to the hospital, where he died," she said.

"McAllister said that the convict who was supposed to attend the feeble veteran was not on the job."

The next witness called was R. H. Harwell, of 153 Oglethorpe avenue, a nephew of W. S. Johnson, an inmate of the Old Soldiers' home, who testified that during Christmas week in 1923 he visited his uncle at the home, who was in a dying condition.

"I found his bed and bed clothing in a deplorable state and I had to search all over the home before I could find anyone who would help me to make him comfortable. At the end I discovered one negro man," he declared.

"'Where is everybody?' I asked him, and he answered that with some 35 people sick in the building he was the only one there."

The veteran died three days later.

Charges of Graft.

Turning from cruelty charges Attorney Hooper introduced evidence which he said would prove that Captain McAllister was operating a store and filling station on the premises of the home and operated them for personal benefit; that he cut timber from the property of the home, and had the lumber hauled to one house that his son was building, and another that he was building himself, and that barbecued meat sent to the home for the inmates was made into sandwiches at McAllister's store, and the money converted to his own use.

An affidavit made by J. M. Boozer, of 262 Bryant street, was introduced in it Boozer said he made a contract for the timber on the home's property, part of which was to go to McAllister. He said he hauled part to McAllister's property. He hauled away sand, too, according to the testimony.

Raps McAllister's Son.

E. E. Mulkey, of 26 Woodlawn avenue, made an affidavit in which he stated that he often saw the Old Soldiers' Home truck haul wood, coal and timber to the home of McAllister's son. He said he saw two men working at the son's home and found out they were convicts assigned to the home.

T. R. White, a night watchman at the home and a veteran himself, was placed on the stand, and testified that he often found the hospital doors locked, and that on several occasions he had heard of patients falling out of the bed and being injured. He declared that there has been some improvement since last summer. It was then that the first charges were made against Captain McAllister.

On cross-examination by Attorney Harry L. Etheridge, who, with Attorney Edward W. Martin, is representing Captain McAllister, White stated that the rooms and beds at the hospital are clean and that the doctor makes a regular call once a week.

R. L. Hardwell, an Atlanta salesman, testified that he had an uncle at the home, who was so badly treated that he took him to his own residence on several occasions for medical attention. He stated that his uncle was found on the floor several times and nobody seemed to know whose duty it was to look after the veterans. The uncle died at the home, Mr. Hardwell said.

Pleads for Veterans.

After Mrs. Walter Grace, of Macon, state chairman of the U. D. C., had made a brief talk, in which she pointed out that the investigation was of state-wide import as far the U. D. C. was concerned, Mrs. John A. Purdue, president of the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., took the stand. Mrs. Purdue made a fervent plea for betterment of the conditions of the hospital at the Old Soldiers' home.

"It makes my heart ache when I see old, enfeebled veterans—heroes of the Confederacy—spend their dying days without being afforded all the comforts possible. Captain McAllister may be a competent manager for the home," she declared, "but he cannot look after the conditions in the hospital of the home as he should."

The defense has announced that testimony will be offered to refute charges made by representatives of the U. D. C. when the investigation is resumed this morning.

Following are members of the special legislative committee, who will report their findings back to the general assembly next session: From the lower house are Dr. W. K. Smith, of Bryan county, chairman; W. B. Bell, of Burke county; A. S. Camp, of Coweta county; J. A. Dixon, of Jenkins county; and Judge W. R. Jones, of Meriwether county; and from the senate, E. B. Latimer, of the 39th district; Frank S. Loftin, of the 37th district, and A. H. Henderson, of the 32d district.

MUSIC CLUB TICKET SALE WILL CONTINUE

Owing to continued demand for season tickets to the Atlanta Music club concerts, it has been found necessary to extend the sale now on at the Cable Piano company into next week, it was announced Thursday by Mrs. George Wight, president of the club.

Interest in these concerts, both the civic series at the auditorium and the series intime at the Woman's club auditorium, is not confined to Atlanta, Mrs. Wight states. The concert of Maria Jeritza, especially, is attracting many out-of-town music lovers who have already sent in their requests for tickets. When the beautiful diva makes her first Atlanta appearance, October 18, it is anticipated that not a seat in the auditorium will be left untaken.

Second only to Jeritza in interest is the concert of Jascha Heifetz, March 10, who it is pointed out, never plays to any but packed houses. John McCormack also isanother name with which to fill any auditorium of whatever size. His return to Atlanta on February 3 is not expected to be an exception to the rule. Other attractions in the civic series will be the two concerts of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, matinee and night, on December 11, and the joint recital of Harold Bauer and Pablo Casals on February 24.

Tickets for the three concerts of the series intime, at the Woman's club auditorium, including Albert Spalding, November 8; Myra Hess, January 10, and the Flonzaley Quartet, January 24, are $5.

What is said to be the costliest fruit in the world is the "etrog" or sacred Jewish citron, sometimes known as the paradise or Adam's apple, a single specimen of which would sell for as much as $25.

JURY DEADLOCKED IN ASSAULT CASE

After deliberating for more than twelve hours, the jury in the case of Robert Hill, negro, charged with criminally assaulting a young south Georgia woman, had not reached a verdict at an early hour Friday morning. Hill was placed on trial in Fulton superior court Wednesday, and the case was given to the jury at noon Thursday. Hill is now under life sentence for the murder of J. W. Culpepper, the young woman's escort on the night of the alleged assault.

Because the state feared mob violence, it is said, a change of venue was granted, and the trial brought to this court from Bibb county. Hill was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment in the Bibb county superior court.

The negro's arrest followed the shooting of Culpepper and the assaulting of the young woman in Central City park in Macon on the night of December 30, 1923. According to the young woman's story, she and Culpepper were seated in the latter's car when someone shot Culpepper from behind. She was then ordered to get out of the car.

The young woman told police that she walked a mile to a taxicab stand and was driven to the home of a friend, where she gave the alarm. The following day the young woman accompanied detectives to the scene and when Hill was seen crossing the railroad tracks nearby she screamed, "That's him," and fainted. Hill was arrested and trial and conviction on the murder charge followed.

Fair street and crashed into the car of David Chalpin parked in front of his store. The little girl was thrown several feet in the air. Wray was caught after a short chase and placed under $300 bond. Forty gallons of whisky were found in his wrecked car, according to police.

Police Seek Driver.

Charles Tyler, 7-year-old boy, of Inman Park, is near death at Grady hospital, another victim of an alleged speed maniac who refused to stop after crushing his body to the pavement as he crossed the street in front of his home late Thursday afternoon. The boy suffered a fractured arm, cuts and bruises and probable internal injuries.

There were no witnesses to the accidents and police have not been furnished with a description of the car or the driver, which is reported to have increased speed and disappeared.

Little Sarah Cochran, who was run down Wednesday afternoon in front of the residence at 396-B Luckie street, is in a precarious condition at Grady hospital, although slight improvement in condition was noted Thursday night.

The little Cochran girl was injured when an automobile operated by T. A. Schultz, of 73 Williams street, struck her body as she ran across the street. Mr. Schultz was released on $2,000 bond.

THREE NEGRO YOUTHS ARE FATALLY HURT.

Three young negro boys were fatally injured Friday night when they were crushed beneath the wheels of a heavy truck.

John Swan, 10, of 274 Frazier street, suffered a fractured skull and fractures in both legs; Clarence Cooksey, 11, of 207 Frazier street, sustained a fractured skull, and his younger brother, Joseph Cooksey, 9, had both legs broken and his skull fractured. The three boys were taken to Grady hospital, where little hope is held out for their recovery.

The driver of the truck, Elgin Glenn, a negro, fled, but was later arrested by Call Officers Johnson and Maddox. He was held without bond pending an investigation.

According to witnesses, the three boys were riding on an improvised "coaster" when they collided head-on with Glenn's truck. The accident occurred at the intersection of Clarke and Martin streets, the foot of a steep grade.

Unable to bring the "coaster" to a stop or swerve it from the path of the oncoming truck, the three boys were dashed with terrific force under its wheels.

Among the new members was Jack Reddick, well-known boxer, who has become very popular in Atlanta since deciding to make the city his permanent home, and many Maccabees will be at the Auditorium next Tuesday night when he climbs into the ring with Harry Fay, of Louisville, Ky.

C. G. Allen, councilman-elect, headed the degree team last night, and visitors from several other lodges in different parts of the state praised the work of the degree team.

POLICE SHAKE-UP REPORTED ON FOOT

A general shake-up in the police department was forecast Thursday by observers following a series of transfers and changes in the detective department in which A. Lamar Poole, prominently mentioned a short time ago as successor to former Chief of Police James L. Beavers, was transferred from plainclothes to the uniform squad.

Poole and his partner, S. A Smith, were "busted" in a meeting of the police committee Wednesday night and ordered to an isolated "beat" in Atlanta's darktown. The two men for some time have been in plainclothes, assigned to automobile theft cases.

Suspension of Patrolman I. H. Lindsay on charges that he participated in a recent political campaign while a member of the police department occasioned considerable discussion Thursday. Lindsay charges that members of the police committee are doing "spite" work because he worked against them or their friends in the last city primary. Lindsay alleges that J. A. Beall, defeated in the race for council in the primary, is responsible for his dismissal. Charges against Lindsay are being investigated.

Other changes and transfers of less significant nature were announced Thursday morning in an order read by Acting Chief of Police E. L. Jett.

"Politics" Denied.

Members of the committee denied that politics played any part in the shakeup, Chairman Ed H. Inman stating that as far as he knows the changes had "no political significance" and that he did not know how members of the department affected by the order voted in last month's election.

He declined to make further comment, saying: "We made a lot of changes and I suppose everybody is hollering about it. Our only purpose was to improve the efficiency of the department."

Poole also was non-committal when notified that he had been assigned to uniform duty on the "Brooklyn beat," located in the heart of Atlanta's darktown. He stated that he was a patrolman on a beat for five years before entering the detective department and pointed to his record as proof that his work has been even more than satisfactory since being transferred to the detective department.

Poole Cites Record.

He claimed that, with his partner, he has recovered stolen property valued at $22,000 during the past 60 days and has convicted seven notorious highwaymen and burglars. He also pointed out that during the seven months in which he and his partner have been assigned to automobile theft cases, they have recovered more than 140 stolen cars.

Lindsay charges that his suspension was ordered because he supported Councilman J. A. Beall's opponent in the city primary last month. Beall, who is a member of the police committee, was defeated for reelection. It is charged that during the campaign, Lindsay made a speech in which he accused Beall and Ed H. Inman, chairman of the police committee, of disposing of important business without a quorum.

Lindsay Outspoken.

"I am a citizen, and I have a right to support anyone I wish," he stated. "I can't be muzzled even by the police committee. Of course, I didn't support Beall."

Othe changes in the department's ranks include:

Patrolman E. F. Davis named to succeed Poole.

Lieutenant T. O. Sturdivant, for the past two years a member of the plainclothes squad, ordered to duty as station lieutenant, to be succeeded by former Station Lieutenant J. A. Hollis.

Plainclothes Officer H. E. Holley, for the past eighteen months assigned to automobile cases, placed on uniform foot duty.

Patrolman Joe Allen, of the day watch, transferred to the morning watch, and Patrolman H. D. Freeman was ordered to the Peters street beat on the morning watch.

J. H. Doyal and H. T. Brown were transferred from detective to uniform duty.

Other changes announced were: Patrolman E. H. Bentley transferred from duty in the twelfth ward to the fifth ward; Parrolman Louis Zent transferred to plainclothes; J. F. Doyal, clerk in the detective office, transferred to uniform duty; Patrolman S. C. Schillings to succeed Doyal; Patrolman L. A. Rivers assigned as bailiff in the recorder's court, succeeding H. L. Turner, assigned to foot duty; Call Officers C. M. Hajos and John Wood removed from call duty; J. H. Norris, on duty in the recorder's court, assigned to the juvenile court to succeed J. N. Starnes, ordered back to the uniform duty.

Officer Claude Carrol, a supernumerary, was made a regular member of the force, succeeding J. A. Brown; J. E. Patterson was elected signal operator, succeeding J. O. Lester, resigned; L. F. Alford was promoted to regular duty, succeeding J. W. Boozer, deceased; W. F. Puckett was transferred to the evening watch; M. L. Rivers was promoted to regular duty, taking the place of J. E. Patterson.

COUNCIL GRANTS ZONING CHANGES OF MINOR NATURE

Following a compromise between petitioners and opponents, after a long and heated argument, the ordinance committee of city council Thursday voted to recommend change of Summitt avenue, from Highland to East avenue, from a white residential section to an undetermined district, permitting both white people and negroes to establish residences. The change already had been recommended by the city planning commission and will be presented Monday for approval of council.

It was claimed by petitioners asking the change that almost as many negroes as white people now reside in the district, and under the zoning ordinance negroes now living there cannot be ejected.

However, Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward, who represented opponents of the change, promised to begin steps in council immediately toward closing of East avenue, which now is an outlet from Summitt avenue to Jackson street, and the closing of which, it is thought, will prevent the influx of negroes.

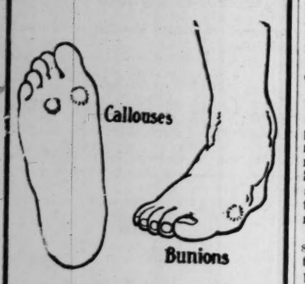

After presentation of claims by both sides opponents of the change agreed to consent to the recommendation if petitioners offered no objection to closing of East avenue.

Another argument arose on a petition asking that the southwest corner of the intersection of Boulevard terrace and Glen Iris street be changed from a residence to business district. After hearing arguments of a large delegation opposing the plan, which also was headed by Mr. White, the committee voted to recommend its refusal.

If council approves another recommendation of the ordinance committee the Highland avenue apartment section will be extended to St. Charles avenue, as the committee recommended change of the west side of Highland avenue between Ponce de Leon and St. Charles avenues from a residential to an apartment-house zone.

Refusal was voted on petitions asking changing of a triangular parcel of property at Lawton, Mathews and White streets from a residence to a business district, and that the same change be made at the northeast corner of Cascade avenue and Beecher street.

EXECUTE SOLDIER FOR IMBRIE DEATH

Washington, October 2.—The state department was notified by cable today of the execution by a firing squad at Teheran, Persia, of Private Morteza, Persian army transport corps, convicted by court-martial of having been implicated in the murder of American Vice-Consul Robert W. Imbrie. The execution occurred this morning at the Kasr Kadjar barracks, just outside of Teheran, and "in the presence of the entire garrison."

An interpreter from the American legation witnessed the shooting of the soldier, who was arrested soon after the attack on Consul Imbrie and tried before the special military tribural which investigated Imbrie's death at the hands of a fanatical mob on July 18. Morteza was sentenced to death on August 8, the specific offense of which he was convicted being announced as follows:

"Having incited the mob to kill Vice Consul Imbrie, having disregarded the orders of Second Lieutenant Mustapha Khan and the non-commissioned officer, Mohammed Ali Khan, who three times ordered him to desist and pulled him out of the mob, and having nevertheless persisted in attacking."

INDEPENDENTS PLAN DRIVE IN NEW YORK

New York, October 2.—With democratic and republican forces already beginning their heavy drives on New York state, leaders of the independent movement announce that they will throw their heaviest batteries of speakers into the state in an effort to carry it for La Follette and Wheeler.

This apparently makes it certain that New York state during the national campaign will be the most hotly contested point in the country.

Western senators, congressmen and citizens will have a prominent place in the speaking schedule, which is to run through October, according to Arthur Garfield Hays, state chairman of the La Follette campaign.

Senator Lynn Frazier of North Dakota will lead the invasion, speaking at Buffalo and two neighboring cities October 11, and elsewhere during the two following days. Governor Blaine of Wsconsin will follow, speaking at Utica on October 18, and Congressmen Frear and Cooper of Wisconsin and Philip La Follette, son of the presidential candidate, are expected at the same time.

Malcolm R. McAdoo and the Rev. John Haynes Holmes are scheduled for later meetings. Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, will begin a 10-day tour Friday.

Twenty-five up-state cities are included in a tour for Oswald Garrison Villard and J. A. H. Hopkins.

SMITH TYPEWRITER CONTROL IS SHIFTED

Syracuse, N. Y., October 2.—Control of L. C. Smith Brothers Typewriter company today passed to financial interests in New York city, represented by Ford, Bacon & Davis. More than $5,000,000 was reported involved in the deal.

The present name of the company will be retained. The concern's plant here turns out 50,000 typewriters a year.

W. L. Smith, president of the company, plans to withdraw from the typewriter business entirely, becoming actively associated with the Syracuse Trust company. Hurlburt W. Smith, secretary and treasurer of the typewriter concern, also will sever connections with the company, and intends to devote much of his time to furthering the interests of Syracuse university. Three other members of the family, all holding managerial positions in the company, will remain.

LA FOLLETTE TRIP TO START MONDAY

Washington, October 2.—La Follette will open his trans-continental speaking campaign at Rochester, N. Y., on Monday night, October 6. He had been undecided whether to begin there or at Baltimore. Other speaking dates announced previously are: Scranton, Pa., October 7; Newark, N. J., October 8; Detroit, October 9; Cincinnati, October 10; Chicago, October 11; Kansas City, October 13; St. Louis, October 14. The itinerary west of Kansas City will be announced later.

The bureau of standards has succeeded in producing films having a thickness of one-ten-millionth of an inch.

Dog Ownership Subject of Row In Supreme Court

New Orleans, October 2.—A dog that recently became the center of a court wrangle today enjoyed the distinction of being the object of an application to the supreme court of Louisiana for a writ of mandamus and the imbroglio in which he is involved has taken on an international slant.

Nizo, a German police dog, was the property of Senor Jean Vasquez Amor, Spanish consul in New Orleans. Early last month the consul sold him for $200 to Gabriel Diaz. Later he decided he wanted Nizo back and Diaz was agreeable, it was said. The purchase money was returned, it was alleged in a petition filed by Senor Amor, but Nizo was not forthcoming.

The consul obtained from Judge Cage, of civil district court, a writ of sequestration against Diaz. After further proceedings, Senor Amor applied to the supreme court for a writ of mandamus on the refusal of Judge Parker, in another division of the civil district court, to grant an appeal from a decision permitting Diaz to make bond for possession of the dog instead of turning it over to the civil sheriff pending settlement of the case.

JERSEY DEMOCRATS PLAN WET PLATFORM

Trenton, N. J., October 2.—Repeal of the state prohibition enforcement act, known as the Hobart law, as well as modification of the Volstead law, is flatly demanded in the tentative draft of the democratic platform made public here today. The platform will be acted upon by the state convention when it reconvenes here next Tuesday.

Repeal of the Blackwell easy divorce law, permitting divorces on the ground of extreme cruelty in six months, is also promised.

Mineola, N. Y., October 2.—Confirming reports of a second large jewel robbery in homes of hosts of the Prince of Wales during his recent visit to Long Island, John Sanford, clubman, has admitted to District Attorney Weeks that $50,000 in precious stones were stolen from his home.

The robbery occurred last Sunday night, but repeated attempts by the police to interview Mr. Sanford brought only the answer that he desired no publicity in connection with the case.

He was served with a subpoena yesterday which would have required him to tell of the robbery before the grand jury, but his appearance before the district attorney obviated this necessity.

The case resembles the robbery of the home of Joshua S. Cosden, oil man, when Mrs. Cosden, Lady Mountbatten and Mrs. Richard Norton lost jewels valued at $150,000. Lady Mountbatten and Mrs. Norton were members of the party of the Prince of Wales.

SLAYS HUSBAND WITH ICE PICK; FREED BY JURY

Pittsburg, October 2.—Justifiable homicide was the verdict of a coroner's jury today in the case of Mrs. Margaret Elizabeth Gardner, who stabbed her husband with an ice pick last Saturday night. The jury held that she acted in self-defense and the woman was discharged. Edward R Gardner, the husband, was a well-known business man.

$50,000,000 BOND ISSUE IS OFFERED

New York, October 2.—Flotation of a $50,000,000 issue by the Pennsylvania Railroad company, proceeds of which will be used to retire a part of the 6 per cent bonds now held by the director general of railroads, was announced tonight. Since the new bonds bear a 5 per cent coupon, it was said that a substantial reduction in the annual fixed charges of the company would result.

Offering of the issue will be made by Kuhn, Loeb & Company tomorrow, through a nation-wide syndicate. The bonds, maturing in forty years, will be priced at 98 1-2, to yield 5.10 per cent.

COOLIDGE RECEIVES PROTEST OF MINERS

Fairmont, W. Va., October 2.—In a telegram sent to President Coolidge today, officials of the United Mine Workers in the northern West Virginia field protested against what they said was an attempt by the Bethlehem Steel corporation to reduce wages and evict miners at Dakota and Barracksville, near here.

Grover Bergdoll Back in America, Believe Germans

Karlsruhe, Baden, Germany, October 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—Government officials here are inclined to believe that Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wanted in the United States for draft-dodging, has returned to America. The officials are basing their conclusions on his prolonged absence from Eberbach, where he has not been seen since April 6.

Bergdoll, who has been living in Germany since his sensational escape from the United States in May, 1920, was said to have left Eberbach on April 6 for a tour of Europe. He had been living with relatives in Eberbach. He has not been mentioned in dispatches from Germany since last May.

FLORIDA REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES IN RACES

Miami, Fla., October 2.—Dade county republicans have issued a call for a convention here next Saturday to nominate candidates for all county offices and to plan active participation in the fourth congressional district campaign. This was decided at a meeting here last night, presided over by E. E. Woolley, president of the Republican Club of Miami, who declared influx of republican residents from the north justified activity, adding, "the June primary demonstrated that there is considerable sentiment here in favor of republican principles." A meeting of republican women has been called for next Monday.

PLUNGE FROM STACK PROVES FATAL TO TWO

Greensboro, N. C., October 2.—James Waycaster, of Reidsville, N. C., steel worker, and Fritz Dietrick, South Richmond, Va., apprentice bricklayer, were killed today when they fell 225 feet from the top of the smokestack of the new heating plant of North Carolina College for Women here.

The men had volunteered to place a brass ornament on top of the newly completed stack, an extra hazardous job, and had gone on top by using the interior of the stack. Whether they lost their footing or the timber supposed to support them gave way is not known. One was instantly killed; the other died en route to a hospital.

POTHIER BORROWED PISTOL OF DOCTOR

Tacoma, Wash., October 2.—That he loaned Roland R. Pothier his pistol and ammunition on the morning of the day Major Alexander P. Cronkhite died from a bullet wound on the Camp Lewis reservation, was the testimony of Dr. George O. Kreutz, of Lacrosse, Wis., this afternoon in the trial in federal district court here of Pothier, who is accused of murdering the major.

Dr. Kreutz said that he did not accompany the party of soldiers on the march on which Major Cronkhite met his death and knew nothing of the circumstances surrounding the fatal wound received by the major.

Dr. Elmer W. Seaburg, of Peoria, Ill., at the time of Major Cronkhite's death a first lieutenant with the Two Hundred and Thirteenth engineers, testified he reached Major Cronkhite about the time he was breathing his last. He did not attend the major personally, he said, and did not know for ten or 15 minutes after he saw the major reclining, supported by Captain Robert Rosenbluth, that he had been shot.

James P. Crook, of New Bedford, another witness, who was a private in the Two Hundred and Thirteenth engineers, testified that he was marching at the head of the column when he heard two shots fired in the woods. Captain Rosenbluth was five or ten feet ahead of the column, he said, when the first shot was fired, and he declared that Rosenbluth started toward the place the sound was coming from immediately and was disappearing into the woods when the second shot was fired.

The question of jurisdiction, which it is expected later will bring about one of the biggest legal battles of the entire case, was brought up for the first time today. The contention that the federal court is not the court of proper jurisdiction and that therefore the cases, both of Pothier and of Captain Rosenbluth, should be dismissed is expected to be brought up by the defense after the prosecution has finished introduction of its evidence.

Hancock Citizens Plan Australian System In Coming Election

Sparta, Ga., October 2.—(Special.) Preparations are being pushed in Hancock county in order that the presidential election may be held under the Australian ballot system. The grand jury of the court has just adjourned recommended the use of the system, making the second successive action in favor of the measure, and thus, making it a law.

JAPAN AND MEXICO TO SIGN NEW PACT

Mexico City, October 2.—It is learned from a source usually reliable that Mexico and Japan expect to sign a revised treaty of amity and commerce during the month, possibly by mid-October.

The Japanese minister has been a frequent visitor to the office of Secretary of the Treasury Pani, and it is understood that he has been arranging details of the treaty.

BRYAN-LA FOLLETTE DICKERS CLAIMED

Brookhart demanding that Charles G. Dawes resign from the ticket. Meanwhile he declines to discuss the case, believing the matter is one for action by Iowa republicans. Butler said that contrary to current reports, his information is that Brookhart does not intend to declare for La Follette.

Assault Directed at Bryan.

Butler believes there has been a recession of the La Follette movement in various republican states which were uncertain ten days ago, but he still regards him as more formidable than Davis. Butler also advanced the assertion that in reality Charles W. Bryan is a candidate for the presidency, hoping to profit by a congressional deadlock.

"I would list the opposing presidential candidates in this order," he said. "Bryan, La Follette and Davis. The hope of the La Follette party and of the democrats is to prevent an election."

The paramount issue, he added, is the election of Coolidge.

The president, Butler said, will not make any speeches outside of Washington, and has no strictly political addresses scheduled. He may make several radio talks before election.

NELSON DENIES COALITION CHARGE.

Chicago, October 2.—John M. Nelson, national campaign manager for the La Follette-Wheeler ticket, denied today that any combination existed between the independent forces and the democratic party to throw the presidential election into the house.

CLAIM IS ABSURD, DECLARES DIXON.

Chicago, October 2.—Lincoln Dixon, western democratic manager, declared charges of William M. Butler, national republican chairman, in Washington today, that there is a democratic and La Follette coalition to force the presidential election into congress were not only "absurd, but untrue."

"There is no foundation for such a statement," said Mr. Dixon. "He is in desperate circumstances and is trying to make the business men believe that La Follette has a chance for the presidency in order to scare them to the support of Coolidge. As a matter of fact Davis has a larger number of certain votes in the electoral college than Coolidge and Davis' chances for election are much better than Coolidge's today. Any arrangement, direct or indirect, of any coalition with La Follette forces is not only absurd, but untrue. Davis is running as the democratic candidate and will secure the solid support of the democratic voters."

CHAOS WOULD RESULT FROM LEAGUE'S FALL

suffered the least came out with a burst of temporary prosperity and with costs and wages at a very high point.

Must Educate Labor.

"Our leading banks should attempt to inform labor of the impending economic changes and to explain the probable difficulties of the next five of 10 years, but at the same time state how by a universal understanding of the approaching difficulties and the exercising of good common sense on the part of our people the situation may be entirely reversed and prosperity retained, the history of the results of other wars to the contrary notwithstanding. If the problems before us are carefully explained to and thoroughly understood by labor, we may be able to reduce wages without waiting for a great business reaction to compel this readjustment. Such a readjustment should lead to a prompt reduction of freight rates, fuel costs and manufacturing expenses all along the line."

The place of the next convention will be selected by the new executive committee some time in December.

SOUTH'S BIG FAIR CLASSIC IS READY for the 50 or more fairs and shows held under the big Southeastern banner. From the yipping, yowling dog show to the mooing and lowing cattle assemblage they are all going to be "bigger and better than ever," and with many added prizes and many new exhibits and entries the agricultural shows and contests have attracted wider attention than ever before.

Farm Products Display.

While the practical side of farming and modern methods of agriculture will be widely featured portions of the exposition, extra care has been given this year to entertainment features, which will be more in quantity and possess a wider range of novelty than at any previous offering at Lakewood.

As in previous years the "midway" will be one of the outstanding points of entertainment and this year a ten-strike was made when the Rubin & Cherry shows, the sensation of the 1924 fair season, were booked, officials believe. This huge carnival comes to Atlanta at the psychological time when it has just absorbed the Smith Greater shows, one of the oldest and best amusement attractions in the country. The Rubin & Cherry organization closed the big deal last week and the additional Smith attractions are now en route from a Wisconsin fair to Georgia.

The Rubin & Cherry shows themselves, with some 30 attractions and a dozen new riding devices, are rolling toward Atlanta and will be ready to furnish amusement-lovers of the southeast with some of the newest sensations of the tented world during the present fair, it is declared.

Big Auto Races.

The automobile races staged at Lakewood park, which are among the most sensational in the country, will be strong features of the Saturday opening-day program. The track is in ideal condition, and as this track is one of the best in the world some new records in burning speed are expected by the racing fans.

This year the famous Red Hussar band, bringing a dozen or more solo features, will be one of the strong entertaining organizations. Special concerts Sunday afternoon and Sunday night will be offered. No admission charge is made Sunday.

Auto-polo, a heart-stirring sport, will be featured at both day and night programs. Some of the most famous automobile drivers of the country are in Atlanta now ready for the opening racing events and other auto contests.

Beauty Pageant.

The Passing Revue pageant is another new addition this year, which is attracting wide attention. The coming also of visiting beauty queens from all parts of the state is expected to add a graceful and colorful touch to the programs. The fireworks displays will be produced on a lavish scale this season and the dozens of other big entertainment features will round out the most popular entertainment program ever brought here, in the opinion of the officials.

Some 40,000 cases of minor "diseases" found in and around Atlanta schools have been at last diagnosed by physicians, it was announced Thursday night. The new disease is "fairitis" and school kids just can't sit still until Monday, which is school day at the fair. With Atlanta schools and Fulton county schools closed for the day, the total attendance is expected to run over the 100,000 mark Monday.

The flower show staged by florists and seedsmen of Atlanta is one of the new attractions at the fair this season and is expected to be one of the most popular.

"This floral show unquestionably is going to be one of the prettiest things ever seen here or anywhere else," President Mills said Thursday night. "This is going to be a real surprise and we want every person in this section to see it at least once."

Women Are Active.

Women also are preparing to take their part in the festivity and have arranged numerous events, which will be offered for the particular attraction of women visitors.

The jaunty and colorful horse show with its pretty entrants and attractive riders is expected to add to the enjoyment of this year's show.

With something like 40 or more different shows and contests going on all the time and with an array of entertainment unsurpassed in southern fair circles the officials announced Thursday night that the final touches Friday would round out an exposition which will hang up a new mark in southern entertainment annals and bring to Atlanta one of the greatest sequences of crowds in her history.

AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL SPONSORS NEW FEATURE.

Athens, Ga., October 2.—(Special.) The State College of Agriculture will sponsor the first Georgia school fair, which will open in connection with the Southeastern fair in Atlanta October 3. President Andrew M. Soule announces.

The fair, said to be unique in the south, will exhibit samples of the work and products of the agricultural and industrial schools under state supervision. Prizes will be offered for various products and for live stock owned by schools.

SMITH AND DAVIS APPEAR TOGETHER

with by Governor Smith, and I have the most confident assurance that that job will be fully and thoroughly done. . . . I should like to make something of a text of these words: 'The democracy in this state,' said the distinguished son of a distinguished sire, 'is of the same character as the national democracy. They will promise anything to please anyone. The democratic party promises, the republican party performs.'

"As I read that I said to myself, 'In the name of the prophets, there is need here for a history class.'

Recalls Promises of 1920.

"How many remember the glowing and brilliant promises that signalized the year in the campaign in 1920? Who was there in that year of grace who wanted a promise of anything that couldn't procure it? . . .

"It is not surprising that some of those promises, at least, the republican party did not perform. But one promise they made was performed in letter and in spirit. They promised to give to this country an administration of law in congress and in the executive chamber entirely different from the administration of Woodrow Wilson. That promise the American people know has been kept.

"Secretary Fall started with a grand alibi—he had $100,000 left him by a friend. And now I see in the public press that not only Doheny's satchel and Sinclair's $25,000 bonds found their way into his coffer, but there is $90,000 hidden away up in Canada, coming from the same fruitful source. Secretary Denby had his alibi. He was nothing but a rubber stamp and had nothing to do with the transfer of the naval oil reserves but to put his name to a paper that he knew nothing about.

"And there was another one. . . . an assistant secretary of the navy and his alibi was that he was nothing but a messenger boy.

And Yet More Alibis.

"Attorney General Daugherty had his alibi. And his alibi was that his right hand, Jess Smith, did not know what his left hand, Gaston B. Means, was doing. And then, that Means had repudiated, and after he had repudiated, he had repudiated his repudiation; and I assume in time you will have a repudidation of the repudiation of the repudiation.

"There is not much of an alibi about the sorry story of the veterans' bureau. Nobody yet has come forward. Nobody raises his voice to palliate or to excuse the grossest betrayal in my judgment of all."

After praising the record of the democratic party, Mr. Davis concluded:

"We want to see preserved in this country those immemorial rights that are summed up in the two magic words 'personal liberty': freedom of speech, freedom of conscience and religious faith and practice; the right of assembly, the right of trial by jury, freedom of the press, freedom against unlawful search and seizure—all that long calendar of things that distinguishes the free man from the slave.

"So long as the democratic party stands fast by the principles that gave it birth, so long as it stands ready to take up the challenge whenever it is thrown down, these rights and these principles will never in these United States lack for a defender."

Raps Republicans.

He scored the republican party and the present administration, charging that "President Coolidge is surrounded by men, who, with himself, are tied hand and foot until they cannot move as the consequence of the republican orgy."

Little attention was given to La Follette, who Mr. Baker ridiculed for his foreign policy.

He stated that the United States is now faced with an unprecedented situation, and that if the young men and women do not come forward to save the nation, dictators such as Mussolini and Lenin remain the country's only salvation from the chaos that has enveloped three-fourths of Europe since the war.

"To the young men and women belong the proprietorship and responsibility of the country," he said, "and it is they who must catch up the steps in which my generation lagged behind in safeguarding the world for democracy. The situation here is not critical, and I think that it is passing rapidly, but the breakdown of American morale and the moralities of the people resulting from the war must be dealt with."

War Bred Dangers.

"The war," he continued, "bred a wholesale disregard and callousness for law observance and the situation became so bad that societies had to be organized to secure enforcement of the law. In fact, for a long period, many people have thought that law and order were no longer the basis of civilized society.

"It is one of the duties and tasks of the younger generation to see that the institutions and agencies of government of this country are adjusted to the progress of civilization, and that truth, loyalty and honesty of conduct are not eradicated."

The speaker blamed the war for general conditions, stating: "So magnificent were the immoralities of war that people lost their capacity to be shocked. The entirely unselfish conduct of the people of this country during the splendidly dreadful war was wonderful, but when the strain relaxed, their moral tension was released." In connection with the war, he paid touching tribute to Woodrow Wilson as the greatest statesman of all times.

Returning to the republican administration he charged that the party abandoned all moralities and ideals and appealed to all the selfish impulses of the nation during the 1920 campaign. He described President Harding as "a splendid gentleman who was projected into an atmosphere which was pregnant with distrust and charged with driftwood and low-grade self-seekers in Washington such as never before had been assembled in the nation's capital.

Disgraceful Epoch.

"During the disgraceful epoch of three years executive and administrative acts were diverted and perverted by persons who none of us would take into our homes and whose conduct must be apologized for by the nation."

Discussing the presidential candidates in the present campaign, he said: "Mr. La Follette, even if he could be elected, would be able to do nothing, as neither house of congress is in sympathy with him. His only international policy is that he does not approve of the Versailles treaty, in which the United States took no part.

"President Coolidge's administration has been made impotent because the president and those around him are tied so tightly that whenever a progressive idea is advanced, some one whispers '7,000,000 majority,' and that stops the administration from further effort toward international cooperation and ties it to the consequences of the low political policies on which it gained its ascendency."

Davis is Knight.

Mr. Davis was described as "knightly in every way." His record in public life, as congressman, as solicitor general, and as a diplomat was reviewed, and Mr. Baker declared that he is in every way qualified for the office of president.

Mr. Baker came here from his home in Ohio to appear as leading counsel for the federal reserve board in the par clearance case now being argued before Judge S. H. Sibley. During the noon recess of court he was escorted to the chamber of commerce building, where the banquet was held, by Judge Sibley, B. P. Gambrell, newly elected president of the Young Men's Democratic league; Major John S. Cohen, national committeeman from Georgia, and Hollins N. Randolph, with whom he is associated in the case.

ing hours of the assembly—hours which the Chinese delegation made dramatic by getting up and solemnly walking out of the auditorium when the assembly refused to grant China a non-permanent seat in the council. China lost her seat last year to Czecho-Slovakia, but has steadily campaigned for its recovery. Her hopes of success were strengthened when the assembly recently adopted a resolution introduced by the Chinese themselves that in the distribution of the council seats, the main geographical divisions of the world, the chief religions and chief sources of wealth should be kept in mind.

China Got Only 14 Votes

This resolution was generally interpreted as meaning that the number of non-permanent seats, which are six, would be augmented so as to permit the return of China. Nevertheless today's election brought no change either in the number or the present holders of the seats. Brazil, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia, Spain, Sweden and Uruguay were all re-elected. China received only 14 votes, whereas the victors received from 27 to 40 votes.

The permanent members of the council are Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, with the likelihood that Germany will be added if elected to membership in the league.

Discussing the situation tonight, Dr. Chao Hsin Chu, the Chinese charge d'affaires at London, said that the delegation had acted not only in accordance with a resolution passed by the Pekin government, but also with the sanction of the foreign minister. Wellington Koo, who sent a cablegram to the league's general secretary warning that the Chinese delegation would withdraw if the demand for a non-permanent seat in the council was not met.

Charges League Failure.

Dr. Chu declared that China did not want to see the league as merely an European or western institution, and added:

"If we want to make this league really a league of all nations we must not be neglected."

In overlooking the geographic principle, which it itself endorsed, Dr. Chu charged that the league was not fulfilling its obligations. He went on to say that while China was admittedly in a weakened position today it would not always be so and that the league "worships force," and asked: "Then what is the use of the league?"

He indicated, however, that China's announcement of her withdrawal from the league, if it came at all, would not be immediate, since it would take time to consult the Pekin government and parliament and in the meantime the Chinese permanent representative to the league of nations would remain in Geneva.

AUSTRALIA TO REJECT PROTOCOL IS CLAIM.

Melbourne, Victoria, Australia, October 2.—Declaration that Australia will not accept a compromise reached by the league of nations on a demand by Japan for submission of racial disputes to arbitration was given to the public today by William Hughes, former premier of the commonwealth.

Premier Bruce promised a statement on the issue.

Mr. Hughes said it was evident that Japan was determined to bring under the jurisdiction of the league any action taken by another country against immigration by Japan.

The Evening Sun declared:

"We are no longer a free people if the deputy of the league of nations can say whether we are allowed to keep Australia white."

Australia, stated the Melbourne Herald, is not prepared to permit other nations to determine whether she shall remain a "white country" adding that unless the agreement reached means that Japan has abrogated her demands on an arbitration protocol, Australia cannot sign the document.

JAPS HAIL PACT AS DIPLOMATIC VICTORY.

Tokio, October 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Japanese press generally welcomes the Geneva protocol agreement reached by the League of Nations upon the insistence of Japanese delegates, characterizing the result as a diplomatic victory for Japan.

Kokumin Shimbun, an independent daily, asserts that the agreement marks progress towards a realization of Japan's stand for racial equality while the Jiji Shimpo, another independent sheet, says that objection of the Japanese delegates at Geneva to the original draft was not intended to bring up the question of immigration as is relates to Australia or the United States.

The Nichi Nichi says that the league has been saved for the service of the whole world by listening to the Japanese claims and thereby it has prevented its decline into a purely European organization dealing with local questions.

Armstrong's Linoleum
for Every Floor in the House

For the Smart Shop
A floor of Armstrong's Inset Marble Tile Inlaid Linoleum.

Today, the Smart Shop Has a Modern Linoleum Floor

THE decorative note which the modern floor of linoleum so clearly strikes creates a bright, new influence in any retail shop.

A store with all new goods looks like an old-fashioned, antiquated store if it has a worn, soiled, or shabby floor.

The modern shop is quiet, clean, and harmonious in its appointments and in its visual appeal.

These are exactly the qualities to be found in a floor of Armstrong's Linoleum. The color and pattern of a well-chosen floor of Armstrong's Linoleum give a feeling of unobtrusive elegance to your store. All linoleum is quiet, as you know, and restful to the weary feet of shoppers and store personnel.

An economical floor

Your janitor will bless such a floor. It is easy to clean and requires only waxing now and then to keep it looking its best year after year. It does not spot, stain, crack, or splinter. It never needs refinishing.

Of course a fine linoleum floor must be properly laid.

Laying linoleum for permanency

Good linoleum merchants and contractors lay linoleum floors according to definite specifications—that is, cemented down, not directly to the underfloor, but over a lining of builders' deadening felt which is pasted to the wood or concrete underfloor. Waterproof cement is used at the edges. Cold-weather contraction or hot-weather expansion will not stretch or crack this kind of floor.

Armstrong's Linoleum in all the finer inlaid patterns is designed and made with the expectation that it will be bought with an eye to its beauty, will be laid with the idea of permanency, and will be waxed and cared for as a fine floor should be.

Talk to a merchant or write to us

Your architect, contractor, or any good linoleum merchant can give you information on the economy of linoleum floors and their low upkeep cost. You can select a business floor of Armstrong's Linoleum from many colors and designs—plain colors, Jaspés (two-tone effects), tile inlaids, marble inlaids—in keeping with any type of business.

Our 48-page illustrated booklet, "Business Floors," will be sent you on request. It shows colorplates of Armstrong's Linoleum and gives specific directions regarding laying linoleum floors and their care.

W. J. BRYAN URGES CAUSE OF DAVIS

Chicago, October 2.—William Jennings Bryan today wired William Dixon, western democratic campaign manager, after a tour of 15 western states, that "our cause is growing and will continue to grow," and added that in the electoral college the fight is between John W. Davis and President Coolidge.

"Our cause is growing and will continue to grow," Mr. Bryan's message said. "The logic of the situation is with us. New factors created by the trend of events are arising daily to help us.

"It is unfortunate that there are two tickets representing a protest against the republican record and the republican candidate, but the logic of the situation is with the democrats.

"However much Mr. La Follette's followers may desire to see him president, they know that he has not the slightest chance in the electoral college. He cannot hope for even half of the necessary votes to give him a majority in the electoral college.

"In the electoral college the fight is between Davis, a progressive, and Coolidge, a reactionary.

"The democrats have nearly enough votes at present to elect, and the republicans nearly enough, with a few states now tied between the democrats and the republicans.

"Mr. La Follette's strength is very small and the uncertainties of the situation are many. No one can foretell exactly what the result will be, but either Mr. Davis, a progressive, or Mr. Coolidge, a reactionary, would be elected if the house elected at all.

"It is the part of wisdom for the progressives of all parties to unite on Mr. Davis and thus make the election in the electoral college. It is much better for the people to elect in the electoral college this year than to permit congressmen elected two years ago to decide the presidency for the next four years. This fact will become more and more evident as November draws near."

Interesting Questions

NOBODY KNOWS EXACT WEIGHT OF PACHYDERM

About Elephant Answered

That interesting beast—The Constitution elephant, upon whose mathematical form hinges $2,510 in cash prizes for Constitution readers—is just at present the center of widespread interest.

In proof of this fact, a woman, who says that she is planning to participate in the contest, Thursday wrote the contest manager a letter in which she asked a number of questions concerning the famous animal.

The first query she propounded was one that has been asked by hundreds of other people, viz.: "Will the correct answer to the elephant puzzle be placed in some secured vault in a sealed envelope and turned over to the judges so as to insure fairness to all contestants?"

No One Knows "Weight."

Here's the answer:

The exact "weight" of the elephant is not at the present time known to anyone. The drawer and maker of the cut knew the "weight" as he drew it, and no one else. When the cut was received by The Constitution several figures were chipped out. No Constitution employee knows the drawer's solution, and the drawer does not know what numbers were cut out by The Constitution, and will not know until after the closing date, November 8, when all solutions have been received and recorded. No one knows any more about what the correct "weight" is than the contestants themselves, nor will any one know until the drawer's total of figures is secured, and the numbers chipped off by The Constitution are substracted from the drawer's total.

With reference to that part of the question which dealt with the judges of the contest, it naturally follows that no judges will be required in this contest, but the total submitted by the contest which corresponds to, or is nearest, the total of the artist (the figures chipped off by The Constitution being deducted), will naturally and automatically receive first prize, and so on down the line of 30 awards. These awards range from $1,000 first prize downward through a series of big sums in cash to the thirtieth prize.

Fair Play Assured.

So far as the fairness of the contest is concerned, the reputation of over half a century of business integrity enjoyed by The Constitution guarantees that the utmost rigidity of square play will prevail at all times.

Other questions were asked in the letter from the interested contestant, and these will be dealt with in the columns of The Constitution during the next few days. All persons who are in doubt concerning points about the contest are invited to lay their problems before the contest manager, but careful perusal of the advertisements of the contest appearing in The Constitution daily should clear up any point of doubt.

In a full-page ad in this issue is shown The Constitution's elephant, and if you are not already enlisted in the interesting game and in line for one of the 30 cash prizes, don't fail to turn to it now and read all the particulars.

You'll find the elephant game an interesting and improving pursuit for these long fall nights. And a big cash prize awaits you if you're good at a simple process of addition.

TRADE CONGRESS SPEAKERS PLEAD

erations will promote every good and desirable interest in the relationship among the countries of the Americas."

"Regrets" already had been received from John W. Davis, democratic nominee, and President Zayas, of Cuba.

This morning's session will open at 9 o'clock with a meeting of the committee on resolutions, appointed Thursday night, and of which Colonel Benehan Cameron is chairman. Joseph A. McCord, of Atlanta, is vice chairman; C. H. Bishop, of Charlotte, N. C., secretary and Dr. Owens an ex-officio member.

Morning Session.

The regular meeting, which opens at 10 o'clock, will be devoted to consideration of general Pan-American and world relations. Among prominent speakers on the program are H. S. Cumming, surgeon general in charge of public health service under the United States treasury department; Dr. Franklin Martin, president of the American College of Surgeons; Miss Mary Boyce Temple, president of the woman's auxiliary of the Southern Commercial congress; Dr. Glenn Levin Swiggett, of the United States department of the interior; Dr. J. M. Waters, dean of Georgia School of Technology; S. Guyt McLendon, secretary of state of Georgia; Harry Hartwell, mayor of Mobile; Dr. John G. Harrison, professor of philosophy at Mercer university; G. H. Bishop, director of the American Industries Engineering company, and Mathew Hale, president of the South Atlantic Maritime corporation.

Delegates to the convention will be taken on a tour of industrial plants in Atlanta and environs this afternoon, the trip to be conducted under the auspices of the Georgia Manufacturers' association, and in charge of John W. Yopp, director.

The inspection will include the Ford company plant, Coca Cola company, Fulton Bag and Cotton company, Atlantic Steel company, and several other large industrial plants. A reception has been arranged at the Coca Cola plant, and refreshments will be served.

Colonel Cameron told of the great work done in construction of the Bankhead highway, which now winds across the continent from Washington to San Diego. He told of difficulties encountered and the years spent in completion of the project, all of which, he said, is heavily overbalanced by the great good which the road has done the nation in many ways.

State Roads Urged.

State and federal aid propositions first impressed the people with the absolute necessities of good highways, and he cited South Carolina, his native state, as an example of what the result has been.

Mr. Roundtree chose as his subject "Federal Aid for National Highways." Through that system, he contended, it is possible to have roads throughout the land, in fact, to have a paved nation.

He also spoke of the great influence of highway development on commerce, both foreign and domestic, and urged that every state in the union aid development of the nation by instituting extensive good roads programs.

Mr. Woodside, speaking on "Following the American Parallels of Longitude," explained that because the western coast of South America is almost parallel with the eastern coast of North America, with practically the entire southern continent located east of North America, a great problem confronting the United States is the interesting of peoples and nations of the western districts of South America in civilization and products of this country.

"At present," he stated, "shipping follows the coast line, which means that the only direct communication between eastern shipping ports of the United States and the western coast of South America is through the Panama canal. Naturally, this country has left comparatively uncultivated the western portions of South America."

Obstacles Pointed Out.

"Many obstacles must be overcome before relationships are what they should be, the chief one being diversity of languages, lack of rapid and frequent communication and transportation, and comparatively poor financial transactions."

A diplomatic session, attended by representatives of 12 foreign nations, closed the day's activities. Diplomatic and consular representatives, by special permission of their respective governments, addressed the congress, their subject being "The Commercial Relations of the Countries of the Americas as to Imports, Exports, Trade Balances, Barriers and Present Opportunities."

Salvador was represented by Dr. B. Arrieta Gallegos; Panama by Senor Juan B. Chevalier; Haiti by Leon Dejean; Peru by Senor Felipe Berteano; Chile by Senor Don Benjamin Cohen; Nicaragua by Senor Norberto Salinas; Bolivia by Dr. Javier Pas Campere; Colombia by Don Abraham Hartinez; Cuba by Dr. Luis Max Marina Perez; Honduras by Senor Antonia C. Orivera, and Mexico by Senor R. Cantu Lara.

Georgia Port Sites.

"Georgia has sites for three of the greatest ports of the world," declared Fred G. Warde, speaking at the morning session of "Georgia Port Facilities." "Brunswick, St. Mary's and Savannah provide facilities equal to any in the country," he said, "and if any other section of the country north of the Mason and Dixon line boasted of such natural harbors, congress would see to it that ports were developed equal to any in the world.

He emphasized the need of more and better ports on the south Atlantic in fostering trade relations between this country and South American nations, and dwelt on the absolute necessity of establishing a state port for Georgia.

J. B. McCrary outlined the advantages of cutting a new waterway through from St. Mary's to the Gulf of Mexico, and showed exhibits and told plans for the long-agitating of St. Mark's canal.

E. C. Plummer, vice chairman of the United States shipping board, and Captain F. T. Chambers, port consultant for the shipping board, and representatives of several Pan-American nations, were other principal speakers on the morning program.

Senor R. Cantu Lara, consul general of Mexico, speaking for the Mexican representatives, issued a statement in which he said that Mexico was confident of the result of the congress and was vitally interested in closer commercial contact with the whole of the United States.

Salvador Cooperates.

Calling attention to the shifting of the economic relations of Salvador from Europe to the United States and the fact that Salvador has obtained loans from American bankers, B. Arrietta Gallegos, vice consul and commercial attache of El Salvador, said that his government welcomed the opportunity to give her pledge that Salvador will cooperate in whatever binds closer the economic, social and cultural ties that unites the Americas.

Mr. Gallegos told of the heavy taxation the people of his country had imposed upon themselves in order to finance the construction of highways, railroads, schools, hospitals and public health administration.

Trade relations between the two republics, the United States of America and the Republic of Panama, will continue to increase in volume and the two nations will depend more and more upon each other, said Juan B. Chevalier, charge d'affaires of the Republic of Panama. There is a tie that binds the two nations together as the Panama canal binds the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, said Mr. Chevaler, who is representing his country at the congress.

The Panama representative said that his people could never forget the work of William Crawford Gorgas in stamping out, during the work on the canal, the yellow fever peril. He called attention to the fact that the Republic of Panama by way of tribute to Gorgas was to build the Gorgas institute, which will not only be a laboratory for scientific research, but a school of tropical medicine.

Morning Speakers.

Senor R. Canut Lara, consul general of Mexico; Senor Ulises F. Espaillet, of the Dominican republic; Consul A. Ramirez, of Salvador; Harry Reyner, honorary consul of Costa Rica; Benjamin Arrieta Gallegos, consul of Salvador; Francisco Espinosa, Jr., consul general of Nicaragua; Felipe Berteano, consul of Peru, and Honorable Barton Myers, consul general of Great Britain, all were on the program for addresses on the "Consulor Service as a Factor in the Development of Foreign Commerce."

Informal discussions of the railroad problems occupied the afternoon session. After an introductory address by Dr. Owens, the meeting was thrown open to discussion of railroad transportation, and an open forum held, which was taken part in by representatives of nearly all important railroads of the south, as well as by foreign delegates.

Among the most prominent railroad representatives in attendance were R. L. McKellar, foreign freight traffic manager of the Southern railroad; O. C. Olson, foreign freight agent of the Missouri Pacific; S. P. Stringfellow, assistant freight traffic manager of the Seaboard Air Line road; F. T. Alexander, division passenger agent of the Louisville & Nashville; J. F. Hartsough, division freight agent of the same road; H. G. McClain, of the Southern; C. I. Chesney, of the Wabash, and Garland Tobin, of the Missouri Pacific.

R. Cantu Lara, of Mexico; Don Benjamin Cohen, of Chile, and Dr. B. Arrietta Gallegos, of Salvador, represented their respective countries.

Dr. Owens sponsored a resolution inviting the Dominion of Canada to official membership in the Pan-American congress, and asking that a Canadian representative attend the next meeting. The resolution was referred to the resolutions committee.

Another resolution introduced calls for establishment of a permanent exhibit of southern products at all future meetings of the congress. The measure also was referred to the resolutions committee.

Committee Members.

The resolutions committee is composed of the following representatives, and will meet at 9 o'clock this morning:

United States members: J. David Woodside, Dr. A. M. Soule, J. A. and C. D. Rountree, B. C. Getsinger, W. A. Parsons, A. H. Baldwin, Mathew Hale, Harry Hartwell, Harvie Jordan, H. M. Negro Witness In Murder Case Is Shot to Death

Columbus, Ga., October 2.—A new chapter was written in the noted Will Willis whisky "tip" murder case, the trial of which resulted in a mistrial Monday, when Alto Passmore, negro, witness for the defense, was shot to death at his home in a negro quarter.

The slayer is at liberty. It is not known whether he was a negro or a white man. Passmore was called to the door by a man, whose identity is not known, and was felled by several pistol bullets. The assailant escaped.

It was pointed out tonight that the slain negro was a defense witness last week in the Willis trial, testifying as to the alleged bad character in Alabama some years ago of Mattie Green, wife of Will Green, negro, who Willis, a white man, was charged with slaying because of alleged whisky "tips" against him. The Green woman was the chief state's witness.

689,019 Votes From 18 States in the "Digest's" Nation-wide Poll Are Tabulated and Analyzed This Week

California a Hotly Contested Battle-Ground---The "Solid South" May Turn Tide for Davis

Interest in the "Digest's" nation-wide Presidential poll is mounting to great heights as the hundreds of thousands of votes are being received and tabulated weekly. An interesting side-light upon the La Follette strength and whence it is drawn is shown in the "Digest" this week by the opinions and observations of editors throughout the country, especially by those in California.

The "Digest" also carries a detailed record of the previous affiliations of those who vote in this largest of Presidential straw-vote polls, and this record is shown weekly in the tabulations. It will become increasingly illuminating as the vote mounts up. As the Richmond, Virginia, Times-Dispatch says, this poll "is an undertaking of real value." At its conclusion it should point unmistakably to the winner in the Presidential election in November.

THE PEACE PROTOCOL.

Without going into details as to the various covenants of the protocol agreed upon by the League of Nations for the outlawing of international war, the following terse, clear and definite agreement between the members is sufficient to show its enormous and splendid value to the signatory states:

"The signatory states agree in no case to resort to war, either with one another or against a state which, if occasion arises, accepts all the obligations hereafter set out, except in case of resistance to acts of aggression or when acting in agreement with the council or assembly of the League of Nations in accordance with the provisions of the covenant and the present protocol."

The other articles merely serve toward the setting-up of the machinery for arbitration, the relationship of the world court to the league, and the strengthening of the parent organization.

The United States, as a nation, will not be a party to this agreement. It seeks the peace of the world, it says, but it will take no part in pledging itself to help to that end by appealing to arbitrament rather than to the sword. It maintains that universal amity is the paramount ideal of Christian civilization but it refuses to cooperate toward the accomplishment of that ideal.

What consistency! And in the face of the fact that the Geneva covenant, signed by all of the great nations of the world except the United States, is the product of an American heart and soul and vision!

The isolationist, who feeds a political appetite on unrest and distress, is professing today to find comfort in the compromise reached at Geneva over Japan's partial success in winning a compromise in the league assembly on its immigration issue. The conclusion is too hasty and is nothing more than the father to the wish. The compromise amendment gives the right of appeal from any decision of the world court which may hold an issue to be one of domestic concern. The appellant may go to the council of the league and pray, not for a reversal of the decision, but for friendly intervention. In case this way to relief is not sought by the nation feeling itself wronged and if that nation refuses to follow the court's decision, it will be regarded as the "aggressor."

The fact is, and it is well known of all men, if it were not for the league, and for this friendly compromise, which may at first glance arouse criticism among the Caucasian nations, but which will in all probability be eventually ratified by all, the situation with regard to the racial issue between the Oriental and Occidental nations might become most serious and menacing. Japan is a nation of great and growing power. She is not to be blamed for standing whole-heartedly for what she believes to be her national rights. She has never made a demand, before the league or otherwise, for racial equality. She took issue with the exclusion act of the United States which violated and then abrogated a "gentleman's agreement" which should have been as sacred as a treaty. She had a right to feel aggrieved, and she would have been less than the power she is if she had not been.

Japan's every official movement has been one of cooperation, understanding and amity.

In the present instance the league has been the great force for the amicable settlement of an issue that has hovered over this nation like a black cloud for years.

And yet the United States remains callous to its obligations and duties in an issue in which it, more than any other nation, has deepest concern.

CONNOR REELECTED.

The unanimous reelection by the National Association of Securities Commissioners as vice president of the association at its recent meeting in Richmond, Va., was a merited honor worthily bestowed upon Mr. Connor, and upon the Georgia securities commission, of which he has been chief examiner since its organization.

The national association is composed of the officers of the various state securities commissioners throughout the United States, and its membership is composed of prominent men whose names have been long identified with financial leadership.

The rulings of the Georgia securities commission are recognized as authority by the various commissions, and its precedents have been almost invariably followed.

The functions of the commission are such as to make it practically impossible for the statutes controlling its operations to definitely circumscribe the field of its operations, and the Georgia securities commission has gained the confidence of all classes under its jurisdiction by the intelligence which has characterized its administration of the difficult duties it is constantly called upon to perform.

Prior to the organization of the commission, the people of Georgia had no adequate protection against the operation of unscrupulous representatives of "wildcat" concerns with the result that many reputable securities were subjected to distrust and suspicion born of unfortunate experiences with the agents or promoters of corporations whose plans were purely speculative and whose assets were mainly represented by attractively engraved stock certificates.

The first action of the Georgia commission was the formulation of reasonable rules intended and operating to discriminate between legitimate investments and "wildcat" concerns, and these rules as amended from time to time and intelligently administered by the commissioners have saved millions of dollars to Georgia investors since the commission was created.

In addition to the chairman, Hon. S. Guyton McLendon, who is peculiarly qualified for this important position, the commission is composed of the attorney general, Hon. George M. Napier, and the commissioner of commerce and labor, Hon. Hal M. Stanley, both of whom have brought their ripe judgment and experience to the assistance of the chairman of the commission in all matters affecting the public interest.

Much of the delicate and difficult work by which the board has been confronted has fallen upon the shoulders of Mr. Connor, who, as chief examiner, is required to investigate the details of all plans presented for the approval of the commission, and whose duties have been so faithfully and fully performed as to gain for him the merited confidence of the commission and of the public.

All of these duties have been so thoroughly performed that the Georgia securities commission is no longer regarded as a legislative experiment, but is accepted by the people of Georgia as an indispensable branch of the state administration.

JUDGE R. G. DICKERSON.

There will be deep regret throughout Georgia that Judge R. G. Dickerson, of Homerville, is dead. He passed away at a sanitarium in Atlanta Thursday, and the news of his death will be the first intimation that his multitude of friends, except those closest to him, will have that he had been ill.

The judiciary of Georgia has lost one of its ablest jurists; the bar one of its most profound members in the knowledge and advocacy of the law; the church a devout leader; the constructive thought of the state an outstanding example; the whole people a friend; the family a devoted husband and father.

Before named to the judgeship of the superior court, "Bob" Dickerson was one of the state's ablest legislators. He served in both houses and with conspicuous ability. Fair, honest, dependable, able—a builder and not a destructionist—he became a leader, and his devotion to his friends, in political and in personal life, was one of his many commendable characteristics.

Judge Dickerson was a man of sterling character, and of great usefulness.

The ancient mother-in-law joke bobs up every now and then, but no matter how they dress it up, we know the old lady by sight.

Since there's not so much talk as formerly about Evolution, we presume it is Evoluting in a fairly satisfactory manner.

Heaven help the poets that are trying to keep warm at the "fire of genius," in this unfeeling weather.

Every politician has a remedy for human ills—which should be well shaken before taken.

I'm better than the guv'ment man
In tellin' when it comes—
I'o look for East Winds blowin'.
Or thunder-beatin' drums;
I know it, I know it,
An' so I make my moans:
The rheumatism hits me
With the rattlin' of my bones!

An' so, I tell the people,
"You better all lay low,
It's either hell an' hurricanes
Or all-prevailin' snow!"

III.

I never was no weather clerk
On scientific lines,
But since the Lord afflicted me
I know the weather-signs;
For when the sky's a-cloudin'
I glimpse the trouble-train,
The rheumatism hits me
With the rattlin' o' the brain!

The Difference.

"It is a good thing," says The Valdosta Times, "for Paul Revere that he was a New Englander. If he had lived in Georgia he would not have been thought of again, as there have been many Georgians who performed as great service without winning fame. One of the shortcomings of our school system is that we teach too much about others and not enough about our own achievements."

And the light of her eyes.

II.

I'm not a-wantin'—
Nor more do I crave—

She loved me in life,
And stood true at Love's side,
And that was the victory,
Dear, ere I died!

How the Nice Hubby Won Out.

According to the columnist of The Eldorado Times this is a "too true fable"—

"Once upon a time a Nice Husband went to a convention in a distant city and bought for his Good Looking Wife who stayed at home with the sons, a Lovely Jewel. This wife, whose economic instinct whispered that she could be-jewel the entire family for the neat two thousand her Nice Husband had exchanged for the One Gem, said she didn't like it, and sent the jewel back to the firm, explaining she would call at their store and select something she liked better. But the Cruel Firm wrote they did not do business that way, and sent to the Nice Husband a check in full for the amount, and the Gift Was Not."

HUNGER.

There are times when the most degraded soul in the world hungers for beauty and thirsts for the waters of spiritual purity.

Whether highly favored or not, there are moments when the great doors of life seem barred to our most urgent and beseeching pleas.

We get so hungry!

But in this very hunger is germinating precious life in silent and unconscious growth that is sure to spring into being when least we expect.

In the natural, healthy heart hope does spring eternal. And this hunger is but one phase of eternal hope. Spiritual reach in other words.

Those who never hunger or thirst or desire or long for something higher and better, never live. And all the people who have died are not to be found in yards where engraved stones mark the place.

The worst death is death in life.

It is a blessed thing to have hungered, to have wanted and been deprived. We really never learn a greater lesson than the one taught from those things which have been pregnant with hunger within our very soul.

The splendor of love is evinced when one's heart is all lit up with the beauty of unselfish desire.

To strive, not to yield, to walk with the consciousness of courage, and to be patient, is surely heroism unmatched upon the battlefield of selfish ambition.

We are revealed to ourselves and others feel us and love us when we seem most lost to glory and acclaim.

It is because the great God keeps walking around, touching this shoulder and that, pressing life and determination into hearts that have been tightened by the cruel thrusts of force and fate that we decide not to give up under any circumstance.

RESOLUTIONS DEPLORE GOING OF DR. WILMER

Resolutions expressing appreciation of the work of Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of the St. Luke Episcopal church, who is leaving Atlanta to take up his new duties as professor of theology in the University of the South, in Sewanee, Tenn., were passed by the committee on church cooperation and the National Urban league at meetings held Sunday afternoon. Dr. Wilmer was a member of the committee on church cooperation.

The National Urban league met at Big Bethel church and after resolutions were passed, Dr. Wilmer was presented with a loving cup by the colored people of the league as a testimony of gratitude and appreciation for the work that the pastor had done among their people.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

"The Breath of God."

On October 3 every fatherland-loving Dutchman eats "huts-pot." This is a combination of potatoes, onions, carrots and beef, with salted herring for a side dish. The custom dates from the year 1573, when the siege of Leyden was raised by "the breath of God." For a whole year the Spanish troops had invested the city. The people, knowing that surrender would mean their massacre, held out under the heroic leadership of Burgomaster Peter Van Der Werff. The dykes had been broken in the hope of flooding the Spanish camp, but the wind blew the water seawards and the Spanish were not hampered in their operations. Dogs and cats, yes even rats, were eaten. Men chewed leather, roots and bark. In the Ryks Museum of Amsterdam hangs a famous painting showing Van Der Werff handing his sword to his emaciated burghers and their women. "If you must have food, run me through, eat my body, but surrender I will not." On October 2 the wind changed. On the morning of October 3 two boys ventured out of the city. Anxious eyes followed them. They arrived in the Spanish camp, now under three feet of water. They stayed away. They waved their hands to the burghers on the walls. Others went out. They brought back a pot of "huts-pot." The Spanish army had decamped in the night. Great was the rejoicing. On the next day food arrived from the Prince of Orange. Many died gorging themselves. Leyden was rewarded by Orange with a university in the following year. The original copper vessel that was brought from the Spanish camp on that memorable morning is in the local museum at Leyden.

"Pied" Penetration.

Fifty red officers have arrived in Pekin to superintend the operations of the Chinese federal government's army against rival governors and bandits. Great masses of red troops are massing on the Manchurian border and the Japanese fear the Russians plan an invasion of Manchuria. Under the guise of being anxious to restore order for the Chinese, the Russians are getting a strong hold on the country. This was to be expected. From the point of comparative diplomacy, the Russians have played trump cards in the Far East, while the United States and England were deliberating and refusing to recognize the soviet. The Russians, after recognition by China, made their representative an ambassador. The other nations have only ministers in China. This made the Russian the dean of the diplomatic corps. The result is already visible. Russian influence in China is increasing to the detriment of others. Incidentally, the new Russian policy of penetration in the Far East is a revival of the same policy of czarist days. Balked in the east, Germany, Austria, Hungary and Constantinople, Russia seeks to extend her sphere ever eastwards as in the old days. Here she will either clash or cooperate with Japan for the domination of Asia. Only time will tell what it is going to be.

Another "Test Day."

Just when the theaters of Constantinople were starting to do a rushing business, the same as in Paris, New York or Berlin, armed troops poured through the streets. Taxicabs were commandeered, street cars were filled with soldiers and gendarmes. Every private automobile was stopped, the occupants made to descend and the car taken away. This happened two weeks ago. Anxious telephone calls to the chief of police and the newspapers brought no reply. Everything was shrouded in deepest secrecy. People became frantic and panic-stricken. The wildest rumors were circulated. Now the cat is out of the bag. Rashed Bey, governor of the city, suddenly decided on a mobilization. But his nocturnal decision is being investigated. He says in explanation that he wanted to have everything in readiness should Kemal Pasha ever pay a surprise visit of inspection to the city, and then there was the danger of a communist coup. Communist, coup nothing, Kemal Pasha nothing, comes back word from Angora. Rashed Bey forgot the precepts of the prophet one evening, looked too long at the dancing houris in his harem and got stupidly drunk. Then wanted a mobilization test. Another governor is on the way to Constantinople.

"Meek Lot of Taxpayers."

Now here is a dispatch from the United States to European newspapers which has set the citizens of Denmark, Belgium and Germany wondering and gasping. The dispatch says that 218 wooden ships, which cost $235,000,000 during the war, are to be set on fire in the Potomac river by a salvage company, which bought them from the United States government for $262,000. The "Danska Tidene" says: "They call that salvaging in America, we call it destruction pure and simple." The "Rotterdam Nieuwsblad" comments: "Of course, the Americans can do with their own property what they like. But these ships were not out of date and could be used to great advantage." It winds up its discussion of the matter with the pertinent remark: "What a tremendously wealthy country America must be or else what a meek lot of taxpayers have they got over there." The Rotterdammers do not know that in American national life a taxpayer is supposed to pay taxes and ask no questions.

Japan's Mission.

Rabindranath Tagore, the Romain Rolland of the Orient, has returned to Japan for the second time in one year. There is a reason. He thinks Japan has arrived at a moment in its national development that will be decisive for the future not only of herself but of the whole east. He says Japan has temporarily lost its prestige in politics and commerce, but truth will live and shall conquer. He finds in Japan two dominant currents. The one is the meditative Buddhist doctrine of self-denial and the other is the keen, self-assertive, progressive attitude of a maritime nation. Japan has beauty and culture. If this can be blended with knowledge, the success of her mission in the great Asiatic world is assured. She will lead the nations to a new era of glory and peace, hitherto unknown, and it will mean the end of foreign (white) domination in the east. Not by force, but by the greatness of Japan, will this be accomplished, thinks the great Hindu poet.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. McINTYRE

New York, October 3.—Thoughts while strolling around New York: First baby carriage I ever saw on Broadway. A crushed lipstick on the pavement. A scrubwoman with gray bobbed hair. Little Ann Pennington. Small boys playing mumbley peg on the elevated stairs.

Sing-songy chant of bus barkers. Fishermen off to bully trout. Another 5 and 10 cent store on Fifth avenue. Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt. Pardon my wet glove. Pigeons in the library eaves. Ten buses in a block. And the law permits but two.

A work horse with a bucket around his neck. Gathering coins for more watering troughs. Here goes my lunch money. White linen spats. Hair gloss. And a field of bamboo canes. But the next guy with a feather in his hat is going to make me mad.

A Czecho-Slovak cafe. Probably just an ordinary spaghetti joint. A fire in a perfume shop. Ring out, wild bells! Wonder if a floor walker goes walking on Sunday. Brander Matthews. Doesn't look like a professor. Oliver Herford. Puck himself in his spirit of deviltry.

The suit and cloak district. Errand boys playing "Follow the leader." The first stages of gang leadership. Bent old men who walk with hands folded behind their backs. And necks shriveled like a turkey's. Apple-cheeked girls. The stereotyped bellowing of sandwich venders.

The vegetable garden in Union Square. An elderly lady riding a bicycle. Newspapers scattered like dead moths. A theater in an old garage—a burlap backdrop and a row of oil lamps. A place where attic dwellers present symbolical plays. And keep on starving.

Auto tourists with upstate banners. Whatever became of all the cross-country pedestrians. A shower springs up. And only peanut peddlers fail to run to cover. A white sparrow caged in a window. Another old hotel giving way to progress. Enough.

One of the most interesting men I ever met is a jailer in one of the big New York prisons. His hair is thatched with gray, and he has the typical prison pallor. For eighteen years most of his hours have been spent in the drab atmosphere of prison. So far as I could judge he has not lost his sympathy for those under his charge. First offenders, he says, are particularly pitiable. I asked him what he considered the most important contributing cause to a life of crime. His answer was "Whisky and environment." There are many men, he says, who prefer life in prison to the responsibilities that freedom imposes. They become inured to cells and locks, and when they are released commit some trifling offense so that they may be returned.

It is a swank hat shop on the avenue just opened. There is no window display. Hats are made to order and to suit the individual need in color and shape. One is shown hats only by appointment. And, oh, yes, an impoverished duke is the head salesman.

Not that it will cause any change in the cosmic scheme, but a few reviewers of a book of mine emphasized my keenness as an observer.

Thanks for the trade last, but I failed yesterday to observe the city slicker who reached into my inside coat pocket in the Times Square subway station and extracted a bill fold containing $21 in bills, a postcard from Chic Sale, a clipping from the China Press, a dozen personal cars, and some perfectly dandy notes on an article I was to write for a magazine, and a soiled chemin de Fey card.

Nothing makes you feel the hick like having a pocket picked. And as this is my third experience, there is only one thing to do. Stay out of subways.

Text: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."—Matthew 6:32.

Man is a seeker—it is a trait of all men everywhere—

But being a seeker, it is reasonable that he should seek some one thing, first—first both in point of time and of importance.

What should a man seek first, therefore, for his own highest happiness, his largest usefulness to others, and his fulfilment of God's purpose in his being?

It is an important question—important as life and death for either life or death is the consequence of the answer given. Still, important as it is, there are those who have never asked it; or else, who, having asked it, like jesting Pilate, stary not to hear God's answer.

That answer is "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness.'"

The kingdom of heaven being within us—an inward state of the soul as sacred through Jesus Christ we may all seek it, for it is possible to be found—

Put this first thing first in your life of seeking, O reader, and, then, having found it, you have the key to all else that is worth while—all things else will be added unto you.

Keep God's kingdom first in your life and every secondary thing is sure to reach you in the best time.

"Good Will" the Reward For a School Master

Editor Constitution: I wish to express to you my gratitude for the editorial of this morning which surprised and gladdened my heart. Management of schools is sure to bring many of the evidences of displeasure of the people to the head of the institution. When things are as they should be, nothing is said, as a rule. The mere schoolmaster, however, as I have always been, has his reward in the good will of the patrons and pupils.

Again I thank you for your kindness in expressing this good will on your editorial page.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE MINISTER'S COLD BATH.

Today I surrender the pulpit to another preacher. This guy arrests interest right off the bat. He practices what he preaches.

My Dear Doctor:

We note your reply to the query of Mrs. S. T., under the caption of "Some September Morn." They tell us that an ounce of experience is worth a ton of theory. So I am writing this exception perhaps.

I have been taking cold baths for 20 years. I am past 61 years of age. It is not "just a wee short plunge or shower," but a regular sponge bath with—soap accompaniment. It is not usually in a warm room. We sleep with windows open and room nearly the same temperature as that of the outside air. Sometimes the water freezes on the wash bowl on a zero morning. That makes the bath more exhilerating.

Of course many people have not the vitality to carry out such a strenuous program. They could not get the reaction necessary. But there are a lot more who are too "thin-skinned," who haven't the nerve to undertake it, and of course they would be slow to advise any one else to try it.

But what's the use anyway? Well, we are getting to that. These cold baths have been a distinct benefit to me in several ways. First, I have been able to entirely rid my system of catarrh, a thing you claim does not exist. I had those boring headaches in the frontal sinus, with the discharge of bloody mucus—took cold (excuse this slip) at the least exposure, sometimes continuing for three months at a time. Tried douches, atomizers, inhalers, etc., with no permanent relief. Now I am entirely immune from colds the year round. I am constantly brought into all sorts of exposure from weather, change of beds, and other things that might cause trouble, but never have a return.

Then it has been a distinct help to my nerves. (Perhaps people ought not to have nerves). But they used to put me in bed sometimes for a week or two. Since taking the cold bath treatment, I have had no more spells of that kind. In fact I seem to have the best of health—no "grip" or "flu" or the common ailments that go the round every winter and keep the doctors busy.

Then the baths help me to keep my avoirdupois in control. By the two meal program and other limitations of appetite I have reduced weight from 210 to 185, and by being watchful am holding it there. Your warnings to people inclined to flesh are timely. The old Italian had the "system" but few have the will power and persistance to carry it out as he did.

I presume that Mrs. S. T. will never see this letter. But it seems to me that when people make an honest inquiry on things that are important to themselves they should be entitled to a candid consideration of all the facts involved, and not professional sarcasm or treated as a joke or an old fogy notion.

Yours in the interest of good health.

There's a good deal of sense in everything the minister has told you, brethren, except his allusions to "catching cold," "catarrh," "nerves" and the proper way to handle vague or hypothetical or unsigned queries in this department.

The regimen or unsigned counsellor and guide has followed for 20 years is one which I can only commend to valetudinarians in general. If you must take a wet wash take it cold. Personally I favor air baths. With the air temperature around freezing the air bath gives much the same reaction as the wet dash does when the temperature of the water is around 60, which isn't frightfully cold. And the air bath is so much nicer for one's skin. Frequent water bathing is a notorious way of making the skin harsh, rough, dry, irritable and itching. Air bathing is famous for making the skin texture fine and soft. Examine the skin of a person who is taking the Roller treatment and you will see what I mean. Combine some exercise with the air bath for the best results.

"Al" Smith, Tammany's Only Asset.

Governor "Al" Smith, of New York, is to run again as the life-saver of Tammany Hall. He frankly called himself at the time of the democratic national convention the leader of Tammany Hall. He is something more than that. For eight years, if it had not been for "Al" Smith and his extraordinary popularity, Tammany would have been in difficulties. He is Tammany's only asset. I am not saying anything against him when I say that. I am only saying that if Tammany had not had "Al" Smith, Hearst and Hylan would have taken the machine away from its leaders. And La Follette this time, by appealing to masses that have usually voted the Tammany ticket, confronts the wigwam with a new danger that can only be met by calling upon "Al" Smith once more to act as the life-saver.

Senator La Follette's unexpected strength in New York city and many other big cities suggests that the urban population may be ripe for a new party movement which will unite the industrial town dwellers. Polls indicate that Mr. La Follette will run very close to Mr. Coolidge in Chicago. People say that he will carry Cleveland and Toledo in Ohio. He has Tammany worried in New York. That is the odd and unexpected development of the campaign Now neither Mr. La Follette nor Mr. Wheeler is a big-town product. Neither of them understands what the masses in the cities are thinking or speaks the language of tenements. One can only wonder how an "Al" Smith would run in the towns.

Up to the present the masses in the towns haven't developed any national figures except "Al" Smith, and the obstacle to his becoming president is too great. Tom Johnson, of Cleveland, was born a generation too soon. If he were in his prime today you wouldn't have to wonder who would be the leader of the progressive party four years from now. And one of the reasons for doubting whether there will be a progressive party four years from now is the uncertainty where it will find a leader. Mr. La Follette will be too old. Senator Norris will also be too old. Senator Wheeler does not look promising. No one is in sight.

We are still rural enough in our point of view so that we distrust the products of the city democracies. As soon as a mayor raises his head high enough so that it can be seen outside of his own city everybody hits it. But if there is a progressive party in 1928, maybe its candidate will be one of the mayors elected between now and then.

What is the difference between a college and a university?

The college has about the same relation to a university that a state has to the federal government—that is, as a rule, many colleges go to make a university. The term university, however, has been used loosely in the United States, sometimes applied to institutions really no more than colleges. There is a tendency, now, to restrict the term university to an institution offering non-professional instruction beyond the bachelor's degree and having affiliated professional schools.

What is a "shiner?"

This is the name applied to many small species of fish of a silvery luster, belonging mainly to the minnows.

What is butter fat and what is the difference between butter fat and butter?

Butter fat is the fat of milk, and butter is the clean, non-rancid product made by gathering in any manner the fat of fresh or ripened milk or cream into a mass, with or without salt, and contains not less than 82.5 per cent of butter fat.

Would the earth appear as bright to an observer from the moon as the moon does to an observer from the earth?

No, since the absence of an atmosphere on the moon results in brilliant reflection of light and sharp shadows, but the earth's atmosphere would show a more diffuse lighting effect to an observer on the moon.

What is Michael Pupin's address?

The Dakota, 1 West 72d Street, New York City.

Yes; during the months of January, February, March and sometimes April.

What is a spike buck?

What does "feet of clay" mean and how did this originate?

It refers to the earthly or baser part of human nature. If a person appears to be so far above others that he or she is like a god or goddess, often some grave fault will be observed to remind others that the hero or heroine is still mortal. The expression is derived from Biblical usage; see Daniel II, verse 33.

What causes a tomato to become black at the blossom end?

A disease known as "blossom-end rot." The cause of this disease is not well understood, but it appears to be connected with soil conditions, particularly with the water supply. Watering the plants during very dry weather has been found helpful in controlling blossom-end rot. Frequent cultivation is also of assistance. The plowing under of stable manure or green manure or other vegetable matter will increase the water-holding power of the soil and thus reduce injury from blossom-end rot.

How are high-priced plate-glass mirrors backed?

The best backing is said to be quicksilver vermillion (English vermillion) mixed with rubbing varnish to a smooth paste and thinned with turps for spreading evenly with the brush, but the usual practice is to apply one or two coats of flat black, mixed by thinning drop black with turpentine.

Can you state the doctrine or principle of socialism in a few words?

Socialism proposes the public ownership and democratic management of the socially necessary means of production and distribution.

What are government bonds?

Interest-bearing certificates of debt issued by the United States government, the interest rates of which vary, being in general lower than the interest paid on commercial bonds, the attraction of government bonds being the safety of the investment.

How can whitewash be removed from a wall?

First soften it by wetting liberally and repeatedly with a solution of two pounds of potash in five gallons of water, and when softened, remove with a scraper.

Did Babe Ruth ever pick himself for an all-American baseball team?

Why does popcorn pop?

The cell walls in popcorn are very much tougher than they are in ordinary corn. When the popcorn is heated, the very small amount of moisture normally present in dry corn is changed to steam, and when the internal pressure becomes sufficiently high, the cell explodes.

WAR ON BELLHOPS WAGED BY PROHI OFFICIALS HERE

Bellhops in Atlanta hotels who have contracted the habit of supplying guests or casual visitors with liquor are facing a rocky road, according to information revealed Thursday afternoon at the office of Prohibition Director Fred D. Dismuke.

"Undercover" men operating under the local prohibition director, have learned "the lay of the land," it was stated, and actual round-up of alleged violators late Thursday by lodging cases against four bellhops of a downtown hotel. Other cases will follow, Director Dismuke stated, and the drive was scheduled to continue for many days.

Names of the four employees held in the first batch of arrests were not revealed. A policy of secrecy was followed by officers in the belief that others under suspicion would be "scared off" if full publicity resulted from the first activity.

The "undercover" work has been done by a man assigned especially to this task. Director Dismuke would not disclose his name and the stranger maintained absolute silence when questioned by newspaper men as to his identity.

Husband Is Slain By Wife as Rival And Son Look on

Baltimore, Md., October 2.—Mrs. Alexander F. Fedeli was placed under arrest shortly before midnight last night, charged with the murder of her husband, wealthy president of A. F. Fedeli & Co., contractor. Fedeli's body, bearing several bullet wounds, had been found a short itme before in an automobile parked by the side of a road near Stevenson Station in Greenspring Valley.

Mrs. Fedeli surrendered voluntarily. Accompanied by her 17-year-old son, Arthur, she walked into eastern police station and told the authorities that she had followed her husband and another woman, Miss Hermine Ulman, in a second machine and had fired six shots at Fedeli.

Police said Mrs. Fedeli told them that upon learning that her husband had gone out with the woman she found out where they went and followed until Fedeli halted his car at a lonely spot. Mrs. Fedeli said she then drove up, left her car, and told her husband she was going to get into his machine with him, according to the officers.

A quarrel ensued, Fedeli refusing to allow his wife to enter his automobile, whereupon Mrs. Fedeli is said to have confessed drawing a pistol and firing at him. She then returned to her own car, where her son was waiting, and ordered him to drive to the police station.

Arthur Fedeli, the son, and Miss Ulman are held as witnesses.

84,000 Americans Met Their Deaths In 1923 Accidents

Louisville, Ky., October 2.—Eighty-four thousand lives were lost in the United States last year as the result of accidents. The death toll amounted to 1,462 per week, or 200 per day. Automobile accidents headed the list with 37 deaths per day. Falls killed 36 a day, drownings 19, and railroad accidents 18.

These figures, supplied by Louis J. Dublin, New York, chairman of the committee on public accident statistics, National Safety council, in his report to that body at their annual congress here, shows that the annual cost of traffic accidents vary from $15 to $30 per capita, he said.

George Guy Kelcey, Elizabeth, N. J., manager of the traffic engineering division, said that from a study of accidents covering many cities and towns, it was indicated that most accidents do not occur in business or congested areas or along gravel streets.

"More accidents occur at street intersections than elsewhere," he said, "but about three-fourths of these result in property damage only. Half of the injuries and deaths due to traffic appear to be in the middle of the block. From one-third to one-fourth of these obviously are 'jaywalkers.'

"America's accident death rate is 698 deaths per million of population. England and Wales has a rate of 321 per million of population."

BOY SCOUTS OPEN FALL PROGRAM BY FOUR RALLIES

The fall program of the local Boy Scouts' organizations will open Friday night, when rallies of scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters, committeemen and scout officials will be held.

Rallies will be held according to districts, district one to be held in the Tech Y. M. C. A.; district two to be held in the Agoga class room of the Baptist tabernacle; district three, in the auditorium of the Lee Street school; district four, in the Sunday school room of the Second Baptist church.

Unusual programs have been arranged for each of these rallies, which will be presided over by scout officials. Service ribbons will be awarded to various scouts as a part of the program.

COMMISSIONERS DENY APPEAL FOR FUNDS

Conventions, parades and similar functions will receive no further aid from the Fulton county commissioners, according to announcement Thursday by Chairman Edwin F. Johnson. This decision was announced along with a statement that a contribution of funds had been refused the Georgia State Sunday School association to help defray expenses of the convention to be held in Atlanta during the latter part of October.

'County expneses are high," said Chairman Johnson, "and there is much road work that needs attention at the present time. The tax burden is heavy on the people, and the commission can no longer grant requests for money to aid conventions, parades and similar functions.'

Twenty-five Atlanta boys have been commissioned officers of the R. O. T. C. at Georgia Tech, according to Colonel Earle D'A. Pearce, commandant of Military Science and Tactics. The naming of the student officers for the year was made Thursday.

Among the Atlanta boys named for places of high rank are: Major J. P. Kennedy, Jr., of the regimental staff; Major R. C. DeSausseur, commander of the second battalion, and Major I. S. Dobbs, commander of the military band.

Colonel R. L. Hays is in command of the regiment.

ALLEGED EVADERS OF TOBACCO TAXES DRAW HEAVY FINES

There are various ways of collecting state tobacco taxes.

Gus Young, of 321 Peachtree street; Charles Schecter, of 150 Ivy street, and Max Schecter, of Buckhead, were ordered to pay by way of court fines and in lump sum in city criminal court Thursday.

The defendants were charged with failure to pay the state tax on cigarette sales. Young was fined $100, while the Schecters were fined $50 each.

James S. Spratling, of 53 Auburn avenue, was bound over from municipal court to city criminal court under bond of $200 on a similar charge.

YOUTH GETS LONG TERM IN PRISON ON SIX CHARGES

Another long chapter in the career of W. P. Neal, 19, was closed Thursday when Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court, sentenced the confessed burglar to serve from one to five years each on six separate charges, making a total of six years minimum and 30 years maximum service.

Neal startled county police soon after they captured him by confessing that he was guilty of robbing from 25 to 50 homes in the Brookwood-Buckhead section. He related in detail the methods he followed in his career of crime and created much attention by displaying a broad smile when he spoke of his record.

Rev. W. M. Albert, pastor of the Western Heights Baptist church, appeared before Judge Humphries and spoke in behalf of the young man about to be sentenced. The boy's mother also entered a plea for mercy.

Judge Humphries stated that the case was one in which the defendant deliberately chose a life of crime because it presented an easy way to funds. He gave a brief talk regarding the tendency of youth toward crime and ended the talk by sentencing Neal to serve from six to 30 years on the chain gang.

Neal had entered a plea of guilty to the six indictments.

AUTO THIEF GETS PRISON SENTENCE IN DEKALB COURT

Convicted on charges of stealing an automobile, "Hap" Ward, of Atlanta, Thursday was sentenced to serve from three to five years on the chain gang by Judge John B. Hutcheson, in DeKalb county superior court. Norman Austin, also of Atlanta, received a sentence of twelve months in the same case, charged with being an accomplice, but had his sentence suspended "during good behavior."

Ward and Austin were charged in indictments with having stolen an automobile from F. E. McKnight, of 53 East Ninth street, on March 18, 1924.

Miss Bessie Smith Accepts a Fine Position and Praises the Southern Business College

The New Southern, Enrolling Pupils From Many Sections, Booms as Never Before in Its History.

MISS BESSIE SMITH, who fills an important position with the Portland Cement Association, after a course at the S. S. & B. University.

Business Education pays, if it is obtained at the Southern Shorthand and Business University, now located in its large and beautiful new home at 56 Whitehall street.

Miss Bessie Smith, who advises young people to make preparation for commercial positions at the Southern, is exceedingly delighted over her choice of a school and the success that she is now achieving.

If you want a position (you can't obtain one without preparation), you should do two things:

First, read Miss Smith's letter to the managers of the Southern, which appears below.

Second, be sure to visit and look through the new Southern Business College, now located at 56 Whitehall street, and you'll see, indeed, a model business training school, which, in appointment and size, is without an equal in the South and unexcelled in America.

"The business colleges of Boston have nothing on the Southern," said a visiting gentleman from the cultured city of Boston.

"I am familiar with the business schools in Washington, D. C., that city being my home, but your new school certainly is a marvel, for I have never seen its equal," said another visitor to the Southern this week.

"A monument to Atlanta," remarked a business man of this city.

"The new Southern Business College is just what fills Atlanta's needs," was the way another visitor put it.

Visit the Southern, that's the thing to do, and then you'll want to enroll.

Atlanta, Ga., October 1, 1924.

Messrs. Briscoe & Arnold, Proprietors, Southern Shorthand & Business University, 56 Whitehall Street, Atlanta, Ga.

Gentlemen: After having attended your school and received the most excellent training that I have, I should like to speak a few words in behalf of the school and faculty.

I found the system to be thorough and up-to-date, and the spirit of the school, as a whole, to be one of good old Southern hospitality.

All members of the faculty are ideal, for besides being expert in their line, there is no end to the co-operation and their efforts to aid the students in every way possible. The work seems to be a part of them, and I know they dearly love it.

As a result of this training and help of the SOUTHERN, I was able to take a position with the Portland Cement Association, with which I am well pleased.

Finally, I am ready to tell boys and girls who are thinking of entering the business world, to get their training at the SOUTHERN, for it is unsurpassed, especially since moving into its present home, and I wish to congratulate your on your new and handsome quarters, located at 56 Whitehall street. Prospective pupils, I am sure, after visiting the beautiful new SOUTHERN, would not think of enrolling anywhere else for a business course.

Your grateful student,
Bessie Smith.

Enroll any Monday. Don't delay preparation. The Business World needs competent bookkeepers, stenographers and accountants.

TWO BOUND OVER IN FEDERAL COURT PENDING INQUIRY

Held under warrants charging violation of the national motor vehicle act, Harry Bradley and Mrs. Ollie I. Maroum, alias Dorothy Phillips, alias Mrs. H. S. Bradley, were given a preliminary hearing Thursday before acting United States Commissioner Joe Abbott, resulting in both the man and woman being held for the federal grand jury under bond of $2,500 each.

Specific charges against defendants set forth that they transported a stolen automobile from Dallas, Texas, to Atlanta. The charges were lodged by department of justice agents who are said to be conducting an investigation which may result in other charges.

Chief L. J. Bailey, of the Atlanta department of justice bureau, refused to discuss the charges against Bradley and Mrs. Maroum, but it is known that his agents have been probing the case for several days.

Little evidence was introduced by either side at the hearing Thursday, the government agents resting evidence with just enough to assure holding the accused. It is reported that the woman has signed a lengthy confession and that its contents reveal amazing circumstances regarding her past life.

PAR CLEARANCE ARGUMENT HEARD

Argument in the case of the Pascagoula National bank, of Pascagoula and Moss Point, Miss., versus the Federal Reserve bank of Atlanta, in which the Mississippi bank seeks to have the Federal Reserve bank restrained from enforcing its system of par clearance of checks, continued throughout the day Thursday and will be renewed at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning by former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, representing the defendant bank, in closing direct argument in the case.

The case opened Thursday morning at 10 o'clock before Judge Samuel H. Sibley, with Attorney Alex W. Smith, of the Atlanta law firm of Smith, Hammond & Smith, leading the argument for the plaintiff bank. Attorney Smith first reviewed the original petition and then launched into argument seeking to show that the Federal Reserve bank is following a par clearance, or check collecting system that is illegal and detrimental to its member banks.

Features Sought.

1. To enjoin the Federal Reserve bank from receiving for collection any check drawn upon and payable by any bank outside the home district of the reserve bank.

2. To compel the defendant bank to give immediate credit at full face value of checks payable within the district.

3. To enjoin the reserve bank and its board from operating any clearance or collection system other than that described by the United States supreme court as being intended by congress and that the defendants be stopped from seeking to be a "universal system for the clearance of checks."

4. To obtain judgment in the sum of $12,750, which the plaintiff alleges represents loss of exchange revenue and loss by failure of the Federal Reserve bank of Atlanta to allow immediate credit and availability for cash items during the past six years.

Other suits have been brought against the Federal Reserve bank in the past involving practically the same issue, but the Pascagoula National bank case is the first suit of this nature that has been brought against the reserve bank by a member bank of its own system.

To Settle Issue.

Attorneys familiar with the case point out that the present suit will determine the final course on this subject that must be followed by the defendant bank.

Argument by Attorney Smith continued through the forenoon and far into the afternoon. He consumed several hours in presenting and arguing the legal phases he declared are involved in the suit.

Attorney Robert S. Parker, of the Atlanta law firm of Randolph & Parker, followed Attorney Smith and opened argument for the defense. He concluded his argument just before court adjourned for the day at 4 o'clock.

Attorney Baker will conclude argument for the defense when court opens at 9 o'clock Friday morning. No evidence is being submitted in the case, and Judge Sibley's decesion will determine the results of the present trial.

The South Carolina Power company seeks to install at Dreher's shoals, on the Saluda river in Lexington county, a concrete and masonry dam 120 feet high, to develop power for general sale.

PURE MILK PLANS TO BE PRESENTED TO CITY COUNCIL

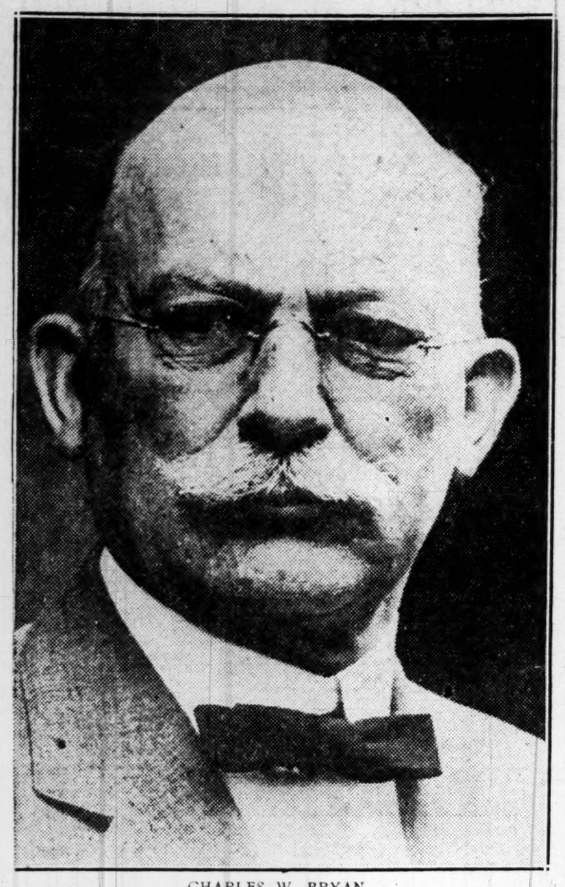

As the first step toward a new milk ordinance, which would require general pasteurization of all milk sold in Atlanta, Dr. W. B. Duvall, alderman from the first ward, plans to introduce a resolution in council on Monday to authorize Dr. John P. Kennedy, city health officer, to make a tour of St. Louis, Chicago and Detroit to study milk pasteurization methods.

The resolution will instruct Dr. Kennedy to make an exhaustive investigation of methods used in those cities from the standpoint of both dairymen and consumers. His findings would be reported to the newly organized milk commission and to city council.

CHARLES W. BRYAN,

This is the fifth of a series of easy chair interviews with the leading presidential and vice presidential candidates, written exclusively for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance. The last interview, with Burton K. Wheeler, will appear Sunday.

BY JOHN M. THOMPSON.

Governor Charles Wayland Bryan of Nebraska, democratic candidate for vice president, has achieved much political fame and is probably as widely known as the average man who aspires to that office. He is known as a student of politics—partly as a result of the great files of index cards which he started compiling long ago, giving data on republicans as well as democrats. In spite of any handicap that may have come to him as a result of having a distinguished brother to overshadow his individuality, Governor Bryan now stands with the foremost politicians of the land. He is now before the American people and we see him on the occasion of his notification, with uplifted hand solemnly accepting and pledging "that every ability I can exercise shall be with an eye single to the material, moral and spiritual welfare of my country and my countrymen."

Every candidate for vice president is a potential president.

Governor Bryan had scarcely been nominated for an office that is often referred to as the fifth wheel in the governmental wagon when his private secretary was found reading the somewhat obscure provisions of the federal constitution relating to the possibilities of a failure of the electoral college to choose a president and the senate's being called upon to select a vice president who would act as president in the event of a deadlock in the house of representatives over the choice of a president.

Looking backward it is seen that when Governor Bryan was a humble salesman, selling soap, flavoring extracts, baking powder, or as a broker attempting to break the tobacco trust, his brother, William Jennings Bryan, was setting the prairies afire with his eloquence as a candidate for president.

In Lincoln, where people know Governor Bryan, no sympathy is wasted on him because of the possibility of his having been overlwhelmed by the majesty of a big brother. It can't be done.

He Likes a Race and a Bout.

But besides politics and its smoke of battle Governor Bryan has at least three hobbies. They are boxing, hunting and horse racing. As a youth in Illinois he once won an amateur contest with the gloves on. He taught his son to box for the self-reliance it gives and for the lessons in the principles of give and take. The governor never misses a boxing bout of any consequence. Under the Nebraska law, which concentrates power in the governor, he is the legal head of the state boxing commission, which licenses and regulates boxing and wrestling. He receives all reputable boxers and is eager to let them know he has practiced the art himself. Strange as it may seem, the Nebraska law still prohibits prize fighting, but it permits licensed boxing bouts, 5 per cent of the gate receipts going to the state commission, and the result is boxers still box for purses.

All that is known of Nimrod is he was a mighty hunter before the Lord. This much is conceded of Governor Bryan. He is a mighty hunter. On his last spring's annual duck hunt in northern Nebraska, his companions testify, he brought down three ducks with three successive shots from his pump gun, just as they were coming down to decoys.

He is equally good as a revolver shot. As a member of the Tecumseh Squirrel club last fall he brought down his share with a revolver, while others were using .22 rifles. This club had a skull cap made of squirrels killed by Governor Bryan, to be presented to him with suitable ceremonies. He is accustomed to the skull cap habit as a result of a nervous ailment, which is intensified by artificial light or sunlight. The cap habit is not on account of a desire to conceal lack of hair upon his massive head.

He got his love of open-air sports in his career as a farmer. He's a real farmer.

How He Drove a Bull.

On the morning following his notification, he was found in his office at the capitol in company with Charles E. Hull, of Salem, Ill., merchant, banker and former member of the Illinois legislature, a neighbor and boyhood friend who came to attend the notification. There is a story about a bull that played some part in his young life on the farm near Salem. As the story is told, this bull had gored and killed two driving horses owned by young Bryan and had injured two others. Young Bryan was wrought up. He borrowed a meat saw from a butcher, tied the bull by the head to a manger in a log stable, and while several men tremblingly watched from the hay loft, the youth sprang astride the animal, got a firm hold with his legs and while holding on to its neck with one arm sawed off—no, not its head, but its horns. It was the first record of dehorning in Illinois. Bryan had been told dehorning would kill the animal.

"I'll leave it to Mr. Hull if it is not true," said Governor Bryan. "He knows all about it. But there is a sequel to the tale. One year later I was preparing to remove to Nebraska. I wanted to sell that bull. It was a Jersey, four years old, and large. I approached Mr. Hull several times and offered to sell it.

"'Is it gentle?' he asked.

"He knew its history and he knew I knew he knew it. But I thought to show that even a bull can reform.

"'I can drive it to a buggy,' I said.

"'Drive it down to my store and I'll give you $50 for it,' he said.

"Well, I knew that was a challenge, so I got a man to help me harness that bull. I put a ring in his nose, hitched reins to it, and got the animal between the shafts of a buggy. We wrestled that bull all over the pasture and finally he became so tired that I could drive him in a straight line down the road. So I presently drove him up to Hull's store, where a large crowd had assembled in honor of the occasion."

Shallenberger Has His Little Joke.

"That's true," said Mr. Hull, taking up the story where the governor left off. "'That's on me, I'll take him.' I said, and I did."

"Did you in all that manipulation throw the bull?" asked a listener—ex-Governor A. C. Shallenberger, now congressman from the fifth Nebraska district.

"No, I did not," answered Governor Bryan, casting a glance of suspicion at the congressman, with whom he has had some political difference.

As a result of his intense activity Governor Bryan has acquired a lively set of opponents at home, but it is said of these, "they have kicked him upstairs." When he left the city council, where he had once served as mayor, his associates in office adopted a resolution indicating pleasure at his transfer from the city hall to the governor's chair. That was the first propulsion toward the top of the stairs.

When Governor Bryan went to New York, ostensibly to capture the nomination for president, his political opponents in the state capitol wished him well, sincerely hoping he would capture something that would take him away from the chief executive office, where he is naturally the dominant figure. On the other side he had well-wishers among the people of his home state who had elected him governor in 1922 by a majority of 50,300, which is the largest majority ever given any governor of Nebraska.

When asked to define his political philosophy, Governor Bryan said:

"I have spent a lifetime in the effort to prevent the stronger members of society from imposing upon the weaker. That has been my central thought: trying to improve conditions of the common people, to prevent any grounds for unrest; to make government responsive to public will and public needs, make it so honest and fair and equitable to all concerned that the government will be supported through love in place of fear.

Picked Aides For Ability.

"If the common people and wage-earners can be made to realize by experience that any political and administrative wrong could be righted through government, there will be no I. W. W., nor bolshevists, nor anarchists in this country.

"When the government fails to function, when the people have been taken advantage of by profiteers, when there is restraint of trade through monopolies in the necessaries of life and officials in public life hold positions and draw salaries but do not utilize governmental machinery to prevent the weaker members of society from being imposed upon, that is when unrest spreads throughout the country and we hear of formation of third parties and mutterings among those unable to feed, clothe and educate their families. Equal rights for all, special privileges to none, are Jeffersonian principles that should govern.

"I have recognized in the selection of the men and women who have shared with me the responsibility in executing the laws and administering the affairs of Nebraska, every element and faction, every nationality, religion or sect, and without regard to color or previous condition of servitude, bearing in mind above all the importance of honesty, integrity and qualification for the place for which each was selected."

Governor Bryan is heralded as a man who is a student of governmental problems and has devoted twenty-five years in devising legislation and administrative remedies for abuses in municipal, state and national government. What does such a man read? I asked him that question.

"I read no books," he said. "I have no time and in addition the strain of constant reading affects the nerves of my eyes. In the past twenty-eight years I have taken an active part in politics and my reading is largely confined to the daily press and a few periodicals. For twenty-two years I was in the newspaper business. I have been keeping up with current history and helping make it. In the past fifteen years I have accepted no invitations to speak except when I thought I could help remedy some governmental or business abuse."

Reads Nothing But News.

The first president of the United States is said to have shunned the reading of newspapers. Governor Bryan reads nothing else. His friends say the only magazines he reads are two which review current events. To save his time and eyesight, secretaries employed by him scan the newspapers and mark articles which they believe he may care to read. These articles are almost invariably political. Packets of newspapers thus marked with blue pencil go daily to the governor's desk. His clerks keep scrapbooks up to date and those volumes now litter the executive office. They soon fall to use as weights to keep doors from blowing shut.

"It is customary, is it not, governor, for men to give due credit to their wives for help in shaping political careers?"

"My wife," answered the governor," is domestic in her tastes and has been so interested in rearing and educating a family that she takes no interest in politics. We have two children, a son and a daughter." Silas, the son, is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and of Harvard Law college. He left Harvard during the war, instructed officers in a training camp and was made captain of colored troops, went overseas and was under shellfire the last three weeks of the war. He returned to Harvard and is now practicing law in Minneapolis.

The daughter, Mary Louise, was graduated from the Lincoln High school and served as editor-in-chief of the school paper during her last year. She was a student of the University of Nebraska when she was married June 19 to William Ernest Harnsberger, of Ashland, Neb.

The governor's wife was Miss Elizabeth Brokaw, of Salem, Ill. She became Mrs. Bryan November 29, 1892. The American Brokaw family dates back to 1675 when a French Protestant couple of that name came to America. Her father's family left Kentucky because of sympathy with the movement for emancipation of slaves. The family espoused the cause of the republican party and it is whispered that Governor Bryan to this day may not have fully converted his wife to democracy. She is a member of the Baptist church and is a gracious and tactful hostess as first lady of the state, though her friends know her natural tastes do not lead her into social prominence or political activities. She has poise and charm as the governor's wife. This is the verdict of her friends.

What He Told Billy Sunday.

Governor Bryan is not a member of a church. In this connection it is related that Billy Sunday, the evangelist, once invited Mr. Bryan to "hit the sawdust trail," as going to the mourner's bench in such meetings is termed.

"I have a few political scores to settle with some other fellows first," he is quoted as saying.

When the governor was asked whether or not his son, an attorney in Minneapolis, had been employed as counsel for one of the governor's own departments, he indignantly denied it.

"I told my son when he began to practice law," said the governor, "that if I ever heard of his taking a retainer fee for any influence he might have and not because of his knowledge of law, I would disown him."

The governor's insistence upon municipal and state competition for the regulation of the price of coal, gasoline and gravel is one of his outstanding political creeds. He has no faith in investigations and not much in prosecutions. Competition is the only thing monopolies fear, in his opinion. So when he became governor he continued to furnish coal to municipalities and communities at mine prices, plus freight, with a slight charge for overhead expenses.

His right to buy gasoline with a revolving fund at the disposal of one of the state departments and to sell the product at retail is tested in a suit to prevent the issuance of state warrants in payment of gasoline. He has announced that he will continue to furnish coal for the coming winter. This is a private enterprise of his own in which he reaps no profit, yet he has adopted the name of the State Coal company for this activity.

Called Guard for Mobilization Day.

He has been accused of having had nothing to do with the fall in the price of gasoline. Opponents pointed out that when the price started down the governor claimed he had brought about the reduction, but when the price later went up he wrote President Coolidge a letter in which he described the situation at that time as beyond the power of state to cope and demanded that the government take over the coal mines and gasoline properties and operate them until congress could adopt regulations. Still later, when the price of gasoline had again fallen, the governor resorted to state competition as an effective measure to help beat down the price, and little is being said about the necessity of federal intervention.

"What about your refusal to comply with the wishes of the war department in regard to a demonstration on test day?"

"There seemed to be a difference of opinion between the president and the war department in regard to the meaning of mobilization," said the governor. "I could hardly harmonize the two views. It appeared that the army officers desired civilians and persons engaged in industrial pursuits to mobilize. I did make a statement that if the desire was to have clerks, farmers and industrial workers take a day off to march in street parades, I would not issue such an order, and if I did the people of Nebraska would rebel against it.

"I have issued a proclamation directing the Nebraska National Guard to mobilize and do all things required by the war department, and I have appointed heads of patriotic organizations to confer together and arrange such programs as they see fit for services on test day, and any civic or religious societies that desire may join in these services."

He Owns Three Farms.

Governor Bryan was born on a farm near Salem, Ill. He is 57 years of age. His father was a Virginian by birth. Young Bryan attended the public schools at Salem, the University of Chicago and the Illinois college at Jacksonville. He remained on the farm from the time he was 14 until he removed to Nebraska at the age of 25. He was employed as traveling salesman. He went to Lincoln in September, 1891. He became political secretary and business agent for his brother at the close of the latter's first battle in 1896.

At the close of the second battle, in 1900, the two brothers established The Commoner, a personal organ of the older Bryan. This was published for 22 years, or until June, 1923. At one time this paper had a circulation of 275,000. The Bryans never invested any of their own capital in this publication, the contributions from subscribers being sufficient to start it and maintain it.

Governor Bryan owns city property and has investments in bonds and other securities and he has three farms in Nebraska, two near Lincoln, one known as a stock farm and the other a grain farm, and a third one in Pawnee county.

LABOR INFORMED HOW TO 'SCRATCH' FOR LA FOLLETTE

Washington, October 2.—Instructions how to "scratch" their ballots in the coming election so as to vote for the La Follette-Wheeler electors, and candidates for the house and senate, whose records are acceptable to the American Federation of Labor, are to be given organized workers of the country, under a plan outlined today by Frank Morrison, vice president of the federation and a member of its campaign committee.

Letters sent by Mr. Morrison to secretaries of all state federations of labor urge them to collect and disseminate information as to how "split" tickets may be voted.

During the morning the commission conferred with Senators Dial, of South Carolina, and Harris, of Georgia. Conferences will be held for several days after which they will submit a report to Secretary Hoover.

E. C. Brooks, president of the North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering, was chosen chairman of the commission, which is composed of H. M. Jacoway, of Little Rock, Ark.; J. M. Manning, of South Carolina; D. C. Reed, of Austin, Tex., and L. D. Jackson, of Atlanta.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription, HEM-ROID, is now sold by all druggists. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Jacobs' Drug Stores today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you—it seldom fails. —(adv.)

RIOTING GRIPS VIRGINIA TOWN

Harrisonburg, Va., October 2.—News of three nights of rioting between the white and negro population of Bridgewater, a college town six miles south of here, reached Harrisonburg today with resumption of communication, interrupted by the overflow of rivers and streams in this section.

One white boy has been shot in the leg, a half-dozen or more negroes have been severely beaten and many others have been placed under arrest. Mayor Arey declared today, however, that if the negro population obeys his edict to remain off the streets for several days he thought "the whole affair will blow over."

The trouble grew out of remarks alleged to have been made late Sunday night by negro occupants of an automobile, which collided with another on the main street of Bridgewater. The white occupants of the other car in the collision resented the remarks and soon there was a free-for-all fight. The disturbance was renewed on Monday night, about forty men and boys participating, and in the Tuesday night round more than one hundred persons are said to have been involved. Charles Kibler, a 16-year-old white boy, was shot in the leg during this melee, whereupon white crowds, armed with clubs, set upon every negro found on the streets. The same scene occurred again last night after arraignment of Faith Whitelow, negro, charged with firing the shot that struck Kibler, and other negroes charged with carrying concealed weapons. The latter were released when no arms were found on their persons.

More than a score of special police were on duty today and every automobile entering Bridgewater is being searched. Mayor Arey described conditions today as "normal," adding that they would remain so if the negroes remained in their homes.

Wyoming Governor Dies of Illness After Operation

Cheyenne, Wyo., October 2.—Governor W. B. Ross died at 3:15 o'clock this morning.

Governor Ross underwent an operation for appendicitis at a hospital here Wednesday. The operation was pronounced successful but within the last few days his condition became serious with the development of complications. The executive was stricken soon after he had addressed a meeting at Laramie, Wyo., September 23.

Physicians said last night that phlebitis, an inflammation of the veins, had set in three days ago. Governor Ross was 51 and is survived by his widow and three sons.

He was the third democratic governor to be selected in Wyoming during its thirty-four years of statehood. He was elected in 1922 to a four-year term, after a bitter campaign.

Governor Ross came to Wyoming, from Tennessee, in 1901.

ZANNI TO LEAVE CHINA SATURDAY FOR KAGOSHIMA

Shanghai, October 3.—(By the Associated Press.)—Major Pedro Zanni, Argentine world-encircling aviator, will leave China and its civil war behind him and fly to Kagoshima, Japan, Saturday, he announced late last night.

The Argentine still is determined to try to fly across the Pacific this year, although aeronautical experts have been trying to persuade him that it is too late in the season for the trip. Final decision on whether to continue is to be made after Major Zanni reaches Kasumigaura, Tokio air base.

Major Zanni reached here Wednesday from Foochow, Fukien province, where he had been delayed by bad weather and motor trouble. He previously had been held a month at Hanoi, French Indo-China, while a spare airplane was being rushed to replace the one he wrecked there.

Human Head Found Hewed From Body Near Birmingham

Birmingham, Ala., October 2.—Discovery of the head of a white man which evidently had been severed from the body with a sharp instrument near Oxmoor, a Birmingham suburb, today brought a score of officers to work on a case that developed many mystifying angles.

The head had been badly disfigured by the use of acid, authorities said. The discovery was made by Newton Curl, an Oxmoor grocer, who was a former deputy sheriff. It was concealed in a clump of bushes.

It was believed that identification would be impossible except by the teeth and shape of the head. The acid had eaten deeply into the flesh.

Authorities later ordered Oxmoor lake dragged expecting to find the remainder of the man's body. The man was believed to have been about thirty years of age.

Officers were running down the few clues at hand in an effort to determine whether the crime was a continuation of Birmingham's "are murderer" record.

TRAIN CRASH VICTIMS REMOVED FROM TUNNEL

Mayence, Germany, October 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—Eight bodies have been recovered from the railway tunnel near here, where a local train and the Mayence-Mannheim express, headed for Worms, met in a rear-end collision yesterday. Thirty-five injured persons have been found and it is feared the number of casualties will increase as the rescue work proceeds. Troops from Mayence and firemen sent by the French military authorities are working desperately to clear away the debris and to find whether there are any persons buried under it.

The collision is believed to have been caused by the failure to operate of the block system and by a signal man's misunderstanding of a telephone message.

Fishermen have reported an unusual number of sharks in Manila bay in recent weeks, and some scientists believe that the many earthquakes experienced in the Philippines and adjacent islands have driven the sharks into less disturbed waters.

FORSYTH PATRONS HAVE FINE BILL THIS WEEK-END

A tight-wire act, a couple in broad farce, a comedy sketch, a black-face team and a pretentious dancing concoction, added to Pathe News and Aesop's Fables, make up the second-half bill for this week at the Forsyth theater.

Best act on bill? S'easy—the dancing number. Three dancing girls, one who sings a little, a dancing man and a girl at the piano. The toe-dancer is particularly good in her pirouette number, the little announcer has a winning smile, an appealing voice and is exceptionally pretty. The costumes in the final number are unusually good.

The black-face team was one of two acts to draw the most applause from last night's audience. They are billed as "The London Johnnies," but the description was puzzling until the thought occurred that there is more than one London in the world. They probably call London, Ontario, home. But they are funny, especially "Al"

The other act which shared the honors in regard to applause is "Senna and Dean," an exaggerated burlesque on what may be an accepted state of affairs in a generation or two. While it is broad in places, it is of such a nature that it cannot be brought to a conclusion and they have to break away abruptly into a stereotyped ukelele close.

The comedy sketch is featured by the presence of Irene Sarli in the cast. She was, it will be remembered, a featured player with Jimmy Hodges stock musical comedy company here all summer. The sketch is rich in "fat" lines and is, in fact, little more than a stringing together of sure-fire cross-talk.

SHIFTS MADE IN GEORGIA LINEUP

BY MARCUS BRYANT.

Athens, Ga., October 2.—(Special.) Preparations for the game with South Carolina here Saturday ended for the Georgia Bulldogs with a light workout this afternoon. For the past three afternoons Georgia coaches have sent the candidates through long and gruelling scrimmages, and the showing of the varsity has been good. A preliminary to the Gamecock battle has been arranged. The Georgia freshmen will play Riverside at 1 o'clock. This game marks the opening of the season for the frosh.

John Fletcher will see Sanford field this afternoon for the first time in grid togs for almost two weeks. The Georgia captain was injured one week prior to the Mercer game, and although he will be unable to play Saturday, expects to be ready for the Furman game, two weeks hence.

An injury to his knee will also keep George Morton from performing in affair with Carolina. Morton displayed great form last Saturday, and his services will be sorely missed. Howell Hollis will also be out Saturday, receiving injury to his arm in Wednesday's scrimmage. He is expected to be back in harness Monday. Another casualty was added to the list in the form of a bad sprain to Jack Floyd's foot Thursday afternoon. Other members of the Bulldog squad are in very good condition for the game.

Shifts in Lineup.

The week has seen two shifts in the Red and Black lineup. "Teanny" Randall, who has been shifted from half to fullback, has been showing great class and is being counted upon Saturday. Jake Butler is now cavorting at the flank position of Captain Fletcher and is caring for the wing duties in good fashion. It will be remembered that Butler started in the Chicago game, several years ago, at an end position.

Practically the same lineup, with the exception of these two changes, is expected to be used by the Red and Black against the Gamecocks. No easy game is expected in Saturday's melee, and Coach Woodruff has been sending his Bulldogs through stiff paces. Carolina brings to Athens a strong team, according to reports, and one which is pointed to win over the Red and Black.

A strong overhead attack is expected to be in evidence. Sol Metzer has drilled aerial perfection into the invaders' offense, and last Saturday the Gamecocks completed every attempted pass with the exception of one.

This game is the last appearance here of the Bulldogs until the Tennessee tilt, which will be played November 1.

FORT PLANS FOR FIGHT CROWD

Plans for accommodating a big crowd of Atlanta fight fans next Wednesday night for the Larry Avera-K. O. Moore fight are being made at Fort McPherson following a big show of interest in Atlanta in the next local scrap of Avera, who claims the junior welterweight championship of the south. Moore has just been transferred to Fort McPherson from Panama, where he held the junior welterweight championship of the army.

The fight will offer Atlanta fans their first view of Avera in action since last spring, when he scored a technical knockout over the Walloping Wop, another Fort McPherson soldier with high ambitions, but not enough punch or speed to hold his own against Avera.

Tickets have already gone on sale at Chess' Place and the Rex poolroom, with ringside seats selling for a dollar. Other tickets are 50 cents and 75 cents.

There will be four six-minute events to start the show and an eight-round semi-windup between Young Bernier and Larry O'Leary. Bernier is also a soldier while O'Leary is an Atlanta boxer who has shown well in preliminaries to Atlanta main events. The 22nd infantry band also is on the program.

Avera is working in the gym over the Tudor theater every day. Moore has a company of soldiers training him at the fort.

Plans for the next year's activities in the amateur athletic circles of the southeast were laid last night by members of the executive committee of the Southeastern Amateur Athletic union in their annual meeting at the Atlanta Athletic club.

Following award of championship meets for the next 12 months, C. W. Streit, Jr., of the Birmingham Athletic club, was re-elected president, with Al Doonan, of the Atlanta Athletic club, as first vice president. Other officers named were J. H. Bayliss, Pensacola Athletic club; W. E. Flower, Orange County Athletic club, Orlando, Fla., and O. M. Churchill, Memphis Country club, vice presidents, and Frank A. Kopf, Athletic club, secretary and treasurer. These officers will be delegates to the national A. A. U. convention in Atlantic City, Nov. 17-18.

Atlanta gets two of the championship meets and Birmingham gets three during the coming year, according to the plans adopted at last night's meeting. The Atlanta meets are the boxing championships, to be staged by Georgia Tech in February and the track and field championships to be staged jointly by Georgia Tech and the A. A. C. in May, 1925.

Birmingham Meets.

The Birmingham championships are in wrestling, in March, the cross-country, in December, and the women's swimming meet the first Saturday in August.

Pensacola gets the men's swimming championships, to be held the third Saturday in August, and the basketball championships will be staged in a city to be named later by the championships committee. Albany may get the basketball meet if the necessary arrangements can be made.

A move for the establishment of a Florida Amateur Athletic union, separate from, and with status similar, to that of the Southeastern A. A. U., was made by Ray Greene, representing the Orange County Athletic club, of Orlando, Fla. Greene made a determined stand for immediate action by the Southeastern A. A. U. executive committee, but the matter was tabled for a year.

Other members of the committee declared that staging of meets in Florida under the Southeastern A. A. U. means more advanced competition than would be found in meets under a Florida A. A. U., if sanctioned by the American A. A. U.

Reports Show Progress.

Reports read at the executive committee meeting showed that more interest was taken in the southeast last year in amateur athletics than in any other year since organization of the Southeastern A. A. U. Nine athletes from the southeast were selected to compete in the Olympic games held in Paris. In former Olympiads the south had only two or three representatives.

Pete Sarron, Birmingham newsboy boxer, and Homer Welchel, of Tech, entered in the javelin throw, were among the athletes from the south to go to the Olympics.

Indications at the meeting last night were that Tech is planning with the A. A. C. the biggest boxing championships in the history of the Southeastern A. A. U. Lieutenant T. F. Joyce, stationed at Tech, is directly in charge of these events.

DAWES ANSWERS BROOKHART SHOT

Kansas City, October 2.—(By The Associated Press.)—The alliance between the La Follette movement and the socialist party was condemned as "a menace to American institutions and the American government," by Charles G. Dawes, the republican vice presidential nominee, in an address to a capacity audience here tonight in Convention hall.

The audience, the largest Mr. Dawes yet has addressed during the campaign, and which filled the hall with its estimated capacity of approximately 12,000, yelled, whooped and cheered as the republican vice presidential nominee hammered the La Follette candidacy, and laughed and cheered when he paid his respects to the democratic party by declaring:

Raps Democratic Party.

"The democratic party occupies the position of the one who attempts to straddle in a real fight and you all know what happens in such a case—he is lucky to escape with his life."

Mr. Dawes quoted from a resolution adopted by the socialist party convention at Cleveland last July and from an article by Eugene V. Debs, several times socialist candidate for president, to show the nature of the alliance between the La Follette movement and the socialist party.

The resolution adopted by the socialist convention declared that the conference for progressive political action, which nominated Senator La Follette, "was organized with the assistance of the socialist party and our party cooperated with it in its work and development."

Crowds larger than on any of his other previous tours greeted Mr. Dawes at Davenport and Muscatine, Iowa, and Trenton, Mo., where platform speeches had been scheduled, and hastily assembled smaller groups heard him attack the La Follette movement at Rock Island, Ill., Fairfield, Iowa, and Princeton, Mo.

Answers Brookhart.

"The issue raised by Senator La Follette involving the constitution of the United States covers all other issues," the nominee declared at Muscatine. "What will become of wages? What will become of the price of farm products? What will become of business if this La Follette movement is successful? It means chaos."

Arriving in Iowa early in the day Mr. Dawes found almost the sole topic of discussion among republican leaders to be the letter written by Senator Smith W. Brookhart of that state to Republican Chairman Butler, requesting that steps be taken to remove Mr. Dawes from the party's national ticket. He did not mention the Brookhart letter directly in any of his Iowa speeches, but at Davenport made a reference which was generally construed as pertaining to Mr. Brookhart's demand.

"I am not descending to personalities in this campaign," he said, "but I fired into a flock of political pee-wits out here and some of the wounded birds are fluttering. Perhaps you can identify them—I don't know."

The audience cheered.

SUTTON EXPLAINS $12,000 INCREASE IN SCHOOL COSTS

Explanation of the $12,000 increase in the September school payroll over the payroll of last June 1, requested by Mayor Walter A. Sims of John T. Hancock, president of the board of education, was given Thursday by Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools. Mr. Hancock could not be reached during the day.

Mr. Sutton stated that one reason for the increase was that the Smith-Hughes and night classes in city schools had closed before the June payroll was presented, whereas they opened early in September, and salaries of teachers and expenses incurred in connection with operation of the schools were on the September payroll. There probably will be an additional increase during the present month, he said.

In addition, cost of operation in the labor department of school was increased during September because of extensive repairs made on school buildings to put them in the best of shape for opening of the school year, Mr. Sutton added.

He also stated that the September payroll was $10,000 lower than was anticipated, totaling only $182,000, while it had been estimated at $192,000.

DIXIE BUS SCHEDULE ARRANGED FOR FAIR

The Dixie Coaches, Inc., will operate an hourly schedule during the Southeastern fair, it was announced Thursday. Buses will leave every hour from 7 o'clock to 1 o'clock each day. They will follow the Whitehall to Mitchell, to South Pryor street route, beginning at 86 Peachtree street.

Loss of Sleep Cause of Fall And Severe Cuts

Too weak from loss of sleep to carry a pail of milk into the house, T. S. Stokes, 59, of 150 Groves street, while walking across the backyard at this home to ask neighbors to help him carry the pail, stumbled and fell across a pile of tin clippings and almost severed his right arm, according to a story told at Grady hospital Thursday night.

Mr. Stokes, who is a furniture dealer, employed by Burnett & Clapper, told a sorrowful tale of having gone without sleep for many days while keeping watch over his sick wife. Thursday night, he said, he milked the cow, but was so weak he couldn't lift the pail.

Physicians at Grady took a number of stitches in his arm, and stated that his condition was not serious.

Instead of getting a wedding ring and a husband this morning, pretty Miss Angela Houstin, 26, of Jacksonville, Fla., will mourn the loss of two valuable diamond rings and probably rejoice in the loss of what would have been a mighty poor mate.

She told city detectives Thursday night that she was dined by a very likable young man early in the evening at a chicken house on the Marietta road. The young man, Miss Houstin said, was an acquaintance acquired only a short while before the dinner. He made violent love to her, she said, and proposed marriage. The ceremony was to take place this morning.

When she left him Thursday night, with the understanding on the morrow that they should meet and become man and wife, she discovered that two expensive diamond rings were missing from a handkerchief in which she had tied them. She lost little time in telling the police all about it, and detectives are searching for the gay deceiver. His name was not divulged.

BOB COBB THANKS FRIENDS FOR VOTES

Appreciation of support in the city primary on September 24 was expressed in a statement issued Thursday by Bob Cobb, Jr., who was defeated for councilman from the ninth ward in a close race with Councilman C. D. Knight, and William H. Spratlin, chairman of the Bob Cobb committee.

The statement follows:

Gratitude being the first principle of friendship, we are taking this opportunity of expressing our deepest thanks to the many friends and supporters during the recent councilmanic race.

"Though not victorious, the battle was well and cleanly fought, and to our friends we attribute the splendid feeling that existed in our ranks.

"Today is gone, but our face is turned toward the dawning tomorrow and our hearts are filled with pride as we look back over the legion of friends and workers who gave untiringly of their time, efforts and support. We feel that such actions as were accorded our committee cannot go unrewarded, and the seeds we have sown will bear a harvest of achievements in the future."

DRIVER OF TRUCK DIES UNDER TANK IN AUTO MISHAP

Swainsboro, Ga., October 2.—Horace Kite, a young white man, employed by the Gulf Refining company here, was killed instantly today about a mile from Swainsboro, when a tank truck turned over on him. He was originally from Kite, but had been here several years working for the local branch.

BANDS OF RAIDERS LEAVE ALBANIA

Rome, October 2.—Dispatches from Scutari report that the bands of Montenegrens and Jugo-Slavs who invaded the northern districts of Albania last week have retired across the border.

A special Albanian commission is attempting to ascertain the damage done by the bands. Order has been restored in the zone.

Rifle Match Is Finished

Camp Perry, Ohio, October 2.—The United States engineer corps brought the National Rifle association's matches for 1924 to a close today by winning the national rifle team match with a total of 2,782, six points better than the score of the marine corps, which had held the trophy since 1916. The coast artillery was third with 2,749.

MRS. WILLIAMS WINS MAIER BERKLE CUP

Mrs. T. T. Williams won the finals in the woman's golf tourney yesterday, defeating Mrs. L. H. Beck, one up, on the 18th green. This makes the second time Mrs. Williams has won this handicap trophy. She won it the first year Maier and Berkle offered the trophy.

Her short game was the feature of this match. Her approaches were lead, except on one or two holes, and her putting on the greens was marvelous.

Mrs. Beck played a fine game also. It was a treat to follow the match, particularly in the pinches when either player needed a dead approach or to sink a long putt for a win or a halve. Mrs. Beck has not been playing golf for over a year until recently.

In the second flight Mrs. J. E. Jagoe defeated Mrs. C. F. Humphrey, Jr., two up, in what proved to be a very good match.

Mrs. Jesse Daniel and Mrs. Wimberly Peters had a close match in the third flight. Mrs. Peters won on the 18th green, one up.

In the fourth flight, Mrs. W. M. Otey defeated Mrs. Lewis Gregg, three up and two to play.

This proved to be one of the most successful tournaments ever staged over the Piedmont course, and the assistance rendered the players by D. E. O'Callaghan, Piedmont pro., was appreciated by all the players and the Atlanta Woman's Golf association gave him a unanimous vote of thanks.

The next tournament sponsored by the Atlanta Woman's Golf association is for the city championship, and will be played at the East Lake country club, beginning Monday, October 6.

GIANTS MEET JOHNSON BARRAGE

Catcher, New York Giants.

Washington, October 2.—This business of writing pieces for the paper is a little bit wide of my regular line of work but I've got some ideas about the world series and if you give me enough words I guess I can express them. I may muff a few plays but if you put a catcher's muzzle and pads on George Bernard Shaw and sent him into a ball game he might have a few passed balls, too.

Now, in coming to Washington to play the Senators, we've been hearing nothing but Walter Johnson, I won't say we've heard too much Johnson because I have known and liked Walter for years and used to play against him when the Senators and my old club, the Braves, barnstormed their way home from the training camps in the springtime. And, anyway, the whole country is with me in regarding Walter as a great national athletic character. His standing is conceded and I don't have to convince anyone, which simplifies matters a lot.

But this is a short series and not a whole season of baseball. You can't say that any man, even Johnson, is bound to win a game in a world series although he has been great all season. I know something about the contrariness of human nature in a world series. I learned it in the 1914 series between the Braves and Athletics. I was a pretty obscure party until we got into the series and I pasted one on the nose for a home run in the tenth and pasted another for a two bagger in the twelfth. Nobody had any idea that I would be such a disturbing hitter, least of all, me myself.

The Giants, speaking now of the fellows on the team, were glad to see the Washington club win the pennant. They're the kind of fellows that we all like to see at the top. I am personally friendly with most of them and can quote myself as saying that they are as fine a crowd of athletic young gentlemen as you could gather together.

TIGER BILLED HERE OCT. 7

Walk Miller, who manages Tiger Flowers and makes matches for the Disabled American veterans of the world war came back to Atlanta Thursday bristling with announcements regarding his future activities. In the first place Miller declared that regardless of all handicaps Flowers will be presented here in a fight on October 21.

Battling Siki may be the Tiger's opponent. He was scheduled to have fought here on October 7, but the fight was reported called off because Siki would not post a forfeit. That report, according to Miller was wrong. The fight went by the boards because Bob Levy, manager of Siki, is unable to find his fighter. If Siki is not secured for the date here, Larry Estridge, colored middleweight champion of the world, or Cleve Hawkins, Canadian fighter, will be brought here to fill the engagement. Miller also announced that he will move to New York this month and establish offices there and also maintain connections here.

There are 500 silver fox ranches in the United States with a total of about 15,000 foxes in captivity. About $8,000,000 are invested in this industry.

ORANGE TEAM ENTERS FINALS IN POLO RACE

Westbury, N. Y., October 2.—The California polo team was eliminated from the tournament for the Monty Waterbury cup today at Meadowbrook, failing to hold a handicap of four goals which it receive from the Orange county horsemen, and losing in the semi-final match, 12 to 8.

By virtue of its victory over the westerners, holders of the national junior and the American open championships, Orange county will meet the Shelbourne four in the final match for the trophy on Saturday, winding up the eastern polo season of 1924. Today, in the other semi-final on International field, Shelburne defeated the Hurricanes 8 to 7.

The defeat of the Californians was one of the big upsets of the season. Having won the open championship in which the same Orange county four competed less than a week ago, the westerners, with a handicap of four goals, were expected to have little trouble today, but the Orange county riders included three internationalists, Malcolm Stevenson and Robert E. Strawbridge, Jr., of the American four, and Jack Nelson, star of the Argentine. The fourth member, W. Averill Harriman, played like an internationalist.

Against that combination and the strong game displayed by each member of it, the westerners were unable to maintain their handicap allowance.

The second game took two extra periods but finally Devereaux Milburn got the ball near his own goal and with two drives that carried over a hundred yards each, he sent through the winning tally.

The Portland cement industry has grown from a production in 1883 of 90,000 barrels to a consumption in 1923 of 137,377,000 barrels.

BY GORDON KEITH.

Football will engage the attention of five of Atlanta's prep teams this afternoon. Four of them swing into action today for the first time this season. Three of the games are slated for local fields.

Boys' High and Marist bring visiting elevens into camp to open a season that promises to be as colorful and exciting in the prep grids as with the older college machines. Gordon institute is the worthy opponent of the Purple Hurricane, and the Cornelia High team will furnish the opposition on the Marist campus. University school plays the remaining local game, invading the Petrel stronghold at Hermance field to engage the Oglethorpe freshmen. The G. M. A. team will make the journey to Cave Springs to open its schedule with the Hearn academy football players. Decatur gets off to its second start, playing Marietta in Marietta.

Saturday Tech High, the last of the preps to begin scheduled competition, will entertain the Darlington team from Rome on Tech Flats at 10 o'clock. The Smithies have been working hard and long for their opening game, and the fact that their scheduled opening battle last week was cancelled by Commerce has made the team even more anxious for blood.

The cessation of rain the first of the week and the appearance of cold, bracing weather has given plenty of energy and scrap to the squads and the finishing touches have been made by all the coaches to their pet machines. Coach Winkler has had his hands full selecting 10 new men to compose his varsity, and the rejuvenated Boys' High outfit will be watched with interest in this afternoon's engagement.

Coach Bean has been putting his charges through the paces and the Marist team, although exceptionally light, has plenty of speed and certainly packs a dangerous punch. Several of last year's regulars returned to school after the first couple of weeks, and the cadets boast the presence of some six letter men. Coach Phillips has his University Bluebirds well groomed for their initial performance this afternoon against the Oglethorpe freshmen eleven. University will play in Atlanta only twice after today's battle. Next week they bring Anniston Military academy here, and on October 24 they will entertain the Columbus High team. The varsity will probably line up at the opening whistle this afternoon as follows: Freeman and Hamm, ends; Speer and Timmons, tackles; Captain Malsby and Wilder, guards; Jacobson, center; Smith, quarter; Butler and Medlin, halves, and Daughdrill, full.

Coaches Morrow and Hatcher leave this morning with 15 of their regulars to open the G. M. A. football season in Cave Springs. The Hearn Academy team is largely an unknown quantity, but the local cadets should come back with plenty of bacon. The cadets will line up at the start of the game as follows: O'Neil and Bacon, ends; Oliver and Bailey, tackles; Rainey and Smith, guards; Bell, center; Captain Pike, quarter; Dickson and Eaton, halves, and Camp, fullback.

Decatur will tackle their old enemies, Marietta, in the enemy city this afternoon, and the usual good battle is expected. Decatur has won consistently over Marietta in recent years.

BAN JOHNSON TO ASK FEDERAL BASEBALL PROBE

BY H. H. ROBERTSON.

Chicago, October 2.—President Ban Johnson, president of the American league, will ask the United States government to investigate the scandal which has developed in the ranks of the New York Giants' baseball club.

President Johnson said Thursday that he had already retained counsel to help him in his efforts to have the government institute an investigation. He will confer with them in Washington, D. C., Sunday. They are B. S. Minor, of Washington, and H. J. Killilea, of Milwaukee.

The American league president declared with emphasis that he would not consult with Commissioner Landis concerning his determination to clean-up baseball.

"I believe that this investigation should be made through the federal courts," he declared. "I also believe that such an investigation will uncover an astonishing scandal in the ranks of baseball.

"I am going after the criminals, and I intend to see that they are punished. I believe the world series should be called off. But if the series is not called off, I am going ahead anyway and try to clean-up baseball once and for all."

Not to Ask Cancellation.

Johnson said he would not ask any American or National league officials to call off the series.

"Baseball is a national pastime," he asserted. "It is a sport played by the nation's youth, and when they cease to play it they all go to the games, whether they are laborers or bank presidents. This game must be kept clean. The time has come when the federal government has got to step in and eliminate rotten influences at work seeking to corrupt baseball and the players. I'm going to ask the government to protect baseball, and some of us are sure that the government will do it."

Carefully weighing his words, President Johnson explained that he believed an authoritative body or group of men, entirely outside of the game, should investigate the latest alleged scandal and should help prosecute those responsible for it.

"So far as my investigation is concerned, it is going to be an entirely independent one," Johnson declared. "I am not going to ask Commissioner Landis to take a hand in this. I am going after the criminals and I am going to prosecute them. I am not going to spare expense either."

Mentions No Names.

Johnson added the declaration that when the investigation was finished "some persons now in baseball would be out of it."

Asked to name these persons, he declined to do so.

"The American league wants a fair and honest investigation, and I, as head of the league, am astonished that legal proceedings already have not been instituted," he said.

Johnson will leave Chicago Saturday. He will confer with Minor and Killilea in Washington Sunday noon. On Monday he expects to commence his investigation, and with others he has invited to assist him, will confer with government officers.

Killilea is chief counsel of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. Minor formerly was president of the Washington baseball club.

Johnson's announcement of his intention to "go after the men who have been corrupting baseball" was made at his modest but comfortable home here. The head of the American league, in his shirt sleeves and slippers, sat puffing at a pipe as he discussed with considerable indignation what he called "this scandalous situation arising on the eve of the world series."

Landis Action Puzzles.

"I can't understand why I was not officially notified of this disgraceful affair," Johnson said. 'Commissioner Landis must have known of this before he left for the east, and I do not understand why he did not send me word.

"Here is this National league team, which apparently has been corrupted—at least some of its players have been approached—coming to play one of our teams. It is time somebody took vigorous action and I am going through with it."

O'CONNELL, DOLAN ONLY ONES GUILTY.

Washington, October 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—The 1924 world's series will go on notwithstanding that baseball was shaken to its foundations today by a whirlwind succession of developments growing out of the attempt of Jimmy O'Connell, young New York outfielder, to bribe Heinie Sand, Philadelphia shortstop, in the game that decided the National league pennant race for the Giants.

This was the declaration tonight of Kennesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball. It was made after a hectic day, during which fresh charges were flung by O'Connell, who had been banished for all time from the game, together with Cozy Dolan, Giant coach, accused of instigating the bribery plot, and during which prominent baseball officials, including President Ban Johnson, of the American league, and President Barney Dreyfus, of the Pittsburg club, asserted the series should be called off as a result of the scandal.

Unmoved, apparently, by the day's developments, and declining to amplify the statement he issued late last night in New York, disclosing the plot and debarring Dolan and O'Connell, the commissioner declared he saw no prospect of developments that would prevent the start of the championship battle Saturday between Washington's first pennant-winner and the Giants.

No New Evidence.

Furthermore, the commissioner indicated he had no new evidence calculated to widen the scope of the attempted bribery deal, a possibility brought to the fore today by O'Connell's reiteration that the Giants were "all in it" and the specific mention of three veterans, George Kelly, Frank Frisch and Ross Young.

"So far as I am concerned, no cloud now hangs over any member of the Giant team eligible to play in the world's series," the commissioner declared. "They will go into the world's series with the Senators on Saturday."

Waving aside as "ridiculous" reports that the Giants would be disbarred as a team and Brooklyn, the runner-up, selected to represent the National league in the series, the commissioner emphasized that so far as he could foresee, no further finger of suspicion pointed to the National league champions.

Smashing his fist on a table when pressed by newspapermen to comment on the day's developments, the commissioner declared:

"It seems to me to be time for those persons not clothed with responsibility to keep their shirts on.

"There was a clear case of bribery; it proved abortive, the guilty men have been punished. Why call off the series?"

Insists He is "Goat."

In New York, O'Connell, former $75,000 "beauty" and center of the storm that has shaken the game as nothing else since the White Sox scandal of 1919, reiterated the charges he had made before Commissioner Landis implicating others of his teammates besides Dolan and asserting he was being made the "goat."

O'Connell not only insisted that Dolan was the instigator of the scheme of approaching Sand, but that Frank Frisch, George Kelly and Ross Young, veteran regulars, made it plain to him they were "in" on the deal.

BOOTS ANTLEY BEATS WHITE

Columbus, Ga., October 2.—(Special.)—Boots Antley, local boxer, was awarded a decision over Joe White here tonight in the feature bout of the evening. It was a good fight and the large crowd that attended seemed well pleased with the efforts of the boxers.

Joe Burmen, a sparring partner of W. L. "Young" Stribling, put Soldier McFadden, the champion of Camp Benning, to sleep with a knock-out wallop in the third round of their engagement.

Special World Title Race Arranged for Lakewood

Sig Haugdahl, world speed king, will be given a real chance to show his kingship on the Lakewood track tomorrow afternoon during the auto races that are slated as the feature attraction to open the big Fair.

A special match race has finally been arranged that meets with the approval of International Motor Contest association officials. According to local speed champs, the race will not only be a barometer to the world's championship, but will aid materially in determining this year's title holder as it is to be an I. M. C. A. championship event with points awarded to the winner.

Prior to the match race an elimination event will be run between Fred Horey, former dirt track champion of the world, and who, according to dopesters, is Haugdahl's greatest rival for dirt track honors; Bo Murray, famed Chicago Frontenac driver, who has been cutting a fancy figure on Hawthorne and Robey speedways this summer; Jack Johnson, Detroit speed merchant and runner up to the mid-western championship this year, and George Tibbetts, dark horse Fiat pilot who clipped off a couple of Buckeye state track records and the Buckeye Derby on northern Ohio tracks in the early summer race meets.

The winner of this race will meet Haugdahl in a three-lap race, Haugdahl using his Fiat Red Dragon, one of the fastest and best balanced dirt track cars ever in racing. Haugdahl's Fiat is well-known to Atlanta fans as he has used the mount in several local race meets and has never been beaten with it on the local track in a race in which he finished.

Suspicious Crowd Greets Giant Team at Washington

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Washington, October 2.—The New York Giants landed in Washington Thursday night after a swift dash down from New York, believing themselves to be officially pure. Their greeting by an idling crowd just outside the gates of the railroad terminal was slightly edged with the ermine of frost. The Giants thought nothing of this at the moment, however, as they didn't exactly expect to be kissed or pelted with fresh-plucked rose petals from the white house gardens. But when they reached their hotel they began to realize that Jimmie O'Connell and Cozey Dolan, who had been left behind in a state neighboring on mortal disgrace, were not the only members of the troupe to be tarred with the smear of suspicion.

Of course, it was no secret that O'Connell had named Frankie Frisch, the field captain and second baseman of the team; Ross Young, the best outfielder in the National league, and George Kelly, the first baseman, as members of a band of corruption which was to procure the tossing of a ball game by Heinie Sand, of the Phillies. But the men thought that Judge Landis, the great-I-am of organized baseball, had washed away the stain, and were almost hilarious with relief to think that they all stood before the country again as men whose honor had been certified by the infallible one.

Ban Johnson Protests.

Landing in Washington, however, the Giants learned that Ban Johnson, president of the American league, was sounding his old familiar war whoop out in Chicago, in another revolt against the arbitrary judgments and widely-conceded all-wisdom of the judge. Ever since Landis was appointed high commissioner of the entire organized game, a job which ranks Johnson's, Ban has been trying to sow a crop of boll weevils in the judge's picturesque cotton thatch. This time he was demanding a review of Landis' judgments in the scandal of the Giants, to take the form of a general investigation of baseball matters in the federal courts.

If there are any more guilty schemers in the personnel of the ball club, they should be able to make a living at play-acting after they have been fired out of the game, for they were a pretty merry band of tourists as the Congressional Limited clicked down the line from New York. Half a dozen of them had their wives with them, an attractive, well-dressed group of young women, who wore enough diamonds in the aggregate to testify that baseball is not one of the starving professions. The men larked about the pullmans or chatted airily, all except Heinie Groh, the injured third baseman, who sat nursing his tender leg and had to use a cane when he went to the diner.

Murky Atmosphere.

The effect of Johnson's blast against the judge was to create a murky atmosphere around the entire Giants' team as Ban implied that Landis had not gone to the bottom of the thing in his investigation in New York. The innocent groped with the guilty, if any, and no man was absolutely certain that his roommate's record would wash out stainless in the end.

Unless some guilty conspirator should blow up, it would be just about impossible to get any member of the team to talk, for the Giants are a very timid group of athletes regardless of how dashing they may appear on the ball-field. They are afraid to have opinions of their own and would be afraid to state them if they had any, because John J. McGraw does the thinking and talking for all hands.

If a waitress asks a noble athlete whether he wants his eggs fried on both sides or only on the southern exposure the Giant says: "I don't know; ask Mr. McGraw." Naturally, then, there was no loose gabbing about the crookedness as the players came to Washington, and the nearest thing to an expression of opinion that could be obtained from the most daring member of the club was a hypothetical venture that anyone who would try to frame a ball game in this day, and especially any member of the Giants who would do such a thing, must be an awful imbecile.

No Opinions.

The Giants are ruled with a code of discipline that makes the rigid routine of the marines look positively slouchy. Even Hughey Jennings, the assistant manager, would not think of expressing an opinion on the way the world's series would go when this harmless query was put to him in the buffet car.

The scandal which now resounds around the leagues, picking up new voices in Chicago and also in Pittsburg, where Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pirates, is ululating by night, recalls the case of Shufflin' Phil Douglas, who was fired from the Giants a couple of years ago for offering to quit and thereby hamper his club. And the Douglas case recalls the fact that the club management had a sort of spy system in operation then, whereby Douglas was chaperoned on one of his forays among the speakeasies of New York. Cozey Dolan, in fact, was both a snooper and a coach and it is ironic, indeed, to find Cozey, himself, one of the pair whom Judge Landis judged to be unfit for further association with the game.

Spies on Duty.

It is a matter of baseball gossip around New York that no member of the Giants ever knows when his actions are being watched. Whether or not this is so, it is a fact that McGraw is always very well informed on the conduct of his men in their hours off the field and that the honest players have to be very careful about their choice of associates, lest they be seen sometime with one of the Broadway gamblers.

Culen Cain, press agent for the National league, said that when Landis called O'Connell before him and wrung from him the alleged confession, he followed up his examination with the demand: "O'Connell, what did you do this for?"

The judge's object, Cain said, was to give Jimmie, who is a young fellow, and perhaps one who might be led astray by an older one, a chance to make some explanation.

O'Connell replied, according to Cain: "I don't know, judge; I heard about this money that the boys were raising and I just ran out of the dugout and spoke to Sand without stopping to think."

Auburn Tigers Rehearse Against 'Crapshooter' Shift

Auburn, Ala., October 2.—(Special.) The third day's grind this week for the Auburn Plainsmen was toned down Wednesday from the gruelling affair of Tuesday and the regulars were allowed to view the workings of some of the Clemson formations from defensive positions in a short scrimmage with the scrub team, which rehearsed some of the formations said to be in use in the mountain air. While the scrimmage assumed the proportions of a real scrimmage the rough work was cut short and a brisk formation drill was substituted.

The Jungaleers from the Clemson campus are alleged to put to use a general system of play in their offensive play known as the "crapshooters'" shift which is said to be very deceptive in its make-up. To combat these tricky formations which are formed around the two halves, Messrs. Robertson and Harman, the Tigers will have to resort to alert and on-the-jump football.

No information could be obtained as to the probable line-up that will first greet the guests from the Carolina hills. English, a promising tackle of the varsity outfit, sustained a sprained ankle that may keep him on the sidelines Saturday.

Competent Officials.

According to announcement made today by the athletic officials three well-known officials and grid men will officiate in Saturday's conflict. Everett Strupper, famous Georgia Tech star of a few years ago, will referee, while Williams, a former Virginia star, will umpire and Moriarty, St. Marys, will act in capacity of headlinesman.

According to football records, Saturday's game will mark the 19th game played by Auburn and Clemson teams. These conflicts cover a period of 25 years dating back to 1899 when the Plainsmen trounced the Carolina team by a score of 34 to 0. The following game in 1902 when the Clemsonites took revenge the score was Auburn 0, Clemson 16. Clemson again won in 1905 and 1906, the former game resulting in a 6 to 0 score and the latter in a 6 to 4 decision.

The only other time the mountain lads crossed the Tiger goal line was in 1912 which resulted in an Auburn victory by a 27 to 6 count. During the quarter of a century the two teams have engaged in grid battles Auburn has totalled 300 points while Clemson's total figures 34.

EMORY TEAMS ARE READY FOR GAME

Nearly a hundred men have reported to the Emory athletic field for football practice every afternoon this week in preparation for this season's inter-class games, which begin on Monday, October 13. Five teams are having regular daily practice, with a coach from the faculty in charge of each.

The team representing the freshman class, always a subject of speculation, is showing a wealth of promising material, drawn from prep and high schools. Over 30 freshmen are out for the team, and under the direction of Professor Huntley, the new track and field coach, who is also somewhat of an expert on football, it looks probable that they will put out one of the strongest teams on the campus.

The sophomore team, the weakest team of last year, which is still in the struggle, has acquired several new players who are expected to fill in the gaps in the team, especially to give more driving power to the backfield.

The junior team has nearly all its last year's men back, and are hoping to cinch the championship which they came so near to last year, the season ending in a tie.

The theologs have a formidable aggregation and are working hard to get into shape, while the law school-graduate school-L. A. seniors combination is just beginning to organize.

PETRELS SET FOR BENNING CONTEST

BY BILL MORROW.

While the Oglethorpe varsity is closing its week of practice this afternoon preparatory to the meeting with the Camp Benning officers Saturday in Columbus, the freshman eleven will play host to the formidable grid combination of the University school. The Petrel regulars are slated for a light workout this afternoon after which they will entrain for Columbus where reports have it a strong band is eagerly awaiting their arrival.

The meeting between the Oglethorpe Rats and the local prep eleven marks the second battle of the season for the Peachtree road first-year combination. Last week the freshmen invaded the community of the Monroe A. and M. gridders, and played a scoreless tie game. Coach Harry Robertson tried a trio of heavy backs yesterday afternoon, probably counting on this combination to take care of the offense on a muddy field. The backfield was generaled by Campbell, regular quarterback. Hambrick Guthrie and Kilgore made up the list of the heavy backs who probably will be given a chance to show their plunging power when the Petrels go on against the Benning officers.

The Petrel squad is in good condition for the second meeting of the '24 schedule. Captain Maurer has rid himself of a bad infection of his foot and the slight hurts to others of the squad are practically well. In the tilt with Tech the Petrels suffered practically no injuries. Coach Robertson failed to call for a scrimmage yesterday afternoon, seeming satisfied with a charging contest between two lines. The backs were also put through a nice workout, running under a rope, evading tacklers and showing their speed.

The meeting with the Oglethorpe forces marks the first appearance of the Camp Benning eleven. Although the Petrels have accounted for wins on previous visits to the officers' community, there is no assurance that Coach Robertson's clan will repeat Saturday.

The officers are reported to have a formidable squad, several notables of past seasons holding berths on the eleven. Two all-American men, "Dutch" Smythe and "Jock" McQuarrie, both of West Point, are in the line-up. Other notables are Cole, of the University of Arkansas, and Roderick, of Illinois.

Flying Squadron to Take Short Workout in Atlanta; Jackets in Final Practice

As Coach Alexander yesterday afternoon was calling his swarm of Yellow Jackets from Grant field from their final practice of the week, 28 Cadets from V. M. I. were leaving Lexington, Va., on a special car that will put them in Atlanta at noon today for a local workout this afternoon before tangling Saturday with Tech.

Heading the V. M. I. crew of gridders leaving for Atlanta was Captain Carl Hammond. In the party, besides the 28 football men, are Coaches Blandy Clarkson and Bill Raferty, Trainer Percy Quinlan, Manager J. M. Hatchett and H. H. Holt, representing The Cadet, the barracks weekly.

On their arrival in Atlanta the V. M. I. men will take a short rest and then take to Grant field to hold a final light practice at 2 o'clock.

Limbering Work Today.

Tech men will take the field at 4 o'clock this afternoon, as usual, but only for a run around the cinder path and light setting-up exercises. Coach Alexander has his men on edge for the second game of the season Saturday and will put them through just enough work this afternoon to keep them limbered up.

In the final practice yesterday the varsity had its final look at the Cadet passwork, as turned out by the freshman eleven. For half an hour the regulars watched the first-year men running the V. M. I. plays slowly. Not a detail of the work learned by Coach Clay at Lexington last week was missed.

After the freshmen had run the V. M. I. plays, the varsity squad took the lower field and ran signals, while players who have not had scrimmage this week went on against the rats on the upper field. The practice was closed with a couple of laps around the track.

Squadron Well Developed

The Flying Squadron of V. M. I. has reached an advanced stage of development for this time of the season, according to reports from Lexington. Three strenuous days of practice have put the Cadets into a tough machine.

Most of the Cadet players are in good physical condition, thanks to special emphasis placed on this factor by the coaches, and to the fact that there were no injuries as a result of the Emory and Henry game last Saturday. The same eleven started the first two games of the season, and this combination will probably take the field against Tech.

Dave Wintringer, quarterback; Charlie Foster, halfback, and Joe Pillow, end, are the only regulars who did not play against Tech last year. Bo Clements and Pete Hope were substitute tackles at that time, and the playing of both went a long way towards putting them in line for varsity berths.

MONROE PLAYS DAHLONEGA

Dahlonega, Ga., October 2.—(Special.)—After almost three weeks of practice in mud and rain, Dahlonega welcomed her first real football weather today with a hard scrimmage. With the first game less than a week off Coaches Cobb and Bush are pushing their men hard in order to get them in condition. Monroe A. & M. is to be met on the local field Friday and from reports down Monroe way, Red Barron, former Tech star, has a real team this year.

With the new men and several scrubs of last season, Coach Cobb is confident of turning out a winning combination. Bell, a product of Riverside, and Maddox, former Mercer man, have shown the most stuff in the backfield and along with Holden and Medlock, men returned, will make up the backfield that is to start the first game.

VALDOSTA HI OPENS SEASON

Valdosta, Ga., October 2.—The Valdosta Wildcats, whose sensational eleven of 1923 captured the south Georgia championship, will open its season in Valdosta on October 3, meeting the powerful Ocilla High school eleven at that time. The Wildcats, coached this season by Mike Herndon, seem to be as strong as last year. The team is largely veteran, only three places being filled by men who did not win letters last season.

The Valdosta High schedule is a difficult one. In the course of the season they meet Ocilla, Douglas, Quitman, Albany, Moultrie, Tifton, Tallahassee, Thomasville and Griffin. Five of the teams on the schedule are members of the Southwest Georgia conference, and are the leading teams of the group. Griffin won the north Georgia High school title last season, and the game is waited with much interest, inasmuch as it brings the two leading teams from last year together.

FORT WORTH WINS FOURTH DIXIE BASEBALL CROWN

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Frisch, Young To Star for Giants--Harris

Beyond These 2, New York And Washington Clubs Even, Says Manager of Senators

BY STANLEY HARRIS,
(Copyright, 1924.)

Washington, October 2.—One thing is certain—John J. McGraw is the game's greatest manager. This, of course, is no secret. Ten pennants speak for themselves. In meeting a team under such management, in trying to wrest a world's pennant from a past master of the game, Washington in its first baptism of fire is especially privileged. It will be a great pleasure to play the New York Giants. In the event we lower them, it will prove a greater feat than knocking off either Pittsburg or Brooklyn.

As McGraw stands in a class by himself as a manager, I know of no better field captain than Frank Frisch, the Fordham flash. While he is always a great player during the season's campaign, it is very apparent that in the crucial world series games he always appears to bring out a bit of added brilliance. So here is one star sure to shine. With Young, the brilliant right fielder, Frisch makes up a pair worthy of any man's club. These two will undoubtedly be the outstanding stars of the Giants.

In Russ Young, baseball possesses one of the finest players of all time—comparable to Cobb. He, too, like Frisch, seems to have a superiority complex when it comes to a world's series. He is hitting around .350 and has had a great year in all departments.

Passing over these two phenoms, the rest of the Giants' team seems to me to be about on a par with our fellows, and when two teams are so evenly matched it is just a question of breaks.

There is never much use in making predictions, for dope never goes when it comes to a world's series. Statistics show, on paper, that the Giants have a slight edge on the Washington club in pitching. Yet, to be perfectly fair about it all, that's a hard question to decide. The pitchers on both teams come from two different leagues, are usually up against different sets of batters and all that sort of thing. The batters of one league naturally know the pitchers of their own league better. So it is difficult to say what might happen when two strange teams meet as Washington shall meet the Giants in a world series. All the statistics in the world may be upset. Really, the thing to do is to throw the dope in the waste basket just before the opening of a world's series.

Of course, there can be made some very interesting comparison, as between player and player, or department and department, but it is rather foolish to make a broad statement one way or another. For instance, Nehf is the best pitcher the Giants have—or he is so believed by the many. Yet, pitted against Walter Johnson he may prove to be ineffective. Johnson, to my way of thinking, is one of the greatest pichers who ever wore a glove, if not the greatest. Some one else may name a man his equal, but the task is too great for me. Looking back over the records, it will be seen that Walter Johnson never lost a prepared match—and by a prepared match, I mean just such a situation as might arise on the opening day of this series, if Johnson were opposed by Nehf. Then the two aces would be up and at each other. Smokey Joe Wood at his best never defeated Johnson. And Johnson, at this moment, is just like a kid with a Christmas toy—waiting and rarin' to go. So if the Giants' pitching staff has an edge on the staff to be presented by Washington, statistics must be great stuff.

Giant Catchers Good.

In catching, the Giants are generally stronger, but even with Gowdy and Snyder they are not superior to Ruel with the possible exception of long-distance hitting. Ruel handles the pitchers just as well as anyone in the game and I don't know of anyone I'd rather have catching on a team out to win pennants—world or otherwise.

On first base the Giants are substituting Terry for Kelly, the latter being sent to the outfield. This, of course, changes the complexion of things. From the little I saw of Terry's work he looks like quite a natural hitter. And as for his fielding, well, if he were no good in that line he'd never be wearing a Giant uniform. It may seem odd to the baseball public, however, that McGraw should take Kelly off first and put him in the outfield; but—and this is something always to remember—McGraw knows these players better than anyone else. Further, McGraw knows the game. When he makes a move it is not likely to be to his club's disadvantage. So, as we sometimes say, that's that.

While still a youngster, I just want to be one-half as successful in baseball as he has been—as he is. That, in the long run, would mean five pennants for Washington.

Senators Fit.

All over the country the fans are waiting and watching for the opening of this series. They are looking for it to be one of the greatest ever held—and I hope they will not be disappointed. So far as Washington goes, we are physically fit and ready to give our very best. Fortunately, there are no sick or wounded.

My one wish is that Frisch and Groh are both able to play, if for no other reason than that if we are returned victors we shall take added pleasure in having beaten the Giants intact—with no substitutes. Even though Groh does not play and the Giants go on the field with a substitute or two, it must not be thought they are a weakened team. This is another feather in the cap of McGraw. He always prepares a great reserve strength.

The loss of Groh and Frisch during the crucial Pittsburg series made the Giants' followers feel that they were apt to lose—and yet McGraw's reserve strength carried them to victory. He never depends on any one man. That is why he has built up successful teams, world beaters. While I never saw Lindstrom play, I've followed his work closely through the New York papers and it appears from these accounts that Groh's absence was not badly felt. This is where the hand of John McGraw shows itself.

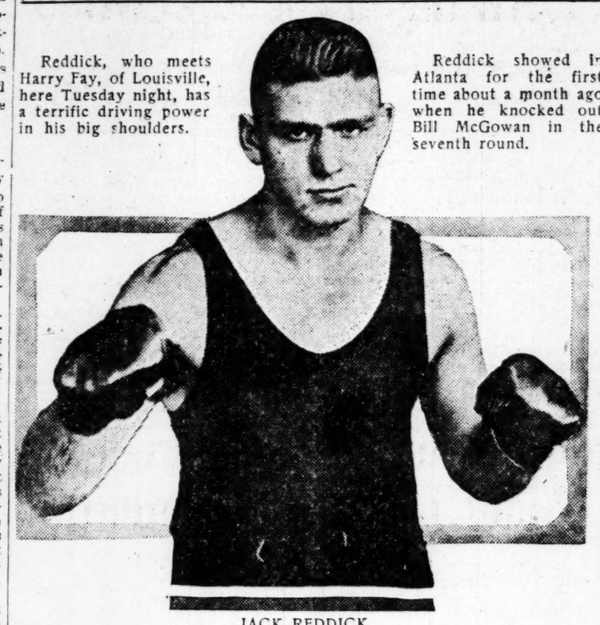

Giants to Miss Bancroft.

There is no doubt that the Giants are likely to miss the great Bancroft at short, if nothing more than from a point of experience. Jackson, I am sure, will be outgeneraled by Peckinpaugh. In fact, when it comes to handling the situation at short, Peck is the old master. I have seen him make plays that could never be described on paper. His great stop which started the double play in the game at Boston which gave us the pennant is one never to be forgotten by those who saw it. That ball had taken a bad bound. It came along like a shot out of a barrel, bounding in regular order, with Peck prepared to meet it in a natural position. All of a sudden it went wrong; but Peck was right on the job, stepped to the right spot, gathered it in and tossed it to me for a relay to first. One miscue by Peck at that time and we would have been playing for the pennant until the curtain went down, for the sacks were loaded and anything might have happened.

So far as pitchers, catchers and the infield in general are concerned, Washington will be well able to hold its own with the Giants—and then some.

The outfield situation presented by George Kelly deserting the first sack and taking up his position in centerfield for McGraw's team brings us back to another observation worthy of study. To begin with, McGraw would never have let Kelly go out there in the open spaces unless the old master knew the first sacker could play where the high balls gleam in the sunlight. Kelly, I claim, has the strongest arm in baseball. While this will stand him in good stead out against the fences, in case there are any rail splitters sent his way, it will also make the Giants as a team miss his work at first base, for he was there so valuable in making relays from the outfield, cutting off advancing runners. In left field, the Giants will have Wilson, who on Saturday will have his first smell of world series dirt, like the Washingtonians. His season's play has been remarkable, according to reports, but I doubt if he can compare with Goslin. Of Ross Young's ability, the world knows. So it is in right field that the fans may expect the fireworks, if any. There McGraw stands his star of stars—the running mate for honors with Frisch.

Fights Fay Here Tuesday

Reddick, who meets Harry Fay, of Louisville, here Tuesday night, has a terrific driving power in his big shoulders.

Reddick showed in Atlanta for the first time about a month ago when he knocked out Bill McGowan in the seventh round.

JACK REDDICK,

Reddick Shows Condition In Rounds With Stribling

Harry Fay, a young man about Louisville, Ky., is "a good boy," in the parlance of the ring, but his ambitions are likely to sustain a severe setback next Thursday night at the auditorium when he fights Jack Reddick in the 12-round final bout of an all-star card.

Dope from Louisville tells of Fay's being quick as lightning and having a sleep-producing punch. "Pa" Stribling, who has undertaken for Young Stribling the training of Reddick for the mingling of mauls Tuesday night, grants Fay a whale of a wallop, and is working just that much harder to get Reddick, who claims the light heavyweight championship of Canada, into shape where solid punches will roll off.

Reddick, in eleven rounds of workout yesterday afternoon in the Southern Athletic gym, demonstrated the effectiveness of the Stribling training method with Stribling testing his endurance.

Reddick Takes Hammering.

For three rounds Reddick and Stribling swapped punches that would have laid low two ordinary scrappers. Stribling got in two punches to Reddick's one, as was to be expected, but they didn't count. Stribling hammered Reddick in the clinches, he swung on his head and his jaw and to his heart in the open fighting, but Mr. Reddick might have been planted in concrete for all the effect the smashing attack had on him.

While he was taking Stribling's slaps all over his face and his body, Reddick was doing some damage on his own account. When he found Stribling he hooked and jabbed with a power that made his jabs that knocked out Bill McGowan not so long ago here look like caresses in comparison. Reddick is developing that left hook to the jaw into a veritable battering ram.

Giving some hint of Reddick's condition is the fact that before taking on Young Stribling he shadow-boxed three three-minute rounds and sparred two three-minute rounds with Strickland, an ambitious young man who trains at the gym. After the Stribling workout, Reddick went two rounds with the bag and then stepped back to his shower practically as fresh as when he started.

These workouts are putting the finishing conditioning touches on Reddick after a double portion of roadwork every morning.

Tickets Go On Sale.

Tickets for the fight Tuesday night went on sale last evening at Jake's Place in the Kimball House lobby. On the card with Reddick and Fay are Hollis Sullivan, student-boxer of Riverside Military academy, Gainesville, and Jordan Sheppard, of Macon, who mix for ten rounds just before the final event of the show. Joe Pacionni and Tom O'Rourke start the fight program with a 10-round argument. Pacionni, a tough lightweight, from Fort Benning, beat O'Rourke a few months back, and this match is the result of frantic effort on O'Rourke's part to get a return bout.

Final approval was given the entire card yesterday when the last boxing commissioner's name was signed to the application presented by Holt J. Gewinner.

CRIMSON TIDE JOURNEYING TO S. C.

University, Ala., October 2.—(Special.)—Alabama's Crimson Tide, 23 strong, plus Coach Wallace Wade, Manager Jess Long, several newspaper men and supporters, left tonight for Greenville, S. C., where they play Furman Saturday afternoon.

The Tidesmen will pass through Atlanta early Friday morning, staying there but a few moments, so as to arrive at Greenville in time to practice Friday.

While the 'Bama eleven expects to win, they left here with expectations of receiving a hard fight Saturday at the hands of the Carolina eleven. Several cut-downs and other battered cars filled with students left the Capstone Wednesday night and Thursday so as to be on the side lines when the game starts. Wade is taking the following men with him to Furman:

BURKE BOUT IS POSTPONED

St. Paul, Minn., October 2.—The ten-round bout between Fred Fulton, Minneapolis heavyweight, and Martin Burke, of New Orleans, scheduled for tonight, has been postponed until Saturday night, it was announced today. Burke fought in Cleveland last night and consequently he was unable to get here today.

JAKE DAUBERT OPERATED UPON

Cincinnati, Ohio, October 2.—Jake Daubert, first baseman and captain of the Cincinnati Nationals, was operated upon at a hospital today for removal of the appendix and for other disorders. Dr. Harry Hines, the Cincinnati club's physician, said he looks for the veteran's steady recuperation.

Panthers Bunch Hits In 8th Frame To Win Deciding Memphis Game

Memphis, October 2.—The Fort Worth Panthers, five-time winners of the Texas league pennant, tonight stood unchallenged baseball champions of the south.

The Panthers won the title by defeating the Memphis Chickasaws, Southern association champions, 3 to 2, today in the deciding game of the 1924 post-season Dixie series of southern baseball supremacy—the fourth time within five years that the Texas league standard-bearers under the leadership of Jake Atz, veteran Panther pilot, have bested Southern association challengers in the diamond classic.

Today's game and with it the title was won in the eighth inning when Joe Bischoff, catcher, following the lead of two of his teammates, Edgington and Tavener, toppled the ball over shortstop for a single which brought Edgington across the plate and decided the issue after a pitching duel supreme between Joe Pate and Cy Warmoth, left-handed hurling aces of the two clubs.

Pate held the hard-hitting Chickasaws to five hits allowing never more than one in an inning, while Warmoth allowed only six and added to his fame by striking out nine Panthers, but three of the six hits came in one inning which Fort Worth coined into the deciding tally.

Miscues Costly.

With the exception of the eighth inning fielding miscues figured in all the runs. Fort Worth started with a one-run lead in the opening inning, Sears scoring when Lamotte let Palmer's grounder go through his legs. Memphis scored two in the second, Carlyle crossing the plate with the first run when Tavener threw high to first to catch Gleason, who had sent a grounder to short and Gleason scored on Anderson's fly to the field which fell between Calvo and Edgington and went for a double.

Memphis held the lead until the sixth when Carlyle misjudged Edgington's fly, allowing Palmer, who had walked, to reach third and Edgington second, with Palmer scoring on Lamotte's throw to first of Tavener's grounder.

In the eighth, with two out, Edgington, Tavener and Bischoff singled in succession and the game was over, so far as scoring went, with Fort Worth victorious.

Edgington, Fort Worth outfielder, slammed out three of the Panther hits in four trips to the plate. Phelan, Tavener and Bischoff were the only others to solve Warmoth's slants, while Anderson held batting honors for Memphis—two safe drives in three times at bat. Barber, Yaryan and Gleason were the only others with hits to their credit.

Eighth Game.

Today's game was the eighth of the series, the first game ending in a 3-to-3 tie. Each of the three Memphis victories were by one run margins and all on home grounds, while Fort Worth won by one-sided scores in each of three games played in Fort Worth.

As a result of today's victory, the Fort Worth players will divide the long end—60 per cent—of the players' share of the receipts of the first four games of the series and Memphis the short end with a portion of the revenue going to Atlanta and New Orleans, runner-up and third place team in the Southern pennant race.

THOROUGHBRED AND WORTH HATS

How The Hat-Band Originated

The hat-band hasn't always been "just for looks." It is evident, from the bow present on the band, that the hat-band was tied at one time. As a matter of fact, an early headdress was made from a piece of cloth, round which a band was tied so that the cloth fitted the head.

TODAY, of course, the band is on the hat to enhance its appearance. And the handsome silk bands around Thoroughbred and Worth Hats are of the same high quality and workmanship as the other materials used in their manufacture. These fine-looking, setviceable hats represent the utmost in good hat value. They are made by the largest felt hat manufacturers west of the Alleghenies, and sold in a wide range of Fall styles by leading dealers everywhere.

New York, October 2.—Prospects for another spell of unsettled and colder weather in the southwest led to a renewal of buying of reduced crop estimates in the cotton market today and prices advanced approximately a cent a pound. December contracts sold up from 24.80, the early low level, to 25.90, or 96 points higher net, and closed at 25.73, the general market closing very steady at net advances of 79 to 92 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 2 to 11 points on relatively firm Liverpool cables. Considerable southern hedge selling and scattering liquidation occurred around the initial prices. The market eased off several points right after the call under selling promoted by the publication of unfavorable mill returns on last year's business and favorable early weather reports.

October sold off to 25.57 and January to 24.85, but the market attracted support at these figures and advances were stimulated by the official forecast for showers and colder weather in the southwest. Some traders thought they saw prospects for frosts in that quarter before the end of the week and covering by recent sellers brought on the advance to 26.65 for October and 25.95 for January in the late trading. This made a net advance of 90 to 101 points on active positions and the close was several points off from the best under realizing.

Advices received from Galveston said the quarantine against the hoof and mouth disease did not interfere with the movement of cotton and little or no further comment was heard in that connection.

A private crop report estimated the condition at 53.1 and the indicated yield 12,423,000 bales, compared with a mid-September indication of 12,945,000.

BIG ADVANCE AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, October 2.—The cotton market today scored a further advance, showing new high levels for the season and gains of practically $5 a bale on all active months from the low levels of the early morning, and a net gain over the previous class of virtually $4 a bale.

At the start, opening trades showed slight gains owing to Liverpool cables being higher than due, but prices soon eased off on a generally fair weather map. December dropping to 24.75, and January to 24.82, or 6 to 9 points net lower. From these low points the market later started upward on indications of an impending unfavorable change of weather in the west. This rally later assumed considerable proportions on a reported stiffening of the spot basis, the acceptance by the League of Nations of the disarmament protocol, and active buying by large operators.

Prices were advanced 92 to 94 points above the lows near noon, but eased off about 25 points on the report that some of the large buyers were liquidating. In the late trading prices rallied sharply on active general buying, December advancing to 25.79, and January to 25.81, or 99 to 104 points above the lows. Some of the advance was lost in the last moment of the session, the close showing net gains for the day of 74 to 77 points.

Much of the day's activity and strength was based on the news that a number of big operators had undertaken to advance prices. Some of these traders liquidated, when prices had been advanced practically a cent a pound, but on the break which followed, the general public bought freely and ran prices up to the high points of the day just before the close.

It was reported that October longs were prepared to accept a large amount of cotton on contract and this news naturally stiffened October, which reacted favorable on the rest of the list.

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, October 2.—The stock market for the most part was dull and featureless except for a sharp advance in the St. Louis & San Francisco securities. The preferred stock, which was placed $6 annual dividend basis, opened 73½, while the various bond issues advanced sympathetically in the case of the increases sixes as much as two points. Montgomery Ward reached a new high for the year at 38, and North America was also absorbed in heavy volume around 36. Aside from an advance in price announced by the American Woolen company for all of its worsted materials of from 7½ to 27½c a yard and an unsubstantiated rumor which caused a sharp break in Consolidated Gas during the forenoon, there were no particular developments of interest. The market closed lower but the undertone continued firm and offerings were for the most part well taken.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, October 2.—The afternoon trading was lifeless with easier tendencies developing. In the leading stocks the easiness became weakness. American Can slid off almost two points, and Baldwin was off 1⅜ from its high. Mack Truck also lost 2 points, and Steel lost about one-half. There was nothing on which the selling could be based other than a desire to take profits, although it was rumored that some of the large houses which have been steadily bullish were beginning to advise their customers to sell stocks on strong spots. However, if this market runs true to form there should be a rally again tomorrow.

Cotton Letters.

C. P. ELLIS & CO.

New Orleans, September 2.—It would seem after an advance of nearly five cents per pound in a little more than one week that the short interest had been pretty well covered and that a reaction were consequently due. Inasmuch, however, as the forthcoming bureau report is expected to make a very bullish showing, it is probable that the market will be sustained. In the meantime, especially should the unfavorable weather predicted for the western belt develop. On the other hand we hear some complaints of the recent rapid rise in prices having checked the business which was beginning to develop with the mills, and if this proves to be the case it is doubtful if the advance will be fully maintained.

POST & FLAGG.

New York, October 2.—The impression is gaining ground that foreign takings this season will be heavily in excess of last season and that foreign consumers are securing the cream of the crop, which promises to be low in grades as a result of the weather for several weeks past. Domestic mills, however, are shackled in domestic goods markets and can move only as fast and as far as those who permit, unless they again expose themselves to a repetition of their experience the past year, which they are most reluctant to do. The annual report of one of the largest mills in this country only confirms the general impression that all textile concerns have suffered heavily. That water has passed under the bridge, however, and while the mills are in a duly chastened and subdued state of mind most of them are looking forward instead of backward, and will not be slow to seize upon any encouraging developments that holds out the prospect of recovering their losses in part if not entirely.

FENNER & BEANE.

New Orleans, October 2.—Buyers of cotton had a good inning today, and after an early dip ran prices up 104 points to a net gain of 96. The highest quotations were made in the late trading rorowing a 50-point dip, brought on largely by realizing. Closing sales were 78 net higher. Unfavorable reports from the eastern belt, fear that the shrinkage in that section points to a small estimate from the government, prospects of more rains in the west followed by another round wave, rumors of a large short interest in October in New York, and of a bull pool which may demand delivery of large amounts of cotton, were the uplifting influences. The spot basis was reported higher and firmer from all parts of the belt and shippers have yet to buy considerable portions of their early October commitments.

There was talk to the effect that prices on a large part of the recent heavy exports have yet to be fixed, indicating considerable buying of October is not far off. The 4mm points to unsettled weather in the northwest, followed by falling temperatures for several days that may bring another frost scare before the bureau. The market gives every sign of being a bull market and of working higher before bureau day.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

New York, October 2.—The cloth markets have not followed the advance in cotton, but it is believed that hesitating buyers will be made to pay for their inaction through purchases at higher levels. It seems to us that trade demand and sentiment will gradually, even if not rapidly, advance the price of cotton from the present levels and reactions should be utilized for buying. Liverpool, due Friday: October, 14.82; January, 14.62.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, October 2.—Cotton started easier on selling, due to the publication of the Amoskeag statement, showing nearly $3,000,000 loss for their fiscal year, and a map that was clear and warmer everywhere. Leading bulls, however, took the contracts and by consistent support of the market worked it up by noon to a point where a short interest was apparently dislodged, forcing December quickly to 25.80 and creating a market sufficiently big to permit of heavy profit-taking. There was no fresh news of interest during the session. Bull arguments were the possibility of unfavorable weather in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas, and the government report next week, while the 5-cent point advance and inability of the mills to do business as good reasons not to follow the advance. General business was again light and the market regarded as professional.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, October 2.—Europe is evidently deeply impressed with the smaller crop estimates and a realization that the rains in the Atlantic states have destroyed the grades in three states, and this has caused them to begin to secure their requirement in the west belt. This has resulted in absorbing the daily movement, thus materially reducing the volume of hedge selling which many expected to become heavy after the weather cleared. It has also caused an advance in the buying basis in the southwest. While the market will probably hesitate again around the 26-cent level for the winter months and might easily react, there is no change in the general trend toward higher prices. Liverpool futures are due tomorrow: October, 14.83; December, 14.58.

The Investor

BY PAUL WILLARD GARRETT

The American Water Works and Electric Company's comeback will find a place among the more romantic chapters when the history of our utilities is written.

American investors are accustomed to ordinary advances and declines in the securities market and even to spectacular fluctuations. They have seldom known anything like the persistent improvement that has come during the last year or more, however, in the market for electric power and light issues.

Not knowing what it is all about, many investors, and even some of the authorities, have entertained suspicions with regard to the soundness of the advance. Hundreds of investors have analyzed the utility situation for themselves, of course, but others look upon the recent improvement as something more or less mysterious.

Big Rise Has Real Foundation.

About three years ago, in 1921, the common shares of the American Water Works and Electric company were selling in the open market at 4. The stock was highly speculative at that time, of course, but there was no mystery in its subsequent spectacular rise to 40 by the beginning of 1924. The movement this year from 40 to a recent high of 126 has not been so spectacular as was the movement from 4 to 40, figured on a relative basis, but is unusual enough.

A common stock's position is a matter of significance to those who want the more seasoned investment issues of a company's list. Bond or preferred stock investors usually will do well to examine the position of the common stock. In the case of American Water Works and Electric common, for example, there are several things to consider: (1) Only $10,000,000 of common stock is outstanding, although the plant, property and investments back of the common represent a value of $225,000,000. (2) The participating preferred issue of $10,000,000, which now stands ahead of the common, is callable, and the company doubtless will redeem this issue eventually. (3) Even as things stand now and after charging off 45 per cent of net for depreciation, the participating preferred and common together are earning at the rate of $11 or $12 per share.

Part of a Big Superpower Group.

One of the things that is tending to better the position of American Water Works and Electric company's securities is that the management is building up an important super-power system. The company's properties form an integral part of the superpower group that reaches from Cleveland, O., to a point within twenty-five miles of Baltimore. Such well-known companies as Duquesne Light, Penn Public Service, Penn Central Light and Power, American Gas and Electric, Cleveland Electric Illuminating, Ohio Public Service and Penn-Ohio Electric are connected up in this group.

Within the last year or two American Water Works and Electric company has added some important properties to its system. Three divisions may be made of the operating properties in this growing system. They are (1) the West-Penn system, (2) the Potomac Edison system and (3) the Keystone Power and Light system.

Is in the Water Business, Too.

The total kilowatt hour output of the operating properties in 1915, the first year following the creation of the present company, was 154,973,930. That figure grew to 985,632,674 kilowatt hours for the twelve months ended June 30, 1923, and to 1,120,562,374 for the twelve months ended June 30, 1924.

While the American Water Works and Electric company is essentially a power and light organization, and its chief future development will be along that line, it also controls the largest group of privately owned water works plants in the United States. It has twenty-seven water works plants located in thirteen states and derives about 19 per cent of its gross revenues from the water business. The company is proud of this branch of the business, and well it may be for probably no other utility service is in such steady demand.

OILS SHOW GAINS IN CURB MARKET

New York, October 2.—Union price movements characterized today's curb market, independent points of strength developing in all groups. Stocks of oil refining and producing companies held relatively steady on reports of a further decrease in crude production, but the pipe line stocks continued heavy in further reflection of recent dividend cuts and omissions in those issues.

Standard Oil of Ohio jumped 14 points to 317 on a few odd-lot sales, and net gains of 1 to 2 1-2 points were made by Vacuum, Anglo-American Oil, Galena Signal and Magnolia Petroleum.

Gillette Safety Razor (old stock) added 5 points to its recent gain. Increased activity in Ginter Stores was advanced 2 1-2 points, followed favorable dividend action on the common stock. Ward Baking, class A, the most active issue in the industrial list, moved up 2 points to 35 1-8.

Public utilities fell back on profit-taking. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore eased fractionally after selling around the record high. Middlewest Utilities broke 4 points and United Light and Power, class A common, sagged 1 1-2. There was little interest in the mining group.

The Holly Sugar company declared an extra dividend of $1.75 on accumulated dividends in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of $1.75, both payable November 1 to stock of record October 15.

New bond offerings today totaling nearly $22,000,000 were led by $12,000,000 United Drug company 20-year 6 per cent gold bonds at 99 3-4 and accrued interest to yield 6.04 per cent. Others included $2,000,000 city of Christiania, Norway, 30-year 6 per cent sinking fund gold bonds to yield 6.15 per cent; $2,500,000 Chicago Rapid Transit company first and refunding mortgage 6 1-2 per cent gold bonds at 94 1-2 to yield more than 7 per cent and $2,000,000 Kraft Cheese company 10-year 6 per cent singing fund debentures at 98 1-2, yielding 6.20 per cent.

Thirty-seven new oil companies with total capitalization of $143,695,000 were organized in September, compared with 26 in August with capital of $67,475,000. The Ohio Fuel Corporation of Delaware, capitalized at $100,000,000, was the largest.

Continued buying of high-grade investments by institutions is reflected in the firmness of Liberty bonds and gilt-edge corporation issues, their surpluses of money apparently compelling bond purchasers to employ their funds. This also was said to explain the number of issues banking houses were placing privately. The influence of the small investor, while a factor, is diminished by the scarcity of offerings of high-yield bonds.

The Standard Oil company of Louisiana has cut the price of gasoline 2 cents a gallon at service stations in Louisiana, Arkansas and Tennessee and the tank wagon price 1 cent, the new prices being 16 1-2 and 14 1-2 cents, respectively. The Louisiana prices include the state tax of 2 cents, but in Arkansas the prices are two cents higher owing to the 4-cent state tax.

Coffee.

New York, October 2.—The market for coffee futures was higher today on reports of an improved demand from the interior, rumors of a probable increase in Brazilian export duties and covering. The opening was 20 to 54 points higher. Active months sold 35 to 55 points net higher, March advancing to 16.80c, making new high ground for the season. The close was 32 to 55 points net higher. Sales were estimated at 65,000. Closing quotations: October, 18.10c; December, 17.40c; March, 16.74c; May, 16.25c; July, 15.80c; September, 15.40c.

The Day in Finance

BY R. L. BARNUM

Interest centers on rumors of dividends in Frisco common—Street using dividend talk to put all rail shares up.

New York, October 2.—It only takes $103,000 to pay the 1924 dividend on Frisco preferred just declared by the directors as only one quarterly payment of $1.50 will be made this year.

To pay the full 6 per cent on the preferred stock calls for only $414,000 and the company is earning at the rate of 50 per cent on the small amount of outstanding preferred. Naturally with the individual dividend now declared on the preferred stock more attention will be paid to the rumors that Frisco will start dividends on the common stock. This year probably 6 1-2 per cent will be earned for the common stock after allowing the full 6 per cent for th preferred. For 1923, after allowing 6 per cent for the preferred, a surplus remained equal to 6.5 per cent on the common. For 1922 only .0256 was earned for the common stock.

For the past four years, including 1924, Frisco's surplus after fixed interest charges has averaged 37 per cent for the preferred stock. The conservation shown by the directors in going slow in starting dividends on the small amount of outstanding preferred stock in the face of the large average earnings reported for the past four years on those shares does not promise early dividends for the outstanding common amounting to $50,447,000. There is only $7,846,000 of the preferred outstanding. Nevertheless, the initial dividend just declared on the preferred shares is likely to be used as a talking point by Wall street people, who are trying to put railway shares up on rumors of increased or initial dividends.

With one large refiner after another cutting the prices of gasoline, more attention is being paid to the price trend in gasoline than to the crude oil production figures. However, gasoline prices in the long run are regulated by the amount of crude oil produced. Todya's weekly crude oil production statement shows a reduction of 14,500 barrels in the daily average.

MONEY AT WORK

WHAT IS THE VALUE OF A REGULAR AUDIT?

A regular audit is essential to good business.

A regular audit has several things to recommend it:

1. The executives are given an accurate statement of the enterprise.
2. Irregularities and mistakes are caught instead of running and requiring cumbersome bookkeeping adjustments.
3. The moral effect upon employees is that records are kept up-to-date and in condition.
4. Departmental weaknesses are often pointed out.

NORTHERN BUYERS SEEK TO CONTROL GEORGIA PEACHES

Macon, Ga., October 2.—(Special.) Commission houses of the north and east are making an effort to get control of the 1925 peach crop, it developed today, when it became known that a number of their representatives have been sent into the peach belt, offering advances in money to growers for the purpose of controling the crop of those growers. Little headway has been made to date, it is reported.

Following the record crop of the past season growers are expecting a short crop next year, with better prices. The fight on curculio is already well under way, as is the fight on all orchard pests.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF GEORGIA MAN HELD BY POLICE

Thomasville, Ga., October 2.—(Special.)—Bob Green, said to have been shot by Claude Gafford at his home in the old Glascow district of Thomas county Tuesday, died at the city hospital here today. He was shot in the arm and it was amputated. Infection caused the death.

The two men are said to have fought, and Gafford has wounds in his forehead. He is in jail here and the case will probably be considered by the grand jury, which convenes at superior court here this month.

The cause of the altercation is not known as Gafford refuses to talk about it.

SOUTH GEORGIA TRAINS RESUME SCHEDULES

Quitman, Ga., October 2.—(Special.)—Atlanta Coast Line tracks between Quitman and Thomasville were cleared at noon today after being blocked since Tuesday morning at 3 o'clock.

The first train to pass over the repaired track was No. 57, running 10 hours late, which passed through Quitman going west at 11 o'clock this morning.

The south Georgia track from Adel to Quitman was cleared this afternoon and trains are running on this end of the line. The track south of Quitman to Perry and Hampton Springs is still blocked on account o fwater running over the Piscola creek trestle, but it is believed No. 3 leaving Adel tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock will be able to go through to Hampton Springs.

Highways are being opened as the waters recede and bridges are being restored by convicts.

NEGRO WANTED HERE HELD IN ROBERTA

Mack Wooten, negro, who has been sought for two years by Atlanta police through belief that he was the slayer of D. H. Williams, of Tift county, whose body was found on a street here on the night of December 30, 1922, was apprehended Thursday in Roberta, Ga., according to reports reaching Detectives Evans and Whatley.

Information in the hands of police is to the effect that Williams recognized Wooten as a convict who had escaped from his lumber camp and that he was slain when he attempted to capture the negro.

Daily average imports of petroleum at principal ports for the week-end ed September 27 were 179,143 barrels, compared with 254,857 for the previous week. Daily average receipts of California oil at Atlantic and Gulf ports for the week ended September 27 were 155,857 barrels, compared with 95,000 for the previous week.

There were no changes reported in crude-oil prices for the major districts—mid-continent being quoted at 75 cents to $1.25 a barrel according to the gravity of the oil; Pennsylvania crude, Bradford district $2.85 a barrel, all other grades $2.75 a barrel; Gulf coast crude oil, grade "A" $1.25 a barrel, grade "B" $1.05, and California crude ranging from $1 to $1.40 a barrel, according to the gravity of the oil.

DEFUNCT BANK PAYS 100 PER CENT TO ALL CREDITORS

Moultrie, Ga., October 2.—The Farmers & Merchants' Bank of Berlin, at Berlin, near here, the doors of which were closed nearly two years ago, has paid all its outstanding obligations in full, according to a statement made by E. B. Askew, liquidating agent.

The depositors were sent their final payments some time ago and checks have been forwarded to the common creditors of the institution.

Mr. Askew said. The bank's inability to realize on outstanding paper brought about the closing order. About $100,000 was on deposit when it suspended business.

GASOLINE CUTS LONG OVERDUE, STONE DECLARES

Washington, October 2.—Attorney General Stone indicated today that new cases against gasoline companies may result from the department of justice investigation, which has been continuing since the filing of the suits against 51 companies in Chicago. He declined to discuss the nature of the evidence which departments agents were said to have gathered.

The attorney general's remarks followed inquiries directing his attention to cuts in gasoline prices in the past fe wdays. He said with reference to this phase of the situation that "crude stocks stored were sufficiently large that the prices should have been reduced before this."

Atlantans Consumed 462 Carloads of Fruits In September, Is Report

Atlantans consumed a total of 462 carloads of fruits and vegetables during the month of September, according to U. S. department of agriculture. This is a slight decrease from the preceding month, but is due largely to the absence of watermelons. During the same period in 1923, a total of 299 carloads were consumed.

Most lines showed gains, apple unloads alone being 63 cars heavier than in August, and grapes about three times as numerous.

Apple and grape supplies were fairly liberal, with prices reasonable. At present in addition to Georgia, Atlanta is receiving apples from the following states: Virginia, West Virginia Maryland, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, California, Oregon and Washington. The principal varieties at present are, Grimes Golden, Winter Bananas, York Imperials, Winesaps, Staymans, Kinnards Choice and Thompkin's King.

The heavy rainfall during the month curtailed trading to a considerable extent, but with the clear, cool weather now prevailing, it is expected that the demand for all lines will increase.

New York, October 2.—Heavy buying of Frisco railway issues, based on the inauguration of preferred dividends by the road, was the outstanding feature of today's bond market. Price fluctuations generally were narrow with a firm undertone prevailing.

A spirited demand for the Frisco income and adjustment 6s followed the sharp rise in the preferred shares to a new high record. Gains of several points were scored by these issues, the advance being accentuated by the announcement that directors were considering a declaration of an initial payment on common stock.

Buying of other western railroad liens early in the day was counteracted later by profit-taking, giving the rail list an uneven appearance. Wabash and Peoria & Eastern issues responded to favorable merger reports.

Preliminary plans for flotations of a $25,000,000 bond issue by the Brooklyn Edison company, announced today, promoted general selling of local public utilities. Both the Brooklyn Edison and Brooklyn Union Gas yielded to pressure. The new Brooklyn Edison issue will consist of 25-year 5 per cent obligations, which will be sold to retire the present 7s and to reimburse the treasury for capital expenditures.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. announced today the purchase from the Pennsylvania Railroad company of $50,000,000 40-year 5 per cent bonds, which will be offered to the public through a nation-wide syndicate at 98 1-2, to yield approximately 5.10 per cent.

Wheat Crosses $1.50 Mark First Time Since 1921

Wheat Will Bring Growers a Billion Dollars, Says Meyer

Washington, October 2. — The wheat crop this year will return to the American growers about one billion dollars in cash at country points, Managing Director Meyer of the War Finance corporation told Secretary Mellon today. His statement was on the basis of an investigation in the wheat-producing areas. In a memorandum to the treasury head, Mr. Meyer declared also that railroad transportation was handling the crop in a manner "almost without precedent."

"In view of the unusually rapid flow of wheat to market," the memorandum said, "I have had an informal investigation made in the west of the adequacy of the machinery for handling the marketing of crop. I am glad to be able to say that the reports are most optimistic and that, in fact, the railroad transportation seems to be adequate to the task and practically no substantial car shortages are reported.

"On the contrary, railroad efficiency in moving the crop is almost without precedent. Adequate financial support is being provided all along the line. A remarkably satisfactory export demand is being taken care of by full and adequate supply of ocean tonnage to move the surplus to export markets with all possible promptness.

"It is a matter of great satisfaction that this year's great wheat crop, grown as it was on a 10 per cent smaller acreage than last year's, is bringing the farmer a billion dollars cash at country points."

Grain Letter.

FENNER & BEANE.

Chicago, October 2.—WHEAT: Led by Winnipeg prices here advanced to new highs on crop. There was a tremendous amount of realizing on the way up but market absorbed the offerings and continued to advance. Estimates on the export business ranged up to 4,000,000 bushels including a lot of new Canadian wheat. Weather conditions generally favorable. Liverpool futures closed about 3 up. There were claims of locust damage to Argentine crops. The market is a large bull affair with practically no setbacks and many in the trade are looking for a further advance.

CORN: There was heavy selling of December at 1.12 and of May at 1.14. This selling caused reaction but dips brought in new buying and the undertone of the market was strong. Volume of business was comparatively light, outside interest apparently having gone into other grains. Weather conditions more favorable but the forecast is for early return of unsettled and colder conditions. Corn sympathized to a large extent with the advance in wheat.

OATS: There was widespread realizing and an apparent effort of some of the locals to force a break so that they could come in on a cheaper basis. Much broader commission house buying was indicated and reactions were of short duration. Weather conditions generally favorable. Many of those in the trade that got left on the advance in wheat have decided their attention to oats, causing a much broader market.

RYE: Trade continued active and prices climbed to new highs on crop as buying by seaboard and foreign interests developed increased urgency. The seaboard placed early export business at 500,000 bushels, but local handlers reported 100,000 worked, which probably was not included in the eastern estimate.

PROVISIONS: Sold sharply higher with new investment buying in evidence and limited offerings, hog receipts estimated 16,000.

Provisions.

Chicago, October 2.—Provisions: Lard, 14.82; ribs, 12.50; bellies, 14.25.

New York, October 2.—Heavy selling of the local public utility issues brought about sufficient liquidation and bear selling in other sections of the list to check effectually the upward movement of prices in today's stock market, leaving closing quotations irregularly lower. The unfavorable interpretation placed by some professional traders upon recent political developments also was a factor in the day's selling.

Extraordinary strength of the grain market and a rally of approximately one cent in cotton futures also served to divert speculative interest from the stock to the commodity markets. However, more than a score of issues attained new peak prices for the year including such widely-diversified stocks as United States Distributing common and preferred, Commercial Solvents "A" and "B," Montgomery-Ward, Railway Steel Spring, St. Joseph Lead, Foundation Company, Radio Corporation, Simmons Bed common and preferred, Goodyear Tire preferred and Spicer Manufacturing.

An opening gain of more than six points in Frisco preferred, which touched a new high at 73 1-2 in reflection of the inauguration of dividends, was the outstanding feature in the railroad group. The stock eased later to 71 1-8. The common, which touched a new top at 31, eased nearly a point from the high. Missouri Pacific preferred and Gulf, Mobile and Northern preferred also bettered their previous top prices. Most of the other rails moved within rather narr

Holditch-Willingham Wedding Is Beautiful Social Event

An outstanding and beautiful social event of Thursday evening was the marriage of Miss Dorothy Holditch, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Holditch, to John Bryan Willingham, taking place at 8:30 o'clock at St. Philip's cathedral.

Dean Thomas H. Johnston performed the ceremony in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends. Preceding the marriage service, Miss Grace Thompson, organist of St. Philip's, rendered an appropriate program of music and Mrs. Samuel A. Johnson sang "Because" and "Until." The fact that the date of the marriage marked the twenty-second wedding anniversary of the bride's mother and father added a lovely touch of sentiment to the occasion.

The handsome altar of the cathedral was banked with an abundance of green palms, ferns and foliage plants. Along the chancel rail were clusters of Easter lilies tied with white satin ribbon and burning among the foliage were tall cathedral candelabras. Wide white satin ribbons and standards of Easter lilies guarded the pews reserved for the immediate families of the young couple.

Bridal Party.

First to descend the long aisles of the church were the bridesmaids, Miss Inez Willingham and Miss Margaret Colbert, and groomsmen, Erwin Willingham and Weyman Willingham. The bridesmaids' gowns were fashioned alike of gold colored crepe veiling satin of the same shade. The short basque bodices were trimmed in orchid shaded ribbon and the hem of the full skirts were edged with orchid shaded ostrich feathers. An ostrich ornament adorned the left side of the waistline. They carried large arm bouquets of orchid and gold dahlias tied with lavendar satin ribbon.

Miss Laura Noott, of East Orange, N. J., was maid of honor and entered alone. She was gowned in orchid brocaded chiffon fashioned over gold tissue and trimmed in orchid ostrich feathers. Her arm bouquet was of orchid and gold dahlias tied with gold satin ribbons.

Four little pages, including Master Stanley Holditch, brother of the bride, and Master J. N. Willingham, Jr., brother of the groom, and Charles Holditch and W. E. Barber, Jr., entered in pairs. They wore white flannel trousers with navy blue coats and neckties.

Preceding the bride was little Miss Rose Marian Barber, who bore the wedding ring on a white satin pillow showered with valley lilies. She was a dainty figure wearing a frock of pink chiffon fashioned entirely of narrow ruffles with shoulder straps of silver ribbon. A bandeau of silver ribbon was worn around her head and pink silk socks and silver slippers completed her lovely little costume.

The ushers were E. F. Holditch, an uncle of the bride; Bernard Willingham, Ernest Wellborn and Cliff Durham.

Lovely Bride.

The lovely young bride entered with her father, Charles J. Holditch, by whom she was given in marriage. They were joined at the altar by the groom and his brother, Fred Willingham, who acted as best man. The bride's gown was a handsome creation of white chiffon velvet, lavishly embroidered in seed pearls and rhinestones. Outlining the round neckline was a pretty design of pearls and rhinestones and on the right shoulder was a spray of embroidered roses. The skirt was gracefully draped to the left side, where the drapery was caught at the waist line with a handsome rhinestone ornament. The stately court train of white velvet was held to the shoulders with rhinestone ornaments. A veil of real lace combined with misty silk tulle was held to her soft hair in coronet effect with clusters of orange blossoms at either side of the head. Further enhancing the beauty of the veil were sprays of orange blossoms scattered at intervals to the end which extended the full length of the velvet train. The only ornament worn by the bride was a magnificent platinum bracelet studded with diamonds and sapphires, gift of the groom. She carried a huge bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies showered with the lilies.

Informal Reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Holditch, parents of the bride, entertained at an informal reception following the ceremony at their home on Springdale road in Druid Hills. The guests included the members of the bridal party, out-of-town guests, relatives and close friends.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Holditch were the bride and groom and Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Willingham, parents of the groom. They stood before a bank of palms, pink roses and dahlias in effective arrangement. The spacious reception rooms were elaborately decorated with a profusion of palms, roses and dahlias artistically arranged.

Assisting in entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Willingham, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Holditch, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Culpepper and Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Barber.

Mrs. Theodore L. Hoff, of East Orange, N. J.; Miss Ella Mozen, Mrs. T. F. Peabody and Miss Marie Porter served punch from silver bowls embedded in southern smilax and pink roses.

The bride's register was in charge of Mrs. C. B. Culpepper.

Mrs. Holditch, the bride's mother, wore a handsome gown of yellow chiffon embroidered in pearls and crystals. Her corsage bouquet was of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Willingham, mother of the groom, was gowned in black brocaded chenille and wore a corsage bouquet of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Culpepper's gown was gold brocaded silk.

Mrs. Hoff wore an attractive gown of rose crepe trimmed in sequins of the same shade.

Mrs. George R. Noott, grandmother of the bride, wore a beige-colored lace gown over black satin.

Wedding Journey.

Mr. Willingham and his bride left during the evening for a wedding journey. On their return they will be at home with the bride's parents for several weeks before taking possession of their apartment.

The bride's traveling costume was a log cabin Elizabeth crepe model trimmed in moire ribbon of the same shade and worn with a cape to match. Her hat was a smart velvet model to match and was adorned with an attractive rhinestone ornament.

The out-of-town guests included Mrs. George R. Noott, Mrs. Theodore Hoff and Miss Laura Noott, all of East Orange, N. J., and George R. Noott, Jr., of Boston, Mass., and Leland Hume, of Nashville, Tenn.

Prominent Parties.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Holditch, her mother being Miss Edith Noott, of Bayonne, N. J., and she is a granddaughter of Mrs. George Noott, of East Orange, New Jersey.

Mr. Holditch, her father, was originally of London, England, and her paternal grandmother is Mrs. George Holditch, now of London, England.

She attended school at North Avenue Presbyterian school and Washington seminary here in Atlanta, where she was a member of the Phi Pi sorority; later she was a student at Ward Belmont seminary at Nashville, Tenn.

After finishing school she traveled abroad a year, and during that time visited her grandmother, Mrs. George Holditch, in London, England, and took the lovely Mediterranean cruise.

Mr. Willingham is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Willingham, Sr., of this city. Mrs. Willingham was a Miss Suttles, of Stockbridge, Ga.

He attended school at the Boys' High school and later at Oglethorpe university. He is a thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason and a Shriner. He now holds a responsible position with the Ford Motor company.

Mr. Willingham is prominent in business and social life in Atlanta and is a member of the Atlanta Athletic club.

Will Keep Their Shape.

Shoes certainly keep their shape better if trees are put into them as soon as they are removed. Then the trees straighten out the wrinkles before the dampness has left the shoe and caused the wrinkles to set. Inexpensive shoe trees can be purchased in all 5 and 10 cent stores, so it would not prove beyond one's means to take care of one's shoes.

Into the Patch Bag.

When hemming new tablecloths, save the ravelings. They are the best material obtainable for darning holes or thin places in worn table linen.

Easily Skinned.

Plunge beets into cold water immediately upon removing them from the stove and the skin will slip off easily.

Mrs. Scmithson had just engaged a new gardener. One morning she went out into the garden and found him h d at work.

Jock had been to have his photograph taken. When he got the proofs he showed them to his pal, Sandy, who looked at them in silence for a moment.

"Dinna ye like it?" asked Jock anxiously.

"Ay! But it seems a petty ye couldn't ha'e smiled when the mon was takin' ye," replied Sandy slowly.

"Ay, mon," said Jock sadly; "but how could I when they photies were costing me twel' shinnin's the dizzen?"

The host at the drawing room concert was nervous and inexperienced and at the end of a song with which one of the guests had "obliged" he rose hurriedly.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he began, "before Mrs. Smith started to sing she—ah—told me her—ah—voice was not in the best condition, and—ah—asked me to apologize for it, but I neglected to do so and—ah—I apologize now."

SLAMS AND SALAAMS

By Louise Dooly

"I DO not consider Cornelia subtle, but sometimes she says the same things as if she were subtle."

That does not sound like the remark of a college professor, but it is. At least, it seems a far cry from what we should expect of one if we form our idea of college professors from the kind of dry and technical stuff a lot of them write of their specialty, whatever it may be.

And so it is a pleasant shock to read Stuart P. Sherman's "Conversations of Cornelia," which run from time to time in the Aelantic Monthly. They are common sense, masquerading under a delicious whimsicality; a sort of erudite frivolity.

Professor Sherman, it is true, has heard the call of the wild, and has left the halls of a western institute of learning to head the literary and critical staff of the New York Herald-Tribune. Perhaps that is why he can permit himself so much humaneness.

Anyway, let us recommend to all parents of children who are on the verge of growing up, his discussion of "An Eligible Young Man."

Well-Dressed Savages.

THE tone of it is best suggested in our opening paragraph. A very masculine and reluctant way of admitting a quality of Cornelia's which the professor pretends he would like to be able to deny.

Now fathers and mothers, if you don't like this line about Cornelia's subtlety, then don't waste your time on any of the conversations. Just get something bromidic like "What Every Girl, What Every Boy Should Know," "The Plastic Age," etc.

However,—

The happiest answer we have found to the theory of Expression-at-All-Costs, the popular doctrine for the liberal bringing up of young people with least trouble to the parents, lies in this paragraph:

"Don't you see why I can't have Dorothy reading these popular novels? I don't wish her to be what this creature (the author of Deirdre) calls 'elemental' and 'spontaneous' I wish her to be civilized and rational, and not a well-dressed little savage, ready to act at once on whatever passion or fancy circumstances put into her head. I wish her to associate with people who are rational and civilized and to marry a man who is civilized and rational.

"'Isn't there a season in life,' I suggested, 'in which almost everyone has some uncivilized promptings?'"

"'Is there a season in life,' countered Cornelia, 'in which a properly trained person cannot present at least the appearance of discretion?'"

A Social Background.

AGAIN — "An ugly thing in American life," says Cornelia, "is that it has no respect for any of the things that make people respectable, no sense for the substantial basis of social distinctions," and here is the crux of her ideal of protected youth,—"no regard for the hedges and barrier behind which one tries to cultivate the flowers of a finer garden."

And this—"I think the salvation of a girl is her pride,—legitimate pride in her family, her position, her connections."

"But" he contends (for the sake of the argument)—"can't you concede that in marriage there is something more elemental and imperative than can be governed by such considerations as you put forth?"

"Yes—to the animals and savages; to the sense of vulgar and ignorant people. But to the sense of what my mother used to call gentlefolk—emphatically, no. To them there can be nothing more elemental and imperative than just those considerations which distinguish them from the ignorant and the vulgar.

Quite a different outlook from the modern fiction attitude, is it not?

Best of all, the male of the conversational duo defines the "deep and precious self," "the buried life nobody else understands," "the secret garden of the personality."

He makes you think he's going to stick a pin in it, and then he turns it literally inside and out.

Read it, but don't think of letting the young folks read the ending. Might as well expect children to believe in Santa Claus when they have seen father dress up in the white beard and red coat.

Ladies and Gentlemen!

WE adore real oratory in a campaign.

Not bombast, for it's quite true that "it is the empty vessel that gives forth the loudest sound."

But observe the force under the charm of John W. Davis' speeches, which have a Wilsonian clearness, apt choice of words, and grace of phrase, with the difference that Wilson did not often "let himself go."

Davis can make the history of the democratic party as absorbing as a novel and as convincing as gospel.

Consider the picture he makes of the democratic party in that story he told of Stonewall Jackson, when the general lay mortally wounded on the battlefield and one of his staff officers, leaning over him, said: "Tell Caesar if you meet him on the other side that we are still fighting."

It will be hardly forgivable of the party if it does not so buckle down to work as to give the country a president who can so see the glory of a cause.

What Is History For?

AMATEUR criticism is a funny thing.

There is the comment—apparently serious—of a few of the people who have seen Griffith's masterful and beautiful picture of the American revolution—"America"—that it is objectionable, because it is anti-British.

The outstanding value of the film is not merely its beauty to the eye and its truth, in conditions and incidents, but its portrayal of the sacrifices which these early Amercans made, to found what is now our great republic.

There would have been no such sacrifice if Britain had merely slapped us on the wrist, and we had roughly retorted, "you stop."

With good reason, it was a real man-sized fight (within the poor limitations of the 18th century. The 20th century, of course, handles international differences on a scale of magnificence and with a completeness of detail commensurable with Mr. Griffith's super-productions.)

Then there is the criticism we overheard a southern woman make that "America" did not give adequate place to the part of the south in the revolution.

Well, it makes the Montague family of Virginia provide the central dramatis personae. And, of course, Mr. Griffith might have selected a Bostonian to lead the continental army. Some movie producers have been known to be guilty of such.

But, very sensibly, Mr. Griffith chose for the commander-in-chief, and later for the first president of the United States, a southerner and a Virginian, one George Washington.

Censorship Storm.

THE matter of criticism suggests that of censorship, and the present agitation in New York for a cleaning-up of the metropolitan stage.

That this agitation has come is not surprising to us mere outlarders who must get our knowledge of Broadway's dramatic uplift through the comments of the reviewers.

These are in all cases, on New York papers, writers who have become inured to almost anything through long exposure to the New York stage, and also through their deliberate and necessary cultivation of a spirit of tolerance.

But there have been cropping out for some time hints even from these fair-minded critics that the subject matter of some of the so-called drama on Broadway, if it has any place among decent people at all, belongs only in medical clinics for the sake of study of abnormal indications; and that the beauty shows are in a fair way to destroy, for American audiences, the imaginative instinct. Which instinct is valuable when put to constructive uses.

PERHAPS the modern Mrs. Malaprop meant it for comfort—or did she?—when she said to her neighbor: "Yes, my dear, it's hard on all of us to grow old. But at least you will be spared, as the years go by, the trial of the woman who has beauty to lose."

"IT'S much easier," said the football fan, while his teeth chattered with the cold at the first game of the season—"it's much easier to keep warm without an overcoat when the only one you've got is a shabby one."

POEMS THAT LIVE

"Were But My Spirit Loosed Upon the Air."

Were but my spirit loosed upon the air—
By some High Power who could Life's chains unbind.
Set free to seek what most it longs to find—
To no proud Court of Kings would I repair;
I would but climb, once more, a narrow stair,
When day was wearing late, and dusk was kind,
And one should greet me to my failings blind,
Content so I but shared his twilight there.
Nay! well I know he waits not as of old—
I could not find him in the old-time place—
I must pursue him, made by sorrow bold,
Through worlds unknown, in strange celestial race,
Whose mystic round no traveller has told,

Mrs. J. P. Wall Named Head Of P.-T. A. Presidents' Club

Mrs. J. P. Wall, who was elected president of the Atlanta P. T. A. Presidents' club Thursday at the monthly meeting of the club held at the Ansley hotel.

Mrs. J. P. Wall, president of the Atlanta Normal Training and Faith school, was elected president of the Atlanta P. T.-A. Presidents' club Thursday, at the regular monthly meeting, after a spirited contest in which a close vote was cast for the following nominations, Mrs. Howard McCutcheon, retiring president of the club, Mrs. Julian Harris, of the Calhoun Street P. T.-A, and Mrs. J. S. Boardman, of the Joseph Brown P.-T. A.

Other officers elected at the meeting Thursday were Mrs. J. S. Boardman, vice president; Mrs. A. E. Wilson, secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. Wall, newly-elected president, is serving at present as president of the Atlanta Normal Training and Faith school for the fourth term. She has rendered untiring service to this association and is well equipped to accept the honor that has been bestowed upon her. Before her marriage, Mrs. Wall was Miss Julia Faith, and for four years attended the school which she now heads as president of its Parent-Teacher association. Her grandfather, the late John F. Faith, for which the school was named, was founder of the school, and from him, Mrs. Wall inherits her keen interest in educational movements.

Mrs. McCutcheon, who has been president for the past year, expressed her appreciation to the members of the club for their support and cooperation and introduced the new president in a most gracious and charming manner.

Mrs. George M. Howsman, president of the Atanta P. T.-A. council, paid tribute to the administration of Mrs. McCutcheon, which was further expressed by a rising vote of thanks from the members present.

The Presidents' club is composed of all the presidents of the Parent-Teacher association in the city and through its monthly luncheons held at the Ansley hotel gives opportunity for a delightful social intercourse among its members.

The ceremony took place at noon yesterday in the Bethlehem chapel of the National Episcopal cathedral, Bishop William Cabell Brown, of Virginia, and Canon W. L. DeVries officiating.

The best man was the bridegroom's brother, Herbert A. Claiborne, of Richmond; the ushers were Oscar W. Underwood, Jr., and Commander Edgar Woods.

Tries Kellogg's Bran—restores health after 12 years of intense suffering

Mr. Firth writes that he suffered for 12 years from constipation and his friend for 10 years—a total of 22 years' suffering permanently relieved by Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled.

Gentlemen:

For 12 years I had been troubled with indigestion caused mostly by constipation. Until about a year ago, I would suffer from 4 to 20 weeks at a time.

I happened to see your Krumbled Bran in a store, purchased a package and got almost immediate relief. I am still eating the Krumbled Bran every day.

The most wonderful results obtained with your Krumbled Bran I will now relate. A gentleman who has been taking medicine for about 10 years for constipation could not find anything to give him relief. Three weeks ago I advised him to try Krumbled Bran, as I had told him what wonderful results I had gotten from it. The gentleman in question purchased a box, and he told me that for the first time in ten years he is regular without taking medicine.

Yours for success,
William Firth, Jr., 56 Volan St., Merchantville, N. J.

Eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to relieve the most chronic case of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. The flavor is delicious. Try it in the recipes on every package. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers. —(adv.)

ELIZABETH JORDAN

Mrs. Morgan Schuyler, one of New York's leading philanthropic and social lights, advertises for a young woman to work in her apartment mornings. The advertisement is answered by a girl evidently of birth and breeding. In spite of the fact that she admits a desire to hide her identity, Mrs. Schuyler accepts her on trust and tags her with the name of Hope Emerson.

Mrs. Schuyler's family consists of her mother, Mrs. Van Dorn; a young brother, Jim Van Dorn, and an older brother, Bertie, who is away. Sally Willis, Mrs. Schuyler's god-daughter, calls during the course of the morning.

The second morning of her employment Hope faints, after receiving a mysterious telephone call. Mrs. Schuyler summons Dr. Horace's Osborne. Hope tells the doctor she is employed during the afternoon hours on East 70th street. He offers to drive her there. She refuses to tell him the exact location and asks him to let her out of the car at the corner of Fifth avenue and 70th street. The doctor starts back downtown, but suddenly remembers he has an appointment on 70th street.

By a strange coincidence his appointment is at the house where Hope is employed. He has been called in consultation with two other doctors. The patient is a boy of five years, and the entire household mysteriously revolves about the child, whose closest guardian is an uncle named Scarwenka. All of the members of this household are foreigners except Hope, who is known here as Sonia.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

A QUEER SITUATION.

Both yesterday and today Hope had seen Doctor Hatch taking in everything his gray green eyes rested upon—the foreign furnishings of the place, the dark faced, rather sinister looking man in the hall, the volcanic, middle aged woman nurse, herself—O, not least of all, herself! Yes, Hatch's imaginative mind would work overtime, and if Osborne repeated to Mrs. Schuyler the specialist's surmises and theories, even as broadminded a woman as that noted leader might feel it was too great a risk to add Miss Emerson to her home circle. And if Miss Emerson lost the Schuyler work, where else could she find some one sufficiently confiding to employ her? How could she supplement her present earnings? And what assurance had she that if she found another place, she could remain in it? The reflection presented itself like a shrouded figure and waited for attention, while a sensation of despair filled her.

"Miss Sonia?"

Osborne had to speak again before she heard him, and came back to the moment as one returning exhausted by a journey. She looked around. Hatch and Phelps were talking to Madam Scarwenka at the bedside of their restless patient.

"We're going now," Osborne said, in a low tone. "But first I want to say that I haven't seen you here, and that I've forgotten meeting you anywhere else. Is that quite clear?"

She threw a startled glance at him, and met a pair of vividly blue eyes with a remote expression in them.

"Quite," she faltered. "Thank you very much."

"There's nothing to thank me for."

He swung on his heel and bustled back to the group beside the bed. She heard him say goodby to Madam Scarwenka, and watched him leave the room with the other men. For a moment their American voices, oddly out of place in this environment, came back to her, mingled with the sound of their footsteps as they descended the uncarpeted stairs. The front door slammed.

She raised her head with a slight jerk, characteristic of her in difficult moments, and drew a deep breath. She was safe, then, a little longer. But even in that instant of gratitude she felt a sensation approaching acute dislike of the arrogant young man who had put her under such heavy obligation. She had not liked the look in his blue eyes when he did it, and she liked it even less in retrospect. It was as if, having unconsciously pushed her veil of reserve to one side, he twicked it back into place with a scornful gesture—the gesture of one who had not approved of the revelation he had received. Well, obviously he hadn't approved of it. Hope Emerson did not approve of it herself. Still, he might have spared her that flick of something that was almost contempt.

The voice of the woman they called Madam Scarwenka aroused her from her reverie.

"It is not ker-oop. And there is nothing we must do," it was saying with relief, in its gutteral, broken English.

"No, I was sure it wasn't," the girl agreed.

"I want all the stories in the whole world!"

The autocrat in the big bed had risen, had cast the bed clothing aside, and now faced them, with legs wide apart, like a resolute Colossus. His English was fluent, colloquial, and without accent. He apparently had a fine command of several other tongues as well—tongues unknown to Hope. In moments of excitement—and these were frequent—he drew on his entire vocabulary and poured forth orations that left the household dazed and vicariously breathless.

Now a bargain was struck. He was to get back into bed and remain there the rest of the day, while Sonia read to him and told him stories. Tomorrow, the doctors had said, he could play out in the garden. In another moment he was between the sheets, the bed covers up to his chin. Jack the Giant Killer, slim, eager, green coated, young—O, yes, just a little boy 'most five years old—had entered the room and was beginning his great adventure.

At the curb in front of the house the three doctors stopped for a moment before separating. Phelps, looking more depressed than ever, had intimated that there was a final word to say. He brought it out with evident embarrassment.

"I've a rather unusual message from the—ah—lady we've just left," he began, self-consciously, "the lady called Madam Scarwenka. She asks, gentlemen, if you'll both be good enough to make a point of forgetting that you've been here!"

Hatch chuckled.

"Can't do it, doctor," he objected. "Life's too monotonous, as a rule, to let anything like this get away. My mind treats it as a plaything." Then, seeing the disturbed expression on the other's plump face, he took pity on poor Phelps, who had no sense of humor. "But I won't speak of it," he promised, and with a nod entered his car. Doctor Phelps, whose conception of his personal needs did not include an automobile, lingered a moment beside Osborne.

"Going down town?" the latter asked him.

"Yes. To East Thirty-eighth street."

"All right. Get in and I'll drop you there."

Phelps got in. He remembered that, unlike Hatch, this associate had made no promise in response to Madam Scarwenka's message; but the fact did not disturb him. If anyone talked of this visit, it would not be Osborne.

"It's a queer situation," he began, without preface. "As you know, I've studied a lot on the other side and I've met shoals of Europeans. To all intents and purposes that establishment—aside from a few good pieces of furniture they've got in it—is just an ordinary lower class Balkan household. Most of the names are Balkan, too, though Scarwenka isn't. However, all the names are certainly assumed. There's always a reek of strong cooking in the place that turns my stomach. I've been in and out for six months—ever since they moved in, in fact—and I've never seen anything but the most commonplace family life. The kid's nurse has a bad temper, but there's nothing esoteric about that. The girl Sonia is out of the picture, because she clearly belongs to a higher class than the rest of them; but just as clearly she's under the Scarwenka woman's thumb, though the two Scarwenkas are pure peasants and the girl Sonia seems a thoroughbred. The rent of that house must be high, and yet see how these people dress! There's another man in the basement, a chap they call Mihail. He never seems to do anything except attend to the furnace, and I fancy he's simply a sort of guard. But what the devil are they guarding?"

The question was clearly oratorical, so Osborne remained silent. There was something he wanted to ask, but he would not ask it. As if he had got it telepathically, Phelps went on:

"I can't make out what the girl's position is, except that it's infernally uncomfortable. The Scarwenka purrs when strangers are around, but her claws are out the rest of the time, and I've been there so much that she doesn't take the trouble to purr at me. Her one soft spot is the child. Both she and her husband seem besotted about him, though I've never seen them show him any personal affection. They call me if he bruises a fingernail, and if he bumps his head they want a consultation. All that's natural enough, I suppose, since he appears to be all they've got. But what puzzles me is the atmosphere of secrecy they surround themselves with. It's enough to bring the whole police force down on them; whereas if they'd go about their business in a normal fashion no one in New York would pay any attention to them. It's their precautions that strike one. Why, they've a regular set of signals for me! I can't get across the threshold unless I ring the bell in a certain way. And did you notice the bolts and chains on all the doors and windows? The Scarwenkas themselves never leave the house. The kid plays out down in the fifty foot square of ground they refer to as 'the garden.' They've built a roofed pavilion there for him, and the fence is so high no one can look over it. The girl Sonia comes and goes pretty freely, though I've a suspicion they keep a closer eye on her than she thinks."

The Problem:

What Is the Sum Total of the Figures Forming the Elephant?

Simply Add Them Up to Get the Solution

There are no marks, lines or characters in the elephant except figures. These figures range from 2 to 9, each standing alone. There are no "ones" or "ciphers." There are no groups of figures such as "23" or "42." The heads of the "6's" are distinctly curved while the tails of the "9's" are straight, or practically so. There is no trick or illusion of any description in the chart.

General Rules of The Contest

1. All bona fide residents of Georgia and adjoining states, meaning Alabama, Florida, North and South Carolina and Tennessee, may take part in this contest, except employees of The Atlanta Constitution and members of their families.

2. Contestants may submit as many different solutions as they desire, provided payment of one of the three amounts designated in the prize list shall accompany each solution. NO SOLUTION NOT ACCOMPANIED BY A SUBSCRIPTION PAYMENT WILL BE REGISTERED.

3. Only one prize will be paid to any person, household, or group of persons working together. When, in the judgment of the contest manager, two or more solutions have been copied or worked in collusion, such solutions may be rejected by him and the subscription money refunded.

4. The Atlanta Constitution is to decide any questions which may arise that are not covered by the published rules, and those entering this contest agree to abide by such decisions and accept them as final and conclusive.

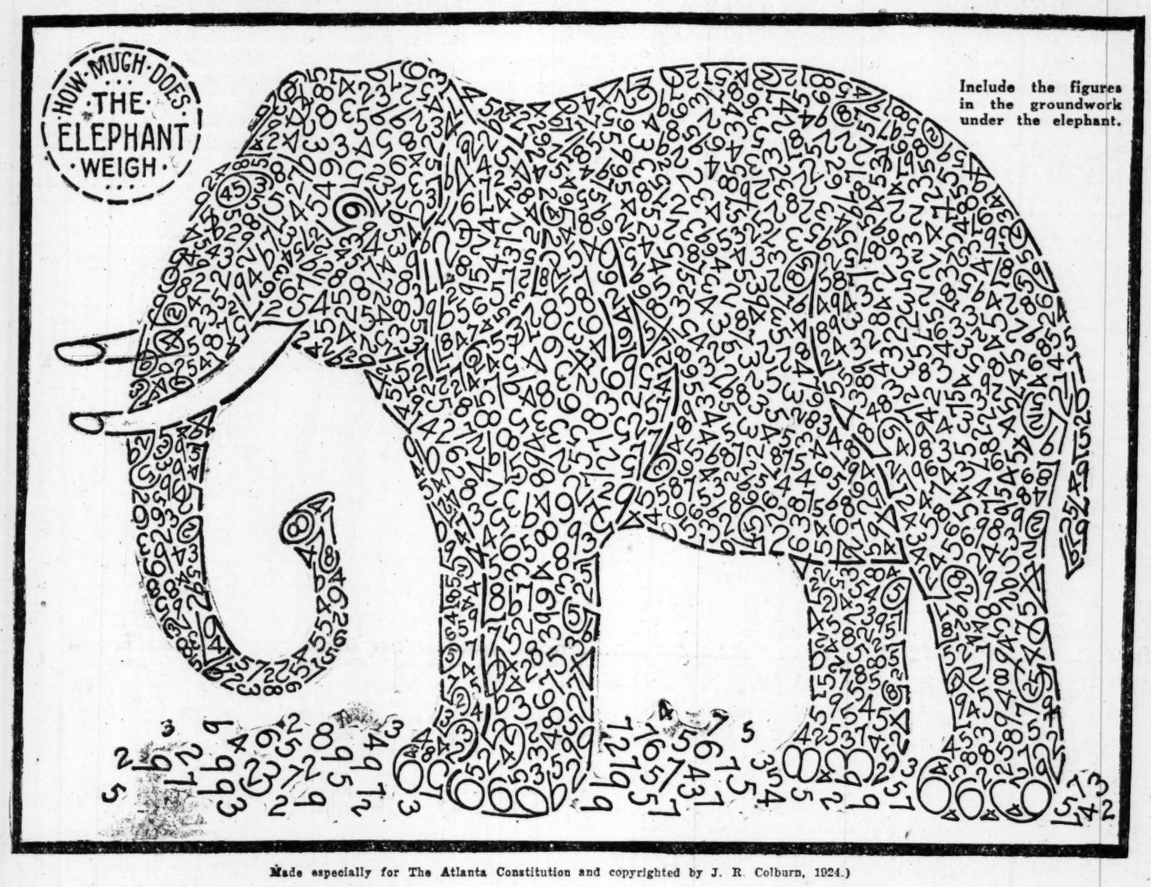

5. All solutions must be mailed or delivered to The Atlanta Constitution office on or before 9 o'clock, Saturday, November 8th, 1924. Solutions sent by mail bearing postmark of that date will be accepted, if rules governing same are complied with. This contest extends from Sunday, September 28th, to and including Saturday, November 8th, 1924.

6. In case of ties, as many prizes will be reserved as there are people tied before any prizes are awarded for less correct solutions, and another puzzle will be submitted to those tied. That is, if two or more people should tie on the best solution, the first two or more prizes will be reserved for them, and they will be awarded in the order of the standing of their solutions of the second puzzle. If ties still result, as many as four tie-breaking puzzles will be used, after which should ties still result each contestant will receive the full value of the prize tied for.

7. This contest is open to both new and old subscribers alike. The regular subscription rates of $2.50 for three months, $5.00 for six months, $9.50 for twelve months to the daily and Sunday Constitution will prevail. Daily only subscriptions not accepted in this contest. Full amount of subscription must be remitted in every instance. When sent through an agent no commission can be deducted.

8. A person who is now taking the daily and Sunday Constitution, and paying a carrier or agent by the week or month, may send or bring direct to The Constitution a three, six or twelve months' payment with the solution. Whatever is due such carrier, dealer or agent, must be paid to him, as the remittance sent us will date from the day it is received. The carrier or agent will be notified by The Constitution of such advance payment. Renewals on mail subscriptions will be extended for the length of time paid for from present paid date of expiration.

Deciding Ties—If Any

Actual Size, 11x7 Inches

In case of ties those tied for any prize will be presented with a second puzzle, which will consist of drawing a line across the face of a chart of figures, like the accompanying chart, only larger, so that the figures thus connected when added together will total the greatest sum. If necessary this chart will be used four times, after which, should any ties remain, each contestant will receive full value of any prize tied for.

In case there are no ties on counting the Elephant no other puzzle, of course, will be presented.

Closing Date

The Great Elephant Puzzle Contest Will Close at Nine P. M. Saturday, November 8th, 1924.

The earlier you send in your solution the longer time you will have to go over your figures, AND SEND IN ANOTHER SOLUTION, if you find you can do better. Additional charts may be secured at any time by calling at the address below or sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope for mailing them. NO SOLUTION CAN BE CHANGED AFTER IT HAS BEEN ONCE REGISTERED.

Important Facts To Remember

While the amount you pay with a solution of the puzzle does not have any effect on your winning a prize, it does affect the amount you will receive, should you win one of the first nine prizes, as the value of these prizes is determined by what the winners pay. This is explained in the prize list, which you should study carefully before sending in your solution.

The time a solution is received has no bearing upon its winning a prize. Accuracy is what counts.

Not more than one prize will be awarded to any one person.

XLI—FRIENDLESS.

Mary arrived in New York late in the afternoon. A drizzling rain drove against her face as she paused just outside the station, hesitating a moment before deciding how she would get home. In the old days there had been automobiles, always—usually a friend's; in the rare cases where she had to solve the problem of getting home, there had been taxis.

"You never know who'll see you," her aunt had frequently warned her. "Don't ever risk walking. Save on something else, but take a cab."

Well, there was no need to follow that advice now! And there was no money for taxis. Mary was appalled to see how little she had. She made her way through the jam of traffic, across the wide street, and took a street car, her heavy suitcase oanging against her knees, her overnight bag an unpleasant weight for all its smallness. She felt like a stranger in her own home.

Her apartment was a blessed haven, although it had been closed for so long that the air was musty and the furniture covered inches deep with dust. Mary found relief in straightening it, in putting up fresh curtains and unrolling rugs.

Another tenant on the same floor had been out of town for weeks, and there was a great heap of newspapers in front of the door. The fat old janitress, who had helped Mary up the stairs with her bags, gathered the papers together and laid them on her table.

"Might as well have these," she suggested, smoothing out the pile she had made of them. "I've read 'em all. But you've been away, and maybe there's something here you didn't see. Lots of trouble that Hayward girl's got into, hasn't she?"

Mary nodded. It was a shock to have the woman speak of her even so casually as this. Mary had never given her own name here, preferring to keep the apartment so complete a secret from the world that not even the janitress knew whose it really was.

"I guess she had it coming to her, though," the woman went on. "Girls like that, just tearing around to no good purpose, can't expect them to keep out of trouble. She's always been cut out for it though. I remember that Phillips case—I guess that was before you came here, wasn't it? Well, she was engaged to this Phillips fellow; millionaire, he was, had all kinds of money. Lots older than she was—I always thought that aunt of hers was the one who really made the match.

"Well, just about two or three weeks before the wedding he was killed—murdered in his own house at night. The housekeeper found him the next morning. And they never proved who did it, though lots of people thought it was Mary Hayward.

"But she had a good alibi. She was staying with a friend of hers, a girl named Camilla Waite—another of the same kind, she is. And when the night watchman said he saw a woman go down the steps of the Phillips house late that night, or rather early in the morning, why, this Waite girl spoke right up and said that Mary Hayward stayed all night with her that night, out in the country somewhere. So that ended that.

"But she's had lots of trouble since then. Can't keep out of it. Awfully pretty, too—looks a little bit like you would if you had clothes and money like she has."

The woman went at last, after one or two suggestions. Mary walked the floor of the little living-room when she was left alone, until the tenant in the apartment below hers rapped petulantly on the radiator and she had to stop.

She Felt Like a Stranger in Her Own Home.

So that was what the world thought of her! People wouldn't realize that she wanted a clean, sweet, quiet life; they would never forgive her for the sins that had not been hers, but other people's. She must always be a victim of the hideous sham, the wild extravagance that someone else had made of her life.

For the first time she wondered if other people were victims just as she was. Perhaps the things she hated in Nigel were not his fault at all. His tendency to be brutal, his sneering, bitter manner—what if Nigel did not want to be like that? And Camilla, who had been so unkind to her—how much was Camilla to blame?

"When I go to her tomorrow, to ask her to tell the turth about the Phillips case, I'll remember that," Mary told herself, as she finished her house cleaning. "She hasn't had the right kind of life any more than I have. We've both had too much excitement; we've never been natural. If I take the right attitude maybe she'll take it too."

And beneath that hope there was another, deeper one. Perhaps if she tried to understand others and be kind, somehow things would all be smoothed out so that after all she need not lose Bruce Gillian.

Tomorrow—With Hope Ahead.

Atlanta Legionnaires Plan Variety of Entertainment at Weekly Meeting

Midnite Revelers' orchestra and pretty young dancers will feature entertainment program at the weekly meeting today of the American Legion.

The program arranged for the Legion's weekly luncheon Friday has as its headliner, Oliver Radford's Midnite Revelers, and Miss Marian Robinson and Miss Lila Buchman in novelty dances. The orchestra is one of the best in the country, and has the largest personnel of any Atlanta orchestra with instrumentation as nearly like Paul Whiteman's famous orchestra as possible.

The orchestra is under the direction of Randolph W. May, a legionnaire, who has been for many months coaching orchestras for the making of phonograph records.

The dancers are well known in Atlanta, Miss Robinson having appeared at both the Howard and Metropolitan theaters, while Miss Buchman is a finished dancer and is well known as a teacher.

Tar Party Jury Got No Verdict Before Midnight

Frederick, Md., October 2.—The jury in the case of Harry Leatherman, tried in circuit court here on charges of tarring and feathering, growing out of the attack on Dorothy Crandon, 20-year-old Martinsburg, W. Va., girl, last July, was locked up at midnight tonight, without having reached a decision. The jury had been deliberating since 3 p. m.

Court will reconvene at 10 o'clock tomorrow to await a verdict.

Three hours were consumed by both sides today in summing up the case. Attorneys for the defense pleaded with the jury to be merciful and send Leatherman "back to his home and his job."

"Mercy should be reserved for the merciful," State's Attorney Storm declared in reply. "Did the mob have mercy on that girl when she presented such a pitiful spectacle while standing there in the road crying and pleading for clothes?" he asked. "The crime is a black spot on the history of the county and must be removed."

Miss Grandon was attacked by a mob along the state road near Myersville last July 24. Mrs. Mary Shank at the opening of the trial pleaded guilty to a charge of applying the tar and feathers to the girl's body. The reason for the attack, Mrs. Shank said, was that the girl was too intimate with Lloyd Shank, her husband.

Macon, Ga., October 2.—(Special.) H. L. D. Hughes, who was named by the Twiggs county democrats as the nominee for the state senate from the 21st district, was formally nominated by the delegates from the three counties comprising the district, Jones, Wilkinson and Twiggs, at the convention held here today.

Mr. Hughes was chosen by the single county, under the system of rotating the senatorial representative, and that choice was formally ratified. He succeeded George H. Carswell, of Wilkinson, who served as president of the upper branch of the general assembly.

At today's meeting Mr. Carswell was elected permanent chairman, which carries with it the chairmanship of the executive committee. M. C. Green, of Gray, was chosen permanent secretary.

A feature of the convention was the presence of Colonel Dudley M. Hughes, of Danville, father of the senator-elect, who was himself nominated to represent the district 42 years ago. Colonel Hughes made an interesting, reminiscent speech, recalling the convention in which he was nominated.

The new executive committee chosen today, in addition to Messrs. Carswell and Green, is as follows:

Jones county, F. M. Stewart and W. J. Green; Twiggs county, J. G. Shannon and F. E. Wimberly; Wilkinson county, B. Arbell and J. A. Adams.

$2,000,000 Increase Shown in Property On DeKalb Digest

Decatur, Ga., October 2.—(Special.)—An increase of approximately $2,000,000, of which only 118,235 is on personal property, is shown on the DeKalb county digest for 1924, according to figures compiled by County Tax Collector C. H. Talley. This amount is for all property in the county from which taxes are returnable. The amount on the digest was $23,393,950.

Stocks and bonds valued at $1,726,165, which were subject to 1923 taxes, were removed on tax returns this year and was the reason of the small increase in the personal property, according to the county officials.

The county will receive during the current year approximately $450,000 for roads and schools for payment of old warrants and on the bonded debt and for current expense. The figure is based on the 1924 digest, in accordance with the DeKalb county tax rate or $1.75 on the $100 set by the county commission. L. T. Y. Nash.

Citizens of DeKalb, not residing in municipalities, which are supporters of their own school, are subject to a school tax of 50 cents on the $100.

Approximately $125,000 will be drawn from the general tax of 50 cents on the $100 levied by the state, according to the figures.

COUNCIL SLASHES FINANCE SHEET IN MANY PLACES

With $25,000 appropriated early this year to pay half the cost of construction of an annex to Grady hospital for treatment of contagious diseases slashed from the finance sheet, and other small apportionments also stricken off, the balanced sheet was approved Thursday morning by a special committee of the finance committee and will be presented Monday to council.

Comptroller B. Graham West explained that total appropriations were $30,000 more than total anticipated receipts. Elimination of many apportionments was necessary to balance the sheet after the annual October revision.

The board of county commissioners, which previously had agreed to donate materials valued at $25,000 toward construction of the hospital annex, Wednesday voted to give part of its share in cash. Despite cutting from the sheet of the city's appropriation members of the Atlanta Woman's club and other civic organizations sponsoring the hospital plan to start construction before the end of this year on the probability that the appropriation from the city will be received early in 1925.

In balancing the finance sheet, $5,600 appropriated for widening of Edgewood avenue at Pryor and $2,500 for widening Peters street was eliminated. Work on the Edgewood avenue project has not yet been started.

An additional $5,000 was added to the fund for street repairs, and $1,000 was voted to match an equal amount given by the county to aid in paying costs of the Pan-American Commercial congress, now in session here.

The two men leave here tomorrow morning for Omaha, according to schedule.

The 90-year-old trail blazer, who years ago went into the new west by ox team, declared he felt fine upon arriving here from Rock Springs, Wyo., and urged Lieutenant Kelly to push on to Omaha, a flight of 245 miles, to spend the night. However, Lieutenant Kelly declared that North Platte was "far enough for today," and assured his aged passenger he would be in Dayton, Ohio, by Friday evening.

HODGES IS ACQUITTED OF SLAYING MARSHAL

Hinesville, Ga., October 2.—Ross Hodges, charged jointly with the Sallette brothers with the murder in Ludowici of Marshal J. A. McDaniel, was acquitted this afternoon. The jury was out about 10 minutes. The special term of court convened to try this case on a change of venue from Long county was then adjourned by Judge Sheppard.

Charles Sallette was found guilty of murder and given a life sentence here yesterday, and his brother, David P. Sallette, was convicted recently in Ludowici of manslaughter and given from five to ten years. David Sallette is out on bond.

A motion for a new trial of Charles Sallette will be argued before Judge Sheppard in Claxton on November 27.

In the trial of Hodges today, the testimony in the main was substantially the same as that given in the trial of Charles Sallette, with the exception that some of the witnesses declared they did not see Hodges take any part in the killing. Some said he was present and urged the Sallettes to kill the marshal. There was a conflict of testimony.

ORIGIN OF PLAGUE TO CATTLE TRACED

New Orleans, October 2.—Origin of the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Harris county, Texas, has been traced to a shipment of cattle refused admittance at New Orleans last fall by A. F. Staub, head of the federal bureau of animal industry here, Dr. Staub was advised today.

The cattle were aboard the Brazilian steamship and were destined for Vera Cruz, Mexico, but were brought by that port because of a longshoremen's strike there. Upon arrival here Dr. Staub refused to permit the cattle to be landed nor would he allow any member of the crew of the vessel to come ashore. This action was taken because the cattle had come from territory known to be infected. The cattle were returned to Vera Cruz, landed there, and taken into the interior of Mexico. Some of the herd later were taken into Texas.

GEORGIA TO ESCAPE PLAGUE, BAHNSON SAYS.

Savannah, Georgia, October 2.—(Special.)—Dr. Peter F. Bahnson, state veterinarian, who reached the city at an early hour this morning, en route to Ossabow Island, where tick eradication work is being conducted by a squad of 10 men, believes that the "foot and mouth disease," which has made its appearance in Texas, will be prevented from invading Georgia because of quarantine regulations, which have been established.

Dr. Bahnson said there is no case of the disease in this state and the reasons for declaring a quarantine is that it has shown up at Galveston, Texas.

"The United States government has adopted a policy of destroying all infested animals and those exposed to the disease. This is a good, sound policy," said Dr. Bahnsen.

Neighbors

"A man is known by the company he keeps" is an old adage that is still true today.

Because so many of Atlanta's leading citizens have already purchased Ansley Park Extension building sites and homes, we can assure you congenial, warm-hearted neighbors when you move into your home in this delightful residential section.

You can still obtain one of the beautiful new five and six-room bungalows we erected in Ansley Park Extension. These homes are well-constructed, well-arranged. They have furnace heat, hardwood floors, ample closet space.

The location is ideal. Bounded by North Boulevard, Montgomery Ferry Drive, Rock Spring Avenue and the Ansley Park Golf Course, Ansley Park Extension is convenient to the new overtown bus line and the Piedmont Avenue cars, which afford ample transportation to the shopping districts.

Call WAlnut 0670 or HEmlock 7464 TODAY, and ask us to show you these homes and explain our new Home Owning Plan by which you can purchase your home on terms like rent.

No One Else Has the Genuine MONTEVALLO

No other coal dealer in Atlanta can supply the genuine Montevallo coal, for the reason that it is now and has for several years been supplied only by Randall Brothers in this city. We are the authorized, and the only authorized local distributors.

Montevallo is known and widely recognized by all coal merchants as the highest grade domestic coal mined in the southern fields.

Therefore, when we quote prices on our best grade, remember there is no other coal in Atlanta of equal quality—regardless of price.

"Best Grade" is often a misnomer, or, at least deceptive in its meaning—unless you know how to discriminate.

(1) Montevallo
(2) Acton
(3) Creech
(4) Harlan

With convenient yards located in almost every section of the city and suburbs, we can render prompt service. No extra charge for suburban delivery.

Practically every Atlanta lodge has abandoned the use of letter notices of meetings now using this column of The Constitution for all such notices. Every lodge member in Atlanta looks to this column for all calls and any meeting notice published in the morning has time to reach every member before night. It is the surest and the cheapest way!

WIDOW OF VETERAN SEEKS COMRADES OF DEAD HUSBAND

Mrs. Susan J. Washington, of Haralson, Ga., R. F. D. No. 1, has asked The Constitution to help her find some old comrade who served with her husband in the war of the sixties. Her husband is dead and his widow, she says, is in needy circumstances and is anxious to establish her claim to a pension as the widow of a Confederate veteran.

Her husband, John J. Washington, she says, was a member of Company B. of the First Florida regiment, which was a part of Stovall's brigade, Stewart's division, Hood's corps, of General Joseph E. Johnston's army. Mr. Washington served during the war in many capacities, she says, and his regiment several times was reorganized and consolidated. During its career it was commanded by Colonels Mashburn, Badger, Lash and others.

Mrs. Washington is exceedingly anxious to get in touch with some one who can testify in corroboration of her husband's service record which will help her to secure the pension she says she needs.

FAIR AND WARMER WEATHER TODAY, SAYS FORECASTER

While everybody who chanced to walk abroad Thursday remarked on the invigorating freshness and fairness of the weather, C. F. von Herrmann, local weather prophet, predicted that the menu would be practically the same today. Fair and slightly warmer was the forecast.

The mean temperature Thursday was recorded at 58 degrees, and it was expected to remain around and a little above that point today.

Since the coming of a frigid wave from the northwest three days ago, which sent the mercury hurtling in the direction of the advertisement at the bottom of the thermometer, the weather has remained fair and crisp, though gradually becoming warmer each day. According to the prediction of Mr. von Herrmann, Atlantans have a pleasant schedule of weather in front of them, marked particularly by blue skies and pleasant temperatures.

So that sport fans at athletic events may hear the announcer whether his megaphone is aimed in their direction or not, a loud speaker has been erected on one tower in one field.

DEKALB GRAND JURY MAKES PRESENTMENTS

Decatur, Ga., October 2.—(Special.)—Recommendations that the county school superintendent be "appointed by a properly deliberative body, which can be actuated only by qualifications of candidate, rather than by popular election as now conducted," and an assertion that, in their opinion "the schools should be withdrawn as far as possible from politics," were contained in presentments returned by the DeKalb county grand jury in the September term just closed.

Embodied in the recommendations was a clause that they were made "with no possible reference to the recent election," referring to the county primary on September 10, in which W. M. Rainey, former principal of the Decatur High school, won over R. E. Carroll.

Recommendations of the improvements in the county's system of returning and collecting taxes would save $50,000 annually, it is claimed.

The presentments stated that "the record shows that during the past year a special tax commissioner discovered and brought to record enough property escaping taxation to earn for himself over $10,000 on a commission basis. It is believed by those in position to know that much property in the county is not being properly returned for taxation."

Commenting on the condition of the schools in the county, the presentments call attention to the fact that less than half the amount allowed per child in the city schools of Decatur is allowed per child in the county system.

Permanent construction on the main highways was urged in the presentments.

Included in the presentments are recommendations that DeKalb county employ a sanitary officer to work under the supervision of the county health officer and that the county put into effect the Australian ballot system.

ATLANTA LODGE CLAIMS YOUNGEST ODD FELLOW HONOR

Atlanta can now boast the youngest Odd Fellow in the entire world.

Walter Scott McNeil, 18-year-old son of Walter McNeil, past grandmaster of Georgia Odd Fellows, was given the initiatory degree of the order Thursday night. He is the youngest member ever taken into the order, Atlanta Odd Fellows assert.

At the last conference of the sovereign grand lodge in Jacksonville, Fla., the age limit was changed from 21 years to 18 years, and young McNeil is the first member to be initiated since the passing the new ruling.

Taking part in the initiation was young McNeil's grandfather, Dr. W. S. McNeil, a past grandmaster, and his father. The Atlanta lodge is Barnes lodge, No. 55.
